EXPERTS FIND U. S. IS UNREADY IN WAR CRISIS

But Nation's Forces Are Improving.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11. — [Special.]—Above the clangor of the world's shipyards and munitions plants rises the question of whether the United States is prepared for war

And, with the Czechoslovak crisis still fresh in mind, a second question follows: Could the American forces cope with the German army?

Experts answer "no" to the first question. They add, however, that the United States is rapidly nearing a state of preparedness which will enable it to defend its own borders, although it will not fit the army and navy for an offensive war.

Would Halt Invaders.

The second question, in the opinion of experts, is difficult to answer. If the armies of the two nations were to meet now, military experts say, the Americans would be routed, because they would be outmanned and up against superior equipment. But if Germany were to invade this country, the American forces would more than hold their own.

Experts add that a German invasion of America is impossible, because Germany is outclassed at sea. An American invasion of Germany likewise is considered impossible, because this country lacks sufficient troops or equipment to carry German coast defenses.

The United States is far better prepared today, however, than she was at the beginning of the world war, and each day is bringing improvement.

Army Far Behind at War.

At the outbreak of the war in 1914 the United States had 96,387 officers and men in the regular army and 120,000 officers and men in the National Guard. The army had scarcely advanced in training and equipment beyond the latter days of the Spanish American war. The National Guard was poorly trained.

Equipment was obsolete. The army did not possess a single modern piece of artillery. Machine guns were virtually unknown, and training was proceeding along the lines of Gettysburg and San Juan hill. The army was fat and lazy, and there were no reserves.

The navy was little better off. Although its register listed 330 ships—counting down almost to rowboats—and 61,660 sailors, the best of these were of Spanish-American war vintage.

National Guard a Stepchild.

The National Guard was a stepchild in a neglected family. It had almost no material, no funds, and no valuable training. The National Guard and, according to some authorities, American honor in the world war, was saved by the experience guardsmen got on the Mexican border.

The months on the border fused the guardsmen into soldiers of experience, so that when they went to France they acquitted themselves as well as regulars. So well did they do their job that the Guard has earned a permanent place in American life.

In 1914 the greatest military asset of the country was its raw materials, factories, and mass of untrained man power. Good soldiers and an amazing number of capable officers were developed rapidly.

American Life Credited.

The excellence of the crop of officers has been attributed by military students to the American way of life. Football, baseball, and other sports which teach coöperative effort, discipline, and quick use of judgment aided young men to step into posts of command.

The unpreparedness of the American army in 1914 can best be illustrated by comparison with the strength of the German army on the eve of the war. In 1914 the Germans had a regular army of 790,985 men and trained reserves which gave it a mobilization strength of 3,350,000 men, armed with the latest equipment and highly trained.

In the German navy were 323 vessels and 73,700 sailors. The naval force was superior in training and equipment and strength to the American navy of that day.

The German-American comparison of 1914 may be carried to 1938 to

GARMENT UNION BOLT BODY BLOW TO LABOR CZAR

Blasted for Failure to Bring Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The labor empire of blustering John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, tottered today from its second body blow within a week.

Today's staggering stroke came when the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, third largest unit in the C. I. O. structure and headed by David Dubinsky, one of the founders of the C. I. O., voted to withdraw its membership.

By a unanimous vote the union's executive board of 19 members decided to sever its relationship with the C. I. O. and operate as an independent union, at least temporarily. The question of returning its 250,000 members to the fold of the American Federation of Labor, which it foresook for the C. I. O., was held in abeyance. The session means a loss to the C. I. O. of $150,000 a year in dues from Dubinsky's union.

Previous Blow at Polls.

The other major blow for the C. I. O. came on election day when C. I. O. sponsored candidates were defeated, blasting any hopes Lewis may have had for the success of a third party ticket, headed by himself, in the 1940 presidential election.

Notable among C. I. O. losses on Tuesday were the defeats of Gov. Frank Murphy in Michigan; Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania, who ran for the senate, and Charles Sawyer, Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio. All had the enthusiastic support of Lewis. Also the Farmer-Labor party was overturned in Minnesota and the American Labor party suffered loss of prestige in the east.

These shocks, coupled with growing dissension within C. I. O. ranks, are making life miserable for the burly Lewis on the eve of his convention in Pittsburgh, called to make the C. I. O. a permanent organization. The convention opens Monday.

Report Castigates Lewis.

The garment workers' union voted against sending delegates to the convention after hearing a report of a special committee that its efforts to settle the quarrel between C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. had been fruitless.

The committee report castigated Lewis for laying down drastic conditions under which he would resume the peace conference with the A. F. of L., broken off last December.

The garment workers' board said in its resolution today that it had viewed the original C. I. O. as an organizing committee which had undertaken a definite task to organize the workers in the mass production industries.

"Neither in its early, formative period, nor during its period of growth and expansion, did our union countenance the thought or proposal of the C. I. O. as a dual organization," the resolution said.

Oppose Permanent Union.

"We have held, and hold today, that there would be room in the American labor movement for both industrial and craft unions to meet every form of legitimate evolution of labor organization in American industry without dualism and with a minimum of easily adjustable jurisdictional claims.

"It was because of this conviction that our union has from the earliest days of its participation in the C. I. O. sought to bring about a reconciliation of the conflicting interests in the labor movement, exploring every possible opening and opportunity for peace."

The board said that in its opinion the formation of a permanent national union to supercede the C. I. O. would sharpen the conflict in the labor movement and create greater obstacles for an ultimate reconciliation.

Hope for Labor Peace.

"Being vitally interested in the reconciliation of the two parts of the labor movement, we, therefore, decide that until peace is established in the labor movement, or otherwise decided by regular or special convention of our union, we remain an independent union.

"Although unaffiliated with either side, our policy in the future will be to support every genuine effort, whether C. I. O. or A. F. of L., in their organizational activity for the

War on Indiana Political Corruption

END OF THE CROOKED DEAL

Crying Baby Son Killed by Father's Slap

Ralph Koch, 24 years old, soberly walked into state police headquarters at Harlem avenue and Irving Park road late last night and addressed Policeman Irwin Schmidt, who was at the desk.

"I think I killed my baby," he said. "I want to give myself up."

A hurried police investigation quickly confirmed Koch's statement. His infant son, Tod, 4 months old, lay dead in the Chicago State hospital at Dunning. Death resulted apparently from a parental slap. The slap had been inflicted because the baby had cried.

Baby Restless All Evening.

The Koch home is at 4229 North New England avenue. Koch, a WPA worker, was at home last night minding the youngster while his wife, Marci, 20, was at work at a roadside stand at Irving Park road and Central avenue. The infant had been restless all night and wailing.

Koch, a son of Police Lieutenant Edward Koch of Maywood, tried to rock the baby to sleep, but without success. He became distracted over the youngster's prolonged crying and suddenly slapped him on the side of the head.

Works 2 Hours to Revive Child.

The child started to gasp and Koch, alarmed, shook him. Then for two hours he worked desperately to revive him. Finally his father-in-law, Dudley H. Brattin, returned home. He was told what had happened. He hurried the baby to the state hospital and Koch surrendered to police.

"I just lost my head because the baby cried so much. Nothing matters to me now," Koch said to the police. His wife was notified. Koch was turned over to Morton Grove county police to be held pending an inquest today.

WILLIS PLEDGES FINISH FIGHT ON DEMOCRAT RING

Charge Votè Frauds in Six Counties.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Raymond E. Willis, Angola publisher, tonight signed formal petitions for a sweeping federal court investigation of charges that brazen frauds turned the tide of victory away from Republicans in the nip and tuck Indiana elections.

R. E. Willis. [A. P. Photo.]

The demand for a searching inquiry is the opening gun, Willis said, in a finish fight to rid the state of political corruption. Every available weapon will be used, he declared, to expose the alleged misuse of federal funds in elections and the activities of the notorious "2 Per Cent club."

Demand Ballots Be Impounded.

The petitions provide the preliminary battlefield for the huge fight now getting under way. They will seek to have the federal court impound voting machines and ballots in six Indiana counties where, it is charged, election frauds were particularly malodorous Tuesday.

In taking the decisive action, Willis, Republican nominee for the United States senate, said he considered of secondary importance the close senatorial race he lost to Democratic Senator Frederick Van Nuys by last minute votes that appeared to have been held up until they were needed.

The prime issue now, he declared, is to clean up Indiana, to wipe out the bad government and rotten conditions that made possible Tuesday's vote frauds.

Archie N. Bobbitt, Republican state chairman, said the impounding petitions would be filed in federal courts here and in South Bend.

Charges from Terre Haute.

Counties in which votes and machines which the court has been asked to impound are Marion, Lake, Vigo, Vanderburg, Sullivan, and Vermillion. A continuous flow of fraud charges poured in from those counties today while Republican officials were meeting here to decide upon future action.

The worst fraud charges came from Terre Haute, in Vigo county, long notorious as the Tenderloin town of Indiana. They included fraudulent registrations through use of repeaters, open plying of voters with whisky and bribes, tampering with voting machines, strange delays in counting, and the deliberate mutilation of Republican ballots.

Nearly all of Tuesday's contests on the state ticket were neck and neck affairs. As few as 102 ballots separated the winning Democrat from the losing Republican in some instances. It is expected an official count will be necessary to determine, even on the basis of the returns made, the winner in some of the races.

Control Federal Funds.

"All the resources at our command," Willis declared, "will be thrown behind the move for verification of reports of fraud and corruption in many precincts in Indiana, especially those which evidently were held out until late reports were in and which turned apparent victory into seeming defeat for the Republican cause.

"We shall demand a thorough investigation of the methods of raising funds for elections in Indiana, notably by the notorious Two Per Cent club in this state and of the hidden expenditures of that organization, charges of misuse of federal funds appropriated for relief of the unemployed through WPA, and of the exercise of political pressure through fear and coercion by authorities in control of these federal funds.

"As for myself, I wish to say that I consented to enter this race because I believed it my duty to help break machine control of government in Indiana, to wage a fight against reckless use of the people's money,

Windsor Again Wins Favor of British Royalty

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The first meeting between the duke of Windsor and his brother, the duke of Gloucester, since the former's abdication and departure from England, took place at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the Windsors' private apartment in the Hotel Meurice.

The dukes and their duchesses spent the afternoon and evening in each other's company. They lunched and dined together—and perhaps discussed the circumstances under which the former King Edward VIII. and his American born wife, who was Wallis Warfield, may return to England and reënter British court life.

Fly to Paris.

Some observers considered the visit the first of a series of moves for reconciling Edward and his duchess with the British royal family.

The Gloucesters arrived in Marseilles from Africa at 9 o'clock this morning. They were flown to Paris by Wing Commander E. H. Fielden, personal pilot for King George VI. of Great Britain, Edward's brother and successor on the throne. They reached the capital at 12:40 o'clock and went directly to the Hotel Meurice.

No one saw the meeting within the Windsors' apartment, where the two couples lunched together. About 4 o'clock they left the hotel together and were greeted by a crowd of several hundred in the Rue de Rivoli.

Crowd Cheers Duke on Street.

The watchers set up shouts of "Vive le Duc," without specifying which of the two dukes, but doubtless meaning Windsor. He is a popular figure in Paris, whereas the duke of Gloucester is unknown.

The Windsors took the Gloucesters on an automobile trip to visit the Windsors' new home on the Boulevard Suchet. It is being redecorated and they have not yet occupied it.

The four went next to 3 Rue Michel-Ange, which is the home of Baron and Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, who were Windsor's hosts in Austria from the time of his abdication in December, 1936, until the following March. The two couples had tea with the Rothschilds.

Tonight the royal group treated observers to a spectacle of fashion splendor when they left their hotel to dine in a restaurant near the Madeleine church. The former king accompanied his sister-in-law, while Gloucester escorted the duchess of Windsor.

Those who saw the two couples during the day were struck by the cordiality between the duchess of Gloucester, the former Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, and the American born duchess of Windsor.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—It's all right for a wife to be a good cook, but to be an "educated homemaker," said Dr. Clyde H. He gave his definition at the 85th anniversary exercises of Packer Collegiate institute.

EVE AND APPLE DEFENSE FAILS LIQUOR SELLER

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Georgia Court of Appeals went back to the Eve and the apple episode for a precedent yesterday.

Earl Sutton, convicted of illegal liquor possession, asked a new trial on the ground that the jury should have been charged on the law of "entrapping." It was testified at his trial a sherif's agent bought liquor from him and arrested him on the evidence.

Affirming the conviction, the court held: "It is but a repetition of the first plea ever interposed in paradise: 'The serpent beguiled me.' That defense was overruled by the great lawgiver." The ruling added it was no entrapment for officers merely to "furnish opportunity to a criminal who is ready and willing" to commit an offense.

One of her guests will be Mrs. Salisbury Field of Santa Barbara, Cal., stepdaughter of Stevenson. The author's deed provided that Mrs. Cockran should celebrate his birthday by "the sporting of fine raiment, eating of rich meats, and receipt of gifts, compliments and copies of verse."

Drive to Make Chicago World Plane Capital

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Civic leaders and city officials yesterday launched a campaign to bring to Chicago the manufacturing plants of the large airplane manufacturers of the nation. The purpose is to make Chicago the manufacturing center of the aeronautical world as it is the world's air and rail transportation center.

The program is based on the belief that while aviation already has become big business, it is, relatively speaking, in its infancy. Economists and those familiar with engineering advances hold that the flying industry will expand within the next decade until it becomes one of the greatest industrial forces in the nation's life.

War Department Helps.

The plans of the Chicago leaders received formidable support from Washington, where the war department and the army air corps announced yesterday that the federal government is urging the country's important airplane and aerial motor manufacturing plants to move from the sea coasts to inland sites.

Manufacturers of 95 per cent of all the military airplanes and engines purchased by the army and the navy have their factories on either the Atlantic or Pacific coasts. Most of these plants are within 100 miles of the shore line and thus well within range of bombers based on airplane carriers.

Vulnerable in War Time.

In time of war it might be impossible to prevent destruction of such plants. Naturally they would be among the first targets of invaders.

That Chicago and the industrial area at the foot of Lake Michigan should have a large share of the new or branch industries is the logical result of the advantages obtainable here, according to officers of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday.

First, Chicago is close to the sources for all raw materials essential to aeronautical building. The aluminum alloys which constitute the basic structure of all modern aircraft come from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, only 400 miles from Chicago by swift rail freight. It is in Paterson, N. J., site of the Wright Engine com-

REP. DIES RAPS 'TOMTITS'; ASKS NEW QUIZ FUND

Cleveland, O., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.] charged today that "intellectual tomtits" in Washington had hampered his congressional committee's investigation into subversive activities. He explained that "a tomtit is the smallest bird in Texas."

"We can show from 1,000 to 1,500 communists in the employ of the federal government," said the young Texas congressman in an address here before American Legion members.

Dies said his committee has but written the preface of its exposé and is prepared to make new disclosures, "more startling than people ever dreamed of." He announced he will ask congress to appropriate between $200,000 and $300,000 to continue the inquiry for two more years.

use of coercion and undue and unfair pressure on the poor of our state—in short, to help restore in Indiana the confidence of the people in their government.

"The question of a seat in the senate is of secondary importance to me. I mean tc continue the important thing—the battle against bad government.

"The people of Indiana who gave me their support and the thousands more who demanded honesty and integrity in government may rest assured we shall not let them down. We shall continue the fight to the end, today and in the future."

Willis Gets Wide Support.

That Willis had wide support throughout the state was attested by the vote he polled in almost beating Van Nuys. The Republican received 777,620 votes, only 6,535 less than that given Van Nuys.

Willis led up to the last few hundred precincts when a deluge of Van Nuys votes poured in from Terre Haute. These votes, which allegedly were held up until it was determined how many were needed, turned the tide.

Registration of voters in Vigo county, of which Terre Haute is the seat, long has been under suspicion. The registration figures do not square by a long way with the mathematics of the census.

The county had a 1930 population of 98,861. During the depression population decreased, and it is well below the 1930 figure, Republicans insist. Since 40 per cent of the average population is under 21, the census would give a total adult population of only about 62,000. Yet at the time of the primaries in the spring poll books showed 77,180 registered voters in the county.

File 20,635 Challenges.

Republicans filed 20,635 challenges of registration. About 10,900 of these were disallowed on proof that the voters registered had changed address, were properly registered at their new addresses, and had been removed from the lists where they formerly lived.

The Democratic election officials refused challenges on about 5,000 more registrations, and allowed them on about 4,400. Under Indiana law, however, this latter group was allowed to vote by making affidavits at the polls.

Vigo county Republicans say they will be able to produce affidavits from numerous witnesses who say they saw money passed to voters openly, on sidewalks in front of polling places. Liquor was also used freely, it is charged.

Thirty-four precincts of the 93 in Vigo county used voting machines. These machines, it is charged, were largely installed in normally Republican precincts. They made the voting of split tickets difficult. There are further charges that the machines were tampered with so that they did not record all of the votes cast on them.

Only 4 Votes for Willis.

One Terre Haute precinct is reported to have given Willis only four votes, but investigators claim that they will be able to get more than a score of affidavits from voters in that precinct who will say that they cast straight Republican ballots.

This dearth of Republican votes is explained by another of the charges. This is that in the precinct tallies of ballots, short pencil artists erased the cross in the Republican party circle and inserted one in the Democratic circle. This would invalidate the ballot, causing it to be thrown out on the ground that it showed an erasure.

State Chairman Bobbitt, who made a trip to Terre Haute Wednesday evening when reports reached Indianapolis that the Democratic machine there was holding back returns, said today that he was informed that at 4 p. m. on Wednesday, 46 of the precincts had turned in their tallies to the counting canvassing board, 16 more had finished their tallies, some as early as 3 a. m. Wednesday, but had not turned them in, and polls officials in the remaining 31 were still tallying votes.

Investigators Spur Action.

The first investigators from Republican state headquarters reached the town at 4 p. m. Wednesday. Between that time and the time of Bobbitt's arrival, at 6 p. m. all of the 47 missing precincts were speeded to the canvassing board's headquarters in the courthouse at Terre Haute.

When Bobbitt entered the courthouse, Thomas O'Mara, Democratic boss of Vigo county, strode up to him and asserted that his appearance was virtually an accusation that the Democrats were trying to steal the election.

"I'm not accusing you of stealing it, I'm here to prevent it," Bobbitt retorted.

Although the law provides that the canvass of votes shall be conducted publicly, the election board shortly afterward ordered all spectators but newspapermen from the room. Yesterday, when Louis R. Markun, Republican candidate for state auditor, appeared at the canvassing headquarters, two deputy sherifs escorted him from the courthouse.

TRAILED BY BANDIT, WHO TAKES $5.

An armed men last night followed Miss Helen Harter into the vestibule of the apartment building at 5845 Blackstone avenue, where she lives, and robbed her of $5.

GEN. MOSELEY CALLS FOR COALITION TO CURE WOES OF GOVERNMENT

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, who retired from the army Sept. 30, after issuing a statement on national affairs which was termed "flagrantly disloyal" by Harry H. Woodring, secretary of war, returned to the attack today in an Armistice day address before the National Christian convention here.

Gen. Moseley advocated formation of "a coalition government from the cream of all the parties to pull us out of the present mess." The general urged that business be encouraged and the federal budget reduced to 5 billion dollars a year. He also spoke against a third term for President. He recommended that Christians of every creed "unite to save America from communism, Naziism, and Fascism."

"We must unite the good people of America, who still are in the great majority, in one and the same party," he said. "It should be possible to find an outstanding American who never has been a candidate for public office and nominate him in both the Republican and Democratic conventions. We would drift away from the present political parties and eventually there would be two parties—one under the name Liberal, under which all the radicals and the leftists could unite—the other a Progressive Constitutional party, which would not only solve the present difficulties, but which would guarantee our development according to principles fundamental in our democracy."

PRESIDENT SAYS HE'S UNDISMAYED BY VOTE RESULT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—In an atmosphere of heavy gloom President Roosevelt this afternoon sat down with his cabinet for two hours to measure the extent of the Democratic rout in Tuesday's election.

Before the cabinet meeting he told newspapermen that he did not believe the results of the election constituted any threat to the continuation of "liberal government." At his press conference he put on a beaming smile.

Although he insisted at his press conference that he was not worried over any coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans, sources close to the White House said that Mr. Roosevelt fears that his collectivist "more abundant life program" might be sabotaged by such a union.

The President said that he had predicted the Republicans would gain seven senate seats, but they took eight. G. O. P. gains in the house he had set at 65 seats. The G. O. P. gain was 81 seats.

Maywood Will Elect All Trustees from Districts

Division of the village of Maywood into six voting districts, similar to wards, became effective yesterday after publication of an ordinance authorizing the change. Henceforth the six village trustees, instead of being elected at large, will be chosen to represent districts. The districts follow existing precinct lines.

150 MUNCIE WPA WORKERS FIRED AFTER ELECTION

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Discharge of 150 WPA workers from public works projects here today came close on the heels of the Democratic defeat in the city and county election.

Clifford Hilty, county director, however, said politics did not enter into the dismissals. He said he had received orders to curtail the local forces from the district office in Fort Wayne, which he said acted on instructions from Washington.

3 MORE ENTER SCRAMBLE FOR SPEAKER'S JOB

Expect Other Republicans to Make Race.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Three more Republicans entered the field for speaker of the Illinois house of representatives yesterday, bringing the total of announced candidates to six. It would not surprise politicians if four or five additional hats would be in the ring by Jan. 3, when the legislature convenes.

Proclaiming their availability yesterday were Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove; Edward P. Saltiel and Peter C. Granata, both of Chicago. On Thursday Floor Leader Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Chicago; Robert J. Branson, Centralia, and Oral P. Tuttle, Harrisburg.

All these candidacies come as the result of Tuesday's election when 78 Republicans were elected to the house, assuring G. O. P. control by one vote. There will be 75 Democrats, on the basis of the returns.

First Woman in Legislature.

Mrs. O'Neill is Illinois' pioneer woman legislator. She was first elected in 1922 and each successive two years thereafter until 1930, when she ran as a dry for United States senator. Defeated in that race, she was returned to the legislature in 1932 and was reëlected in 1934, 1936, and 1938.

Saltiel is a close friend of Judge Oscar F. Nelson of the Superior court, who may enter the Republican mayoralty primary next February. The representative was the author of the new law providing that couples intending marriage must submit to tests for venereal diseases. He has served two terms in Springfield.

Granata represents the 17th district on the near southwest side, which is heavily populated by Italian-Americans. He has served three terms.

Schnackenberg is believed to be in the strongest position of any of the six candidates at present by virtue of his position as floor leader. He was reported yesterday to be receiving the support of George F. Harding, national committeeman.

Vote Confidence in Moore.

At its first meeting since the Tuesday primary, in which the county ticket went to defeat, the Republican county central committee met yesterday in the La Salle hotel and gave Edward F. Moore, chairman, a unanimous vote of confidence.

The committeemen took heart from the fact that they had reduced the Democratic majority substantially. In addition to Moore they expressed faith in A. K. Stiles, state chairman; Charles A. O'Connor, president of the County Chairmen's association, and Henry A. Gardner, chairman of the campaign committee.

On next Thursday the city ward committeemen will meet to start planning for the mayoralty primary and discuss probable candidacies for the city ticket.

DESCRIBES REDUCTION IN BOSTON CRIME BY JUNIOR POLICE FORCE

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty of Boston, Mass., on his way to visit James Roosevelt at Hollister, Cal., stopped in Chicago between trains yesterday and told of the work being done by Boston's junior police. They number 10,000 boys.

Joseph F. Timilty.

Timilty said the junior police was organized a little more than a year ago and during the last year reduced juvenile delinquency by 35 per cent. He said that Halloween night more than 30,000 children were entertained in Boston police stations.

When he left the North Western depot W. L. McMenimen, Pullman company executive, and James C. Mitchell, deputy commissioner in the internal revenue department, both from Boston, gave him a can of beans to take to young Roosevelt.

ELMER GANTRY, A BLIND HORSE, GETS MOVIE PART

A horse, an accomplished jumper despite the handicap of blindness, is about to enter the movies. He is Elmer Gantry, a deep bay, 15 years old, owned by Miss Eleanor Getzendaner of Des Plaines. Elmer, named after a fictional character in a novel, was a good jumper and racer before he went blind four years ago, and Miss Getzendaner had to train him all over again. Today he is believed to be the only blind jumper in the world. On Monday, according to a press agent's announcement yesterday, a representative of Warner Brothers Pictures will sign Elmer for a movie.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

Nye and Davis Deliver Armistice Warnings.

Twenty years after—

Chicago turned back the calendar yesterday to Nov. 11, 1918—Armistice day. And while the beat of paraders' marching feet recalled the day the world supposedly was made safe for democracy, the beat of speakers' fists drove home their declaration that democracy once more is periled.

At 11 a. m. the hustle and bustle of the city was stilled for sixty seconds as citizens paused to honor the world war dead. Through the loop sounded the bugle notes of taps. Then, throughout the afternoon and evening, there were parades, speeches, and ceremonies commemorating the anniversary.

Nye Speaks at N. U.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] addressed an overflow crowd of Northwestern university students in Fisk hall on the Evanston campus.

"Democracy," he said, "is more sorely challenged today than at any time in history. The United States entered the war to save democracy and the freedom of the seas. Now, the cause this nation thought won, appears lost."

Senator Nye criticized the administration's foreign policy and assailed munitions makers and others who profit from wars. He asserted: "The administration in its neutrality policy has its eyes across the Atlantic and is forgetting the situation across the Pacific. The President has not yet recognized that a state of war exists in China."

He referred to the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay by Japanese in China as an example of use of American scrap iron, gasoline, airplane engines, and gunpowder to endanger American lives.

Davis Asks Common Front.

Chaotic events in Europe and Asia stood like shadows in the background of the address of John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain, before the English Speaking union in the Drake hotel. Davis, president of the union, asserted a common front of English speaking peoples and other nontotalitarian countries would surely prevail against the tyranny of totalitarian states.

"Each passing day," said Davis, "only makes it clearer how much of the destiny of mankind, its progress, its happiness, and its peace, hangs upon unity in sentiment and harmony in action throughout the English speaking world."

Official business of the city and county was carried on by skeleton staffs yesterday. Schools and courts were closed.

Thousands Parade.

In the scores of parades in the city and suburbs thousands of war veterans joined other patriotic organizations, Gold Star Mothers, the R. O. T. C., Boy Scouts, and civic groups in tribute to the soldiers.

The American Legion's annual parade assembled at Michigan avenue and Adams street and marched to State and Madison streets, where services were held. Carson Pirie Scott, Mandel Brothers, and Marine posts participated. The Marshall Field & Co. post held a ceremony in the store.

Neighborhood and suburban Legion posts conducted services and parades. There were Armistice rites at the graves of veterans in the cemeteries. Last evening the Cook County council of the Legion held its twentieth anniversary program in the Medinah temple. Perce Brautigan, commander, and Edward W. Shepherd, illustrious potentate of the temple, spoke.

Gold Star Mothers Meet.

The Gold Star Mothers held their annual luncheon in the Morrison hotel. Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen spoke.

Veterans of Foreign Wars held an Armistice dance last evening in the 131st Infantry armory. Officers of the 369th infantry held their yearly reunion in the Union League club. Eighteen members, led by Col. William Hayward, former United States district attorney in New York, came from the east to attend.

The University of Chicago held services in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel at which a plaque honoring the war dead was accepted by President Robert Maynard Hutchins. The plaque, listing the names of 64 university students who died in the war, was the gift of the class of 1918.

Killed by Truck

Billy Demin, age 2, killed by truck in loop yesterday when he broke away from his mother as they waited to cross alley.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

BABY TUMBLES TO DEATH UNDER TRUCK'S WHEELS

Tugging loose from his mother, Billy Demin, 2 years old, tumbled under the wheel of a truck yesterday and was crushed to death. The mother, Mrs. Mary Demin, was waiting with the child as the truck drove from the alley running into State street between Washington and Randolph streets. The Demin family lives at 8705 Houston avenue. Leon A. Collins, 5116 Crystal street, was driving the truck.

John Zurawski, 55, of 8612 Burnham avenue, was killed by an automobile in front of 9130 South Chicago avenue. Charles W. Germain, 3002 East 79th street, was the driver.

Hit and run drivers caused two deaths. William Janowitz, 66, of 1326 Haddon avenue, was fatally injured while pushing his junk cart at 1125 North Ashland avenue. William K. Martin, 70, of 921 Windsor avenue, died of injuries suffered Thursday when he was struck at Jackson boulevard and Hoyne avenue.

Policeman Robert Mitchell of the accident prevention bureau was injured early today when his ambulance, in which he was driving an accident victim to a hospital, was struck by another car. Mitchell's charge was John Wittbold, 14 years old, 4206 Grand avenue. He had been run down by an automobile at Palatine and Natoma avenues, and Mitchell was taking him to the Belmont hospital. At Milwaukee avenue and Byron street Mitchell's ambulance was hit by the car of Robert Granzow, 25, of 4251 Irving Park road. Although suffering possible leg and arm fractures Mitchell drove Wittbold and himself to the hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 741 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan .1. Of these, 572 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 17,426 were injured in trafic accidents within the city.

Lawyer and Girl Taken for Long Ride and Robbed

Edwin Pizer, 28 years old, a lawyer with offices at 100 West Monroe street, and Miss Esther Seeder, 21, both of 5110 Kenwood avenue, were driven eight miles through south side streets by two bandits late last night and robbed of $3.50. The two were sitting in Pizer's car in front of the Kenwood avenue address when the robbers boarded their car. They drove the couple through south side streets and finally left them at 81st street and Trumbull avenue after taking their money.

AMERICA URGED TO KEEP FAITH WITH WAR DEAD

Strengthen U.S. Defenses, Plea at Tomb.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—On the twentieth anniversary of the first Armistice day, America was called upon to keep the faith with those who gave their lives in the world war by making itself strong enough to maintain peace and democracy in the western hemisphere.

Stephen Chadwick.

Before the white marble tomb of the Unknown Soldier, speakers warned against the smoldering hates of the world war and dedicated this country to the protection of the new world against aggression.

The services opened at 11 a. m.—the hour guns ceased their fire in the world war — when President Roosevelt stood silent before the tomb as Capt. O. J. Callaghan, his naval aid, placed a wreath at the national shrine.

Bugle Sounds Taps.

An infantry bugle sounded the mournful notes of "Taps." With sharp precision army, navy, and marine delegations snapped a salute. Men uncovered and women bowed their heads.

National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick of the American Legion called on the nation to support its officials "with the only voice the leaders of some nations seem to understand—the voice of a virile, alert, efficient military and naval establishment."

"We have a responsibility," he said, "to the whole western hemisphere. Our Monroe Doctrine is not only a philanthropic doctrin; it is a defense policy."

Pershing Urges Action.

Gen. John J. Pershing, American commander in the world war, in a pre-Armistice day statement said that immediate and vigorous action is demanded "lest there be visited on us the recent experience of England and France."

The emphasis on national defense came while army and navy officials were outlining the largest peace time budget ever to be presented to congress. It is estimated to be approximately 1 billion 300 million dollars.

Adding to the significance of the Monroe Doctrine theme was the presence of Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of Cuba's army and that country's dictator.

Later Col. Batista called on the President at the White House, presumably to discuss strengthening of the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba. At the White House he chatted briefly with Gen. Pershing.

After his call Batista said the President had told him he hoped to visit Cuba.

War Industry Group Honors B. M. Baruch, Their Chief

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Twenty years after the armistice those who led American industry in the world war gathered today in a reunion and paid tribute to their leader Bernard M. Baruch, who then was chairman of the war industries board. More than 150 men from all parts of the country, prominent in every field of industrial life, joined in presenting their wartime chief with a bust of himself which, by invitation of the war department, will be placed alongside those of Gen. John J. Pershing and the late Newton D. Baker, then secretary of war, in the main hall of the army war college in Washington.

Sweetheart in a Tavern, Girl Swallows Poison

Miss Betty Lint, 19 years old, 6454 South Francisco avenue, was taken to the Holy Cross hospital last night after she had swallowed a small quantity of poison in what police said apparently was a protest against her sweetheart being in a tavern. He is William Dewey, 28, of 6407 South Francisco avenue, a truck driver. He was in Bert Lindberg's tavern at 2919 West 63d street. She saw him there, walked to the alley in the rear, and took the poison.

FIRST SUBWAY UNIT BIDS TO BE OPENED DEC. 1

Bids for the construction of the first section of the State street subway will be opened at 2 p. m. Dec. 1, Philip Harrington, city subway commissioner, said yesterday. He announced the conditions under which contractors have been formally invited to submit bids. Plans and specifications for the first section—between Illinois street and Bellevue place—will be available Monday, he added.

Each bid must be accompanied by cash or certified check for $125,000 and the award will go to the lowest responsible bidder. The contractor getting the job must have a bond for the full amount of the contract approved by the city council and be ready to start work within three days after the award is made.

It is expected that at least seven or eight Chicago contractors will bid on the project and there is a possibility that out of town concerns, particularly New York subway building firms, will compete.

Italy's King 69 Years Old; Flags Fly in His Honor

ROME, Nov. 11.—(AP)—King Victor Emanuel was 69 years old today, and flags flown from all public buildings were in his honor rather than in observance of Armistice day. Italy celebrated her own Armistice anniversary a week ago.

PARIS GUARDED; ARMISTICE DAY PASSES QUIETLY

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Armistice anniversary was celebrated peacefully today under the watchful eyes of thousands of mobile guards. They had been called to the capital because of fears that war veterans might seize the occasion for demonstrations in favor of a "public safety" cabinet.

Guardsmen quickly broke up a skirmish between about 300 leftists and an equal number of rightists, but it was the only incident in which they were called to intervene. The leftists, singing the "Internationale," clashed with the rightists on the Champs Elysees.

The veterans' demands for a strong government will be heard tomorrow. Premier Edouard Daladier promised to receive a delegation then.

King Leads British Service.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (AP) — Britain honored her soldier dead today, mindful of two wars—one that ended two decades ago and one that did not break out last month. King George VI. of Great Britain led the nation in the world war Armistice day service at the foot of the Cenotaph in Whitehall. Trenches nearby were reminders of the war that was evaded by the Munich agreement.

A DOUGHBOY RECALLS GIFT 21 YRS. AGO AND WRITES HIS THANKS

As a school girl twenty-one years ago Miss Delia C. Mungerson of Geneva helped knit sweaters for the American soldiers over there. Yesterday she received a belated letter thanking her for one of the sweaters. It came from Edward Grimley of Providence, R. I., now in the veterans' hospital at Rutland Heights, Mass.

"I misplaced the address that came with the sweater," Grimley wrote, "but when preparing to enter the hospital found it in an old address book. It brought back to mind the gift I received from you and I am writing this late letter to say I am thankful."

EXPERTS FIND U.S. IS UNREADY IN WAR CRISIS

But Forces Are Gaining Strength Rapidly.

show the relative unpreparedness of this country today. The German army today numbers more than 800,000 men and the organized reserves total 2,000,000. In the Czechoslovak crisis 1,250,000 men were mobilized in four days.

The United States army has some 300,000 men available for immediate mobilization—130,000 in the regular forces and approximately 170,000 in the National Guard. There are approximately 115,000 reserve officers for the rapid expansion of the armed forces in time of emergency,

The American army is as inferior in organization as it is in numbers. It has not developed its units to meet the mobility which is expected to be demanded in the next war.

The German army has forty-eight infantry divisions, four mechanized divisions, and one cavalry brigade. The American regular army has three infantry divisions, one cavalry division, and one mechanized brigade.

German Division Streamlined.

In the German army the normal division has been streamlined down to about 13,000 men. It consists of three regiments of infantry, supporting field artillery of light and medium guns, a unit of cavalry, mechanized units, headquarters unit, engineers, special units, and a supply train.

The German division is built to strike rapidly with power. The American army has barely begun to experiment with the streamlined division and is working toward revamping the army on the German pattern.

In the United States the world war type of division still persists—four regiments of infantry grouped into two brigades, an artillery brigade of three regiments, together with a regiment of combat engineers, special troops, and a quartermaster regiment—a total of about 27,000 men.

Army Planes Total 1,500.

The American army at present has approximately 1,500 airplanes in service, with plans under consideration to increase the air fleet to 7,000 or 10,000 ships.

Germany is keeping her air strength a secret, and estimates of the number of planes which she has vary from 4,000 to 10,000.

The German army is acknowledged to be the best trained and best equipped in the world. Its weapons are the latest developments. It is designed to carry out a new plan of warfare—lightning thrusts at strategic centers. The trench warfare of the world war is considered a thing of the past.

Until recently the best military minds in the country had urged in vain that America keep pace with developments abroad. As early as 1926 Gen. Charles P. Summerall, considered one of the greatest soldiers of his time, demanded that the United States keep pace with other powers and laid down the national defense program which is now being ably carried out by Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staf.

Modernization Under Way.

Until recently the American army had no modern equipment and no hopes of getting any. The war fever abroad has loosened the flow of money from congress and brought the program of modernization now under way.

This program within a few years will cure America's unpreparedness and bring the nation an army and a navy of sufficient strength to ward off any invader.

The army is perfecting plans to place 400,000 men in the field on mobilization day should a foreign power threaten the American shores. The backbone of this force would be the regular army, which is being stepped up to 165,000 enlisted men and 12,760 officers. The rest would come from the National Guard.

This force is far ahead in man power and, even with relatively obsolete equipment, in strength to the army of 1914. The training, particularly of the Guard, is far ahead of that before the war.

Reserve Officers Total 115,000.

The nation has 115,000 reserve officers, who are regularly given training under service conditions, where it had nothing but a handful of medical reserves in 1914. There still is a need for an enlisted reserve.

The fly in the army's ointment is that while 400,000 troops could be brought into line immediately the troops at present could not take the field equipped with arms, ammunition, vehicles, and other equipment—to say nothing of the 600,000 additional soldiers who could be rushed into service within a limited time. These would be recruited from men who have had military training at citizens' camps or with reserve officers' training corps.

The present rate of arms manufacture is not rapid enough to equip troops with needed weapons. Production of the new Garand semi-automatic rifle, which makes one soldier the equal of five armed with the old time Springfield rifle, is measured in months instead of minutes, as it should be in time of war.

Convert Famous 75.

The army is converting the famous wartime 75 into a modern weapon by improving its carriage. The manufacture of a 75 at present would take almost a year. More time would be required for heavy coast defense guns. The manufacture of anti-aircraft guns, of which this country had virtually none and recently ordered 338, will take a year. In order to speed the manufacture, contracts for parts have been let to private companies because federal arsenals are taxed to the limit.

A similar manufacturing difficulty confronts the army in its need for 155 m.m. Howitzers, the newly perfected 105 m.m. Howitzer anti-tank guns, and other artillery. Only in the 75 m.m. class has the army a sufficient number of guns.

The machine gun situation is better now. The 182 parts of the Browning gun require some 300 manufacturing operations. Facilities are insufficient for turning out these weapons in quantity.

Seek to Speed Manufacture.

To meet this problem, Gen. Craig obtained an appropriation, and will ask for additional funds from succeeding congresses for dies and tools for the manufacture of arms and ammunition. These will be stored against a day of emergency so factories could be put to work at once turning out weapons.

If sufficient dies and tools are on hand, the army high command asserts, weapons can be turned out in minutes rather than years. They acknowledged that until provision for rapid manufacture is adequate this country cannot be considered truly prepared.

To the same end, the army is working to establish ammunition reserves for war time use.

Army Short of Chauffeurs.

The army has another problem—a shortage, in event of war, of chauffeurs and mechanics. A study of this was prompted by the difficulties occasioned by a shortage of horsemen in the world war.

During the war the American army purchased and shipped horses in great numbers, chiefly for supply work. Men who knew nothing of horses were assigned to drive and care for the animals, with the result that they were unintentionally mistreated and stricken with various ailments and diseases. Cavalrymen were recalled from all branches of services and assigned to remount duty, with the result that the efficiency of the army was impaired.

Navy Situation Better.

In the navy the situation, though far from rosy, is not as bad as it is in the army. The American fleet is nearer equality with rival fleets than the army is with other land forces. Under the present expansion program the fleet will be the equal of any afloat. There still is a lack of adequate bases, a sufficiently large naval reserve, auxiliary craft, and other necessities, but the situation is improving.

As the navy stands it has fifteen battleships, seven heavy cruisers, twelve light cruisers, forty-eight destroyers, eighty-four submarines, and four aircraft carriers. This enumeration is of underage vessels alone.

Against the fleet Germany could only send one battleship, three heavy cruisers, six light cruisers, thirteen destroyers, and thirty-six submarines. Germany has no aircraft carriers.

The United States is building or has authorized additions to its fleet, which could more than handle the German fleet as it stands. The American navy has a separate air force of 2,050 planes. Under the expansion program the navy's air fleet is to be raised to 3,000 planes.

After 24 Years

These diagrams compare the military and naval strength of the United States and Germany in 1914 and in 1938. The air strength of both nations in 1914 was negligible.

ARMY WILL USE NEW TYPE GUNS TO HALT PLANES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The war department today announced that the army soon will be equipped with new types of thirty-seven millimeter anti-aircraft guns capable of firing at the rate of 120 shells a minute. These weapons can be mounted in batteries of four and fired from a central control system.

The new cannon fires a shell an inch and a half in diameter that explodes on contact. The gun can be mounted on a four wheel trailer and can be towed at high speeds behind a light truck.

The anti-tank gun has been developed from the same cannon. This weapon is similar but lighter and able to fire more rapidly than the thirty-seven millimeter anti-tank guns that have been in the hands of infantry since the world war.

POLAND MASSES MOST OF ARMY ON SOVIET BORDER

Concentrates Modern Arms in the Ukraine.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 11.—A military parade, which was the feature of Poland's 20th birthday celebration today, proved a surprise to foreign military attachés. They watched Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz take a salute from the Warsaw garrison at Mokotov field.

The equipment displayed was so old that the attachés made inquiries. They discovered that all of Poland's modern armaments, together with a major portion of the army, now are concentrated in the Polish Ukraine, most of it opposite the soviet frontier.

Polish military authorities gave as reasons for the concentration the recent riots by Ukrainians which compelled the government again to take pacification measures; the fact that Poland has not abandoned her intention of realizing a common frontier with Hungary through liquidating the autonomous Czechoslovakian state of Ruthenia [sub-Carpathian Russia], and reports received by the Polish staf about serious revolts in the soviet Ukraine, where Moscow's authority is said to be waning.

HUNGARY CLAIMS KASSA, A CZECH CITY, WITH POMP

KASSA, Hungary, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, in a stirring ceremony before this old town's cathedral today claimed the last of the former Czechoslovak area awarded to Hungary by German-Italian arbitration.

Kassa, known to Czechs as Kosice and deriving its name from the Roman general Cassius, has a population of 70,000.

Dressed in a blue uniform and mounted on his favorite white horse, Horthy rode into town at the head of his troops at noon.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS PERIL CHAMBERLAIN DEAL WITH HITLER

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—British public opinion has been so outraged by German violence against Jews, informed quarters said today, that Prime Minister Chamberlain's program of appeasement with Germany may be considerably hampered.

Until yesterday there were persistent rumors that the prime minister soon would seek an opportunity to discuss the colonial question with Reichsfuehrer Hitler as part of a general European settlement. Now it is believed any such negotiations with Germany probably will be postponed.

Officials said Sir George Ogilvie Forbes, British chargé d'affaires in Berlin, had been instructed to take steps to safeguard the persons and property of Jews who are British subjects. They also said British Jews probably would be permitted to use diplomatic channels to claim compensation from Germany for property damaged. British subjects were known to be interested in some of the department stores and other commercial property which suffered.

SEIZE MEMBER OF BUND ON NEW RACE HATE LAW

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special]—A printshop proprietor in West New York, N. J., identified by police as a member of the German-American bund, was under $3,000 bail today on a charge of violating New Jersey's new statute providing a jail sentence or fine for spreading propaganda tending to incite racial or religious hatred.

Police said Ferdinand Hepperle, 6 years old of Guttenberg, possessed stickers bearing pictures caricaturing the Jewish race and slogans reading "vote gentile—buy gentile."

They declared he also had two engravings from which the stickers were printed in his shop here, and carried a bund membership card. Hepperle was held for the Hudson county grand jury.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—(AP)—An offer of $100 to any person who can prove a scientific error in the Bible has withstood the challenge of more than 2,000 persons over a 15 year period and the offer still stands, Dr. Harry Rimmer of Duluth, Minn., said today. Dr. Rimmer, who spoke before the Missouri Christian Endeavor convention, is head of the archeology department of the international organization of research science bureaus. The purpose of the organization is to show that every scientific discovery that touches on the Bible agrees with the scriptures.

GERMANY PUTS HUNDREDS OF JEWS IN CAMPS

Raids Continue; Goebbels Defends Campaign.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—Hundreds of Jewish women stood today before police headquarters in Berlin, weeping and begging for word of fathers, husbands, brothers or sons who have been arrested in the great Nazi anti-Semitic campaign.

The campaign is in retaliation for the murder of Ernst von Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris, who was shot by a Polish Jew Monday. Von Rath died Wednesday.

Behind the police headquarters stood big trucks and trailers, ready to transport hundreds of Jews to the concentration camp of Oranienburg. Several hundred Jews were sent there yesterday.

25,000 Jews Are Seized.

Despite orders to slow up the arrests, raids on Jewish homes continued through last night and today. It is estimated that about 25,000 Jews have been arrested throughout Germany in the last two days. A great number of these will be released, their relatives were told. In Berlin the police stated that it was expected about 1,200 of the prisoners will be sent to concentration camps.

The Nazi raiders also searched Jewish homes for weapons. Eight Jews were arrested on charges of having arms in their possession. This, under a decree issued by Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi secret police, is punishable by a sentence of twenty years in a concentration camp.

Many Jews were released after they proved either that they were officers in the world war military forces or were only part Jewish, or that they had visas to leave for other countries.

Forced to Stand in Cells.

After spending the night tightly packed in overcrowded and smelly cells, they were herded into a courtroom, where a police officer called out: "Those who have a visa to leave Germany step forward." Then he called upon the former officers and the half Aryans. They were released. The full Jews were returned to their cells.

In one of the local police stations in Berlin 200 prisoners were held in a room that was so small they could not move. The Jews tried to make space to enable the elder men to sit on the floor, but this was not allowed. They had to remain standing for eight hours.

Many Jews who came to Berlin hoping to escape the persecution they were suffering in small towns were arrested and sent back to the towns from which they came. There they expect to be rearrested.

Jewish Newspapers Banned.

Jewish newspapers were informed that they were to be banned for three months. Until they can publish again, those working for them will have to rely on charity.

Jewish merchants had been among the few Jews able to earn a living in recent months. After using up their reserve money they, too, will have to rely on charity. They know it will be impossible for them to reopen their wrecked stores or buy new goods after the mob "helped itself to some Christmas presents," to use a phrase coined by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Germany's propaganda minister. On countless stores big signs have appeared, reading: "This is already in Aryan hands."

Insurance companies estimated the damage wrought in the last forty hours at more than $5,000,000.

No Indemnity for Jews.

No Jewish firms will be indemnified, but Aryan house owners whose property was damaged will be granted indemnities if they were properly insured.

In Vienna 1,000 Jews were placed on trains tonight. It was asserted that they were being sent to the Buchenwald concentration camp near Weimar.

In Munich the majority of the 6,000 Jews living there were ordered to leave by tomorrow.

The 2,000 Jews still living in Koenigsberg received orders to clear out within two weeks. Where they can go and find a refuge is a mystery.

In the small market town of Leer, in Frisia, all the Jews were locked up in the market hall in the center of the town. Local authorities said they will keep them there until new anti-Jewish laws are issued. These laws are expected soon.

Goebbels Tells Nazi View.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels summoned representatives of the foreign press this afternoon and outlined the German viewpoint on the events of the last two days. He reminded his listeners of the bitterness the Nazis feel when they hear of a countryman being killed by a Jew who seeks "to awaken the world" to the Nazi danger. Goebbels expressed fear that if these methods were tolerated, "the whole political life of the world would fall prey to gangsterism."

Goebbels denied that he ordered the anti-Semitic outbreak.

"If I had," he said, "there would have been 6 or 7 thousand people on the streets and the matter would have been thoroughly organized."

Goebbels denied that Germany is trying to promote the Jewish question into a world problem, but he admitted that "the Jewish question must be solved internationally."

He added that there can be no doubt that "since 1933, the international anti-Semitic instincts which lie dormant in all peoples have been awakened. The things we have been doing set an example. We have given the world something like an international set of instructions for use."

Record Breaking British Plane

[Acme Photos.]

Sergt. H. B. Gray amid maze of instruments in one of British Wellesley bombers which finished nonstop flight of 7,162 miles last Sunday.

Powerful Lifters

The Vickers Wellesley bombers flown by British airmen to a new nonstop flight record of 7,162 miles last week were probably the greatest weight lifting airplanes ever built. Usually an airplane will carry a load amounting to a little less than its own empty weight. The Wellesleys, weighing 6,520 pounds empty, took off with a gross weight of more than 18,300 pounds.

They are single engined low wing monoplanes. The landing gear retracts within the wing. The span is 74 feet; the length, 39 feet. The motor in the nose of each ship was a Bristol Pegasus, a nine cylinder air cooled radial type developing 950 horsepower for takeoff. A new British controlable pitch propeller with wooden blades was used.

In the picture you are looking toward the tail inside the fuselage. The photographer sat between the wings and his plate shows the navigator's and radio operator's station. Around the man seated here is the plane's radio equipment. The navigator's table is at the right in a vertical position.

The cockpit at the rear was for the reserve pilot—three men were in the crew in each plane. The Wellesleys are built to a new principle called "geodetic" construction. There are no bulkheads or spars in the hull or wings, all the structural loads being taken by a latticework of aluminum alloy tubes. The riveted tubes in the foreground of the picture show where the wings are attached.

FLEET COP SHOWS A BEGGAR PUTS HEART IN WORK

William O'Brien, who has a police record dating to 1917, has been going to back doors in recent weeks pleading that he suffered from a heart ailment. Usually he has received money from kindly housewives.

Yesterday he stopped at 1851 Waveland avenue. Policeman William Madden lives there and he came to the door and became suspicious. Madden was not in uniform, but O'Brien became suspicious, too, and ran. Madden caught him.

"There's nothing wrong with your heart if you can run that fast," the policeman said.

"I just made a mistake," O'Brien replied, "when I went to a policeman's home." He was taken to the North Damen station. He gave his address as 517 North Clark street.

SPEEDY REMOVAL OF TRACKS FROM AIRPORT ASSURED

Await Formal Approval by Rail Trustee.

The Chicago and Western Indiana railroad will formally accept the city's airport enlargement ordinance already passed by the council and will agree to the removal of its tracks from the flying field area within a few days. This was indicated last evening by J. R. Barse, general counsel for the railroad, who returned yesterday from New York.

Since last Tuesday Barse has been conferring with engineers and lawyers of the Bankers' Trust company of New York. The bank is trustee of the railroad's mortgage bonds, and the C. & W. I. cannot become a party to the contract ordinance without the trustee's approval.

"F. E. Morrow, chief engineer for our railroad, and myself spent five days going over the ordinance," said Barse. "We talked with both consulting engineers for the trustee and with the trustee's lawyers.

Board's O. K. Awaited.

"The ordinance appears to us to be satisfactory to the trustee, and it is simply a matter of waiting until the board of directors gives its approval. This should be within a few days. We may get word that the board has acted next week."

As soon as the trustee's notice reaches Chicago the railroad directors will approve the ordinance, thus making it a contract between two parties—the C. & W. I. and the city, Barse predicted.

Under this contract the city agrees to obtain a new right of way that will extend between Cicero and Central avenues along the line of 54th street. This property will be deeded to the C. & W. I. in return for the railroad's existing right of way that bisects the airport property along the line of 59th street.

With the removal of the tracks the entire airport area bounded by 59th and 63d streets, Cicero and Central avenues, can be united into an airport that will be 596 acres in area. It is expected thus to become one of the finest fields in the United States.

City to Build New Tracks.

The tracks will not be shifted, however, until the city has built an entirely new set of tracks on the new right of way. The ordinance provides further that the city shall pay all expenses of the new tracks and costs of removing the old ones.

After both parties have agreed to the ordinance, the city and the railroad jointly will petition the Illinois commerce commission for approval of the proposed transfer of the tracks. The commission is expected to give immediate consent.

Then the city, as agent for the railroad, will begin to acquire the land for the new right of way. Part of this will be by outright purchase and part by condemnation. More than seventy-four separate parcels of land must be obtained. This part of the program is expected to take several months.

BRITAIN TO SET UP MONOPOLY ON AIR TRANSPORT

Takes Fascist Course in Lines' Merger.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Great Britain took another step forward in borrowing the monopoly principle of the Fascist states today when Sir Kingsley Wood, air minister, announced in the house of commons that Britain's two big air line companies—Imperial Airways and the British Airways—would be merged.

The amalgamation means that air transport in this country will become a government monopoly with control exercised by a board of governors to be appointed by the government and responsible to the air minister. Management will follow the lines of radio broadcasting in this country which also is a government monopoly run by governors who are responsible to the postmaster general.

Control Civil Air Transport.

Civil air transport, like broadcasting, will be a state controled corporation in the future. Sir Kingsley announced that legislation setting up a public corporation to acquire the existing undertakings of both air lines soon will be introduced by the government.

Civil aviation has been under fire here for many months. An overhauling was recommended last March in the report made by the committee headed by Lord Cadman and shortly after Sir John Reith, high powered director of the British Broadcasting corporation, was appointed chairman of Imperial Airways in an attempt to resuscitate that air line. Presumably his ministrations did not help Imperial Airways and the merger with the other big line resulted.

Seek to Build Up Civil Flying.

In aviation circles here it was said the government's decision might be expected to eliminate internal competition and add to the prestige of British civil flying which has been suffering under the reputation for slowness of service compared with continental companies operating planes to London.

In announcing the move, Sir Kingsley said the merged companies would be better able to develop overseas civil aviation. Directors of each company will be asked to agree on a price, but if they cannot, the government bill setting up the corporation will provide for a price to be fixed by an arbitral tribunal.

DRIVE TO MAKE CHICAGO WORLD PLANE CAPITAL

Woo Manufacturers, Is Aim of Campaign.

pany, and Hartford, Conn., home of the Pratt & Whitney company, that virtually all the military airplane engines are built. At this time, with the center of the aviation industry in California, these engines are shipped 3,200 miles before they can be used.

Second, Chicago is 700 miles from the nearest coastline and therefore beyond reach of any hostile air force that might raid coastal centers of population. The city would be outside the theater of operations of the country's armed forces in case of an invasion.

The army's planning board recognized this fact by ordering the general headquarters air force to transfer its permanent base from Langley Field, Va., near the coast, to Scott field, Belleville, Ill.

Factories Invited to Move.

The third argument for Chicago is its location almost in the center of a 500 mile circle within which half of the country's population lives. This location provides a wonderful market for commercial planes and assures the great air factories of the future of a labor supply. In this connection the Chicago boosters point out that there have been fewer labor troubles in Chicago than in any other large city in the United States during the recent years of labor unrest.

The association of commerce already has extended invitations to the Boeing Aircraft company at Seattle; Bell Aircraft corporation at Buffalo, N. Y.; Piper Aircraft corporation, Lock Haven, Pa.; Douglas & Northrop combine, and the North American Aviation corporation in Los Angeles.

At the same time the association has been making strenuous efforts to interest Chicago capital in the Howard Aircraft corporation already operating in the Chicago clearing industrial district. The company builds high speed commercial planes designed by Ben O. Howard, famous racing plane builder and speed pilot.

The Howard company is now ready to expand after having proved during three years of operation that its airplanes are ahead of anything else in their class. Howard has a military ship and a twin-engined commercial plane on the drawing boards and needs a larger plant, a testing field of his own, and financial support.

This was the situation when other communities came to the assistance of such manufacturers as Glenn L. Martin, Donald Douglas, and William Boeing.

Plans Move to West Coast.

Chicago's only other airplane builder, E. M. [Matty] Laird, is planning now to close his shop at 5917 South Cicero avenue and move to Chula Vista, Cal., just outside San Diego. Laird also needs funds and more space to build a small high performance two-seater plane.

Oscar G. Mayer, president of the association of commerce, and Fred D. Fagg, former chief of the old bureau of air commerce, who now is head of the association's aviation committee, will hold a meeting early next week to consider new proposals for rousing interest of airplane builders in Chicago.

One suggestion they will consider is the organization of an industrial foundation with a capitalization that would enable it to offer financial assistance to certain manufacturers.

SWISS SEIZE OVER 100 NAZI AGITATORS IN NATION-WIDE DRIVE

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A nation-wide drive on Nazi agitators has netted more than 100 persons in raids. President Johannes Baumann today declared the arrests gave proof the agitators had "personal relations with Germany."

However, he told the Swiss national council [house of representatives] that the police drive "up to the present" had not proved Swiss Nazi groups were directly dependent on Germany. He promised the government would draft "severe" laws to repress Nazi agitation.

He declared that Switzerland, of whose 3,880,000 inhabitants two-thirds are German-speaking, is "ready for all sacrifices to assure our independence and our liberty."

FOURTEEN HOURS A DAY

By CALEB

BUSINESS HAS CHANGED. If you doubt it, read these rules published in a bulletin by a wholesale house something like seventy-five years ago with the announcement that, "The following Rules will be put in force at once:

"Store must be opened from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. the year round.

"Store must be swept; counters, base shelves and showcases dusted; lamps trimmed, filled and chimneys cleaned; pens made; doors and windows opened; a pail of water, also a bucket of coal brought in before breakfast (if there be time to do so), and attend to customers who call.

"The employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, being shaved at the barber's, going to dances and other places of amusement, will surely give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty.

"Men employees are given one evening a week for courting, and two if they go to prayer meeting.

"After fourteen hours of work in the store, the leisure hours should be spent mostly in reading."

The road to success in those days was paved with hard cobblestones, and the going was rough indeed. Did a man seek relief from that tough and narrow road, he was sure to "give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty." Even the course of true love was prescribed and proscribed by rule and regulation.

And yet, by first-hand report, those were not bad days in which to live. For most people in those days liked to work. The belief was commonly held, as it is today by the majority of us, that work was an essential contribution to the community—and work then usually involved strenuous physical labor.

Let us not turn retrogressive eyes toward an older and less advanced age. Surely, considered thought inclines against it. But in the rapid, heady change that sometimes leaves us a bit dizzy, perhaps some of us have jettisoned certain old fashioned ideals that might well be preserved. Of these, one is the belief that honest work of any sort is a creditable pursuit, and that its value is to be tabulated by achievement and not by the hours involved.

No one would suggest that we need to work fourteen hours a day to accomplish what our grandfathers did—but even today few men who regulate their work, or thoughts about work, by the clock achieve lasting and outstanding success. Go over the list of your successful acquaintances and see whether that statement holds true.

C. I. O. CRUMBLES AS BIG GARMENT UNION PULLS OUT

Third Largest Unit Votes to Desert Lewis.

improvement of the condition of the workers and every effort to achieve peace in the labor movement."

Vice President Charles S. Zimmerman, leader of a New York local with 30,000 members, had been expected to cast a dissenting vote. However, he supported the resolution, saying he agreed with the content and spirit of the resolution, although believing that delegates should be sent to the C. I. O. convention in order to advocate unity.

Largest Unit in New York.

The garment workers' union is the largest C. I. O. union in New York state, having a membership of 150,000 in New York City and vicinity.

Dubinsky, as head of the union, has been a constant critic of Lewis' fumbling of peace efforts with William Green and his A. F. of L.

Another of the original founders of the C. I. O., Max Zaritsky, leader of 40,000 millinery workers, broke away from Lewis and the C. I. O. last spring. He let it be known that he would drop his personal membership. His union, the United Hatter, Cap, and Millinery Workers, had remained in the A. F. of L.

The major contributing factor to the C. I. O. breakdown has been Lewis' willingness to have the C. I. O. serve as a haven for communists and other radicals against the better advice of other C. I. O. leaders.

Bridges Causes Withdrawals.

The garment workers' union, together with locals of the United Automobile Workers, United Rubber Workers, and United Shoe Workers, all withdrew from the C. I. O. industrial council in California in protest against alleged dictatorial and communist policies of Harry Bridges, alien C. I. O. leader on the west coast.

The Dies house committee investigating un-American activities has definitly linked Bridges with the communist movement on the Pacific coast and has censured Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins for failing to have him deported.

Francis Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers and high in the directorate of the Textile Workers' organizing committee, broke with the C. I. O. because of communistic coddling.

Martin Near New Break.

Word from Pittsburgh discloses that Homer Martin, president of the C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers, is also on the verge of another break with Lewis. The quarrel with Lewis over the latter's reinstatement of four officials that Martin ousted as communists was believed patched up.

Martin revealed that the anti-Martin group, headed by the reinstated officials, have succeeded in purging three of Martin's chief assistants.

The Dies committee hearings revealed extensive activities of communists and other revolutionary radicals in the C. I. O. strikes. Martin is scheduled to appear before the committee next week to tell what he knows of communists in the labor movement.

Thus Lewis hears rumblings of discontent on all sides as he prepares to save a crumbling organization, which he formed three years ago.

Aimee McPherson's Illness Will Confine Her 3 Weeks

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Bronchitis and nervous exhaustion will keep Aimee Semple McPherson from her Angelus temple pulpit for at least three more weeks, Giles Knight, her business manager, announced today. Dr. Gerald B. Winrod, defeated last August for the Kansas gubernatorial nomination and target of campaign charges of Nazi sympathies, will occupy the pulpit during the evangelist's absence. Mrs. McPherson will leave next week for New Orleans for a two weeks' rest.

Vandals Smash Windows in Two Bakery Stores

Windows in two Schlosser bakery stores were smashed by vandals late last night. Shortly before 11 p. m. two men drove up to the store at 2445 Devon avenue and one of them threw a brick through the window. About an hour later the same two men, according to descriptions, smashed the store window at 4052 Madison street. Bakery officials denied any labor trouble existed.

Close Jackson Boulevard Monday to Repair Bridge

Jackson boulevard, between Market and Canal streets, will be closed Monday while the Chicago river bridge is being repaired. East bound trafic will use Van Buren street and westbound trafic will take Adams street, said Otto K. Jelinek, city trafic engineer.

Lillian Layton (left), whose secret husband killed himself, with her sister, Shirley, after she had "passed" lie detector test.

Lillian Layton, 21 years old, whose secret husband, Richard Novick, shot himself to death in a parking lot near Diversey parkway and Commonwealth avenue early Thursday, submitted to a lie detector test in the police laboratory yesterday. She was released after the test.

Investigators said they were content with her story of the shooting and her explanation of her marriage to Novick fourteen months ago in Iowa. She said the marriage was never consummated. The young woman lives at 632 Melrose street. Her husband, who was 25, lived at 1309 Addison street.

Novick killed himself when she refused to go to California with him, she said. She told police she did not wish to attend his funeral, held yesterday in the chapel at 5145 Broadway.

BOMB SHATTERS AMERICAN STORE IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A bomb hurled in front of the American Dress company store on one of New Jerusalem's busiest streets today shattered windows and wounded one person. The store is owned by New York and Chicago interests.

British troops fought a band of Arabs at Beit Fukir, near Nablus, earlier in the day and twenty of the band were reported killed.

The customary Armistice day ceremonies were canceled because of the persistent disorder, but relatives and friends of the 12,000 British soldiers who died in the conquest of Palestine went to cemeteries to decorate the graves.

START BUILDING TWO WAY POLICE RADIO MONDAY

Police Commissioner Allman said yesterday that construction of the city's new two-way police radio transmitter will begin Monday on the roof of the Field building, Clark and Adams streets. The working of the new sets was explained to Mayor Kelly by Fred Schnell, police department radio engineer. The cost of the transmitter will be about $1,000. The new radios, costing $300 each, will be installed in each of the 200 police squad cars by the middle of 1939.

WPA BOSS DIES AFTER SLUGGING; 2 WORKERS HELD

Fatal Fight in Office Follows Dismissal.

Charles Cummings, superintendent of a Works Progress administration project in Calumet Park, died last night in St. Francis hospital, Blue Island. He was slugged Thursday by two WPA workers whom he had just dismissed for quitting work twenty-five minutes early. The WPA sluggers were held last night by county highway police at Homewood. They were charged with manslaughter.

One of them is Benjamin Simons, 30 years old, 12314 Green street, Calumet Park. For several years he fought as an amateur heavyweight boxer. Held with him is Walter Wielgorecki, 30, of 12334 Ashland avenue, Calumet Park, a brother of Matthew Wielgorecki, the suburb's chief of police.

First of Kind in State.

The death of Cummings was the first fatality arising from violence on a WPA project in Illinois, according to Charles E. Miner, state WPA director. Miner said there have been six similar attacks in connection with Chicago projects in the last three years and between twelve and fifteen in the state.

The attack on Cummings, who was 50 years old, had its origin at 127th street and Page avenue in the suburb, where the WPA is paving the street. Regular quitting time on the project is 4:30 p. m. At 4:05 p. m. Thursday Simons and Wielgorecki picked up their tools and started to leave.

"Every one on the project has to leave his tools in WPA headquarters in the village hall," Simons said last night. "That is twelve blocks away. Every one else on the project has an automobile. Because Wielgorecki and I had none we left early to get to the hall at the same time as the other men."

When the two men started to leave on Thursday the assistant project superintendent, Harry Sanford, ordered them to keep working. They disregarded his order and walked to headquarters.

Receive Dismissal Slips.

Sanford, who had driven ahead in his car, met them at the hall and handed them dismissal slips. The slips had been signed by Cummings. Laying down their tools, Simons and Wielgorecki went into Cummings' office. Most of the other men on the project had arrived by this time.

When Cummings refused to reinstate them Simons became angry, he told police, reached across the desk and took off Cummings' glasses. Cummings stood up. According to witnesses, both men attacked him. Last night each accused the other of striking him first.

Sanford, who saw the attack, picked up a chair and rushed to Cummings' defense. Other workers joined him. In the ensuing fight Cummings fell. His head struck the corner of a table. Four of the other workers suffered black eyes. They have filed complaints against Simons and Wielgorecki.

Both Simons and Wielgorecki are married. Simons has two children and Wielgorecki four. Cummings lived at 12802 South Western avenue, Blue Island.

WOMAN DOCTOR APPOINTED.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Dr. Wilma Craft today was appointed resident physician at the Macon county tuberculosis sanatorium by Dr. D. O. N. Lindberg, hospital superintendent and medical director. She will begin work Jan. 1.

HUNT BROTHERS IN BELVIDERE MAIL ROBBERY

Postal inspectors said yesterday they are seeking Ray Bruce and his brother, Floyd, ex-convicts, for the robbery Thursday of a mail pouch containing $13,000 from a mail truck at Belvidere in Boone county.

Floyd Bruce, inspectors said, has been identified partially as the driver of the car in which the two robbers fled after the holdup. The brothers are also sought for the $25,000 robbery and murder of a mail messenger at Guthrie, Ky., last Jan. 5, and the $24,800 mail robbery last Dec. 3 at Lockport.

Inspectors said they were investigating the possibility of the bandit gang receiving inside information on the time of the currency shipments. Rewards have been posted for the arrest of the Bruce brothers.

RAPIST'S VICTIM SLAIN WITH GAS, CORONER FINDS

Miss Frieda Borman, 23 years old, of West Gary, Ind., whose body was found in a lonely road near Griffith, Ind., on Nov. 3, was raped and probably slain with an irritating vapor or gas that may have been chloroform.

This was the substance of a report received yesterday by Dr. J. Robert Doty, coroner of Lake county, from Dr. E. R. Strauser of Chicago. Coroner Doty said the report confirms his theory that Miss Borman was murdered.

At one time Gary police theorized that the young woman had committed suicide, because a bottle which had contained poison was found near her body. Dr. Strauser reported, however, that no poison was found in her stomach.

LOOP FIRE TIES UP TRAFIC.

Fire trucks temporarily tied up trafic in the west end of the loop during the rush hour last evening as the result of a minor fire in the Loop Tobacco company quarters at 190 West Randolph street.

JAPANESE TAKE 'GATEWAY' CITY IN HUNAN DRIVE

Storm Walls by Moonlight; Advance Continues.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 12 [Saturday].—(AP)—Japanese troops early today occupied Yochow, gateway to Hunan province, registering a major gain in their drive on Changsha, the Hunan capital.

Battering down Chinese resistance the invaders fought their way across the walls of Yochow by moonlight. The victory gave them possession of an important rail and river center and placed them within eighty miles of Changsha.

Troops Land at Linsiang.

Warships which accompanied the advance from Hankow, 122 miles downstream, landed troops at Linsiang, a Yangtze river port. These troops were designated to mop up the area around the mouth of Lake Tungting, which connects with the Yangtze just above Yochow.

Japanese troops pressed on toward Changsha, Hunan province capital, today after capturing the walled city of Yochow. One column was bearing down on Sinshin and another was pressing toward Pingkiang (1). Near Nanchang the Japanese reported the Chinese were abandoning their Feng river defense line (2). To the north (3) Chinese reported a counterattack against Maping.

At daybreak the Japanese continued their advance with two columns. One moved down the railway paralleling the shores of Lake Tungting. This force did not expect major opposition before reaching Sinshin, forty-five miles south of Yochow.

Report Chinese Withdrawing.

With the fall of Yochow the Japanese reported the Chinese were withdrawing from their Feng river line protecting Nanchang, Chinese air base in Kiangsi province.

Chinese asserted that 600 Japanese were killed in a Chinese counter-attack against Maping. The attack, they said, blocked the invaders' advance against Suihsien.

SPANISH REBELS POUND LOYALIST BLOCKHOUSE LINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PERPIGNAN, France [Near the Spanish Frontier], Nov. 11.—Both loyalist and rebel armies, locked in battle on the Segre river in northeast Spain, reinforced their lines under cover of fog today. The battle, now five days old, raged on as insurgent commanders struggled to seize a line of blockhouses west of the river.

In these the loyalists resisted heavy artillery fire and bombing from the air all day yesterday.

Reports from government sources said the battle, which resulted from a loyalist offensive, was being fought on terrain favorable to their troops. The rebels, on the other hand, maintained the government's offensive toward Lerida and Fraga had been stopped.

COURTNEY'S MEN LET AXES COOL OFF FOR A DAY

State's Attorney Courtney's ax raiders took a holiday yesterday. Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the prosecutor's police, denied, however, that the lack of energy shown by the axmen in the last week is any sign that they may stop breaking up handbooks. Thus far the chopping squads have smashed 633 handbooks in all sections of the city. Only nine of these were accounted for in three days this week. Capt. Gilbert said his men would be back today.

Children's Book Week Awakens Reader Interest

Nov. 13 to 19 is the 20th annual Children's Book week—or, as the authorities choose to designate it, merely Book week. Perhaps they are right in omitting "Children's," for almost as many adults as children are stimulated by this annual celebration.

Schools, libraries, most of the national magazines, the motion picture producers and distributors of America, and the three national radio networks, Mutual, Columbia, and N. B. C., are all celebrating Book week officially under the slogan "New Books—New Worlds."

There have never been a larger number or more alluring books for children than this year's crop. A new reality has come into them. There are an increasing number about actual jobs, illustrated with actual photographs. More and more, fiction is founded upon fact. Backgrounds are veracious word pictures of far [or near] places. More and more well known writers for adults are writing books for children. In a word, children are not being talked down to, nor talked or preached at, in present day literature. They are being treated as human beings.

Of this year's juveniles the following are especially recommended by the American Library association. This group was chosen by vote by librarians.

For Younger Children

"Wee Gillis," by Munro Leaf. [Viking, $1.50.] Pictures by Robert Lawson.

The creators of "Ferdinand," one of the most joyous of recent juveniles, here collaborate in telling about Wee Gillis, whose father was a Highlander and whose mother was a Lowlander and who had to make up his mind which he would be. Being a canny Scot, Wee Gillis solved his dilemma with finesse. Delightful story and pictures.

"Dancing Tom," by Elizabeth Coatsworth. [Macmillan, $1.]

With a pet dancing pig for comic relief, this fine record of a pioneer family's trip down the Mississippi on a flat boat is authentic Americana for the young. Profusely illustrated by Grace Paull.

"Copper-Toed Boots," by Marguerite de Angeli. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.]

A boy in a Michigan village more than sixty years ago—the author's father—was the inspiration for this amusing, tenderly real picture of American town life. Illustrated in black and white and in color by the author.

"The Big Goose and the Little White Duck," by Meindert de Jong. [Harpers, $2.]

This is about the Big Goose who became such a protection on the farm that the grandfather had to relent, although he had sworn to roast him for his 88th birthday dinner. Illustrated in color by Edna Potter.

"French Canada," by Hazel Boswell. [Viking, $2.]

With charming full page color sketches, which follow the design the French Canadian women use for their hooked rugs, and in straightforward informative prose, Hazel Boswell describes scenes of historic interest and quaintness in French Canada.

"Wee Brigit O'Toole," by Ruth and Richard Holberg. [Doubleday-Doran, $1.]

This brief, gay little tale of a sleighride party to Mr. Syrup's [the milkman's] farm is delightfully illustrated in black and white and in color by the authors.

"Hello, the Boat! by Phyllis Crawford. [Holt, $2.]

"Hello, the Boat!" tells how one hardy family met the depression of 1817 by taking a flatboat fitted out as a store down the Ohio from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati. Authentic and interesting Americana. Winner of the Julia Ellsworth Ford foundation $3,000 award. Illustrated by Edward Laning.

"Benjie's Hat," by Mabel Leigh Hunt. [Stokes, $1.75.]

A little Quaker boy, who hated wearing hand-me-down hats, tried devious means of getting a hat of his own, and finally achieved one, is the hero of this humorous tale. Amusing illustrations by Grace Paull.

"Ann of Bar-Ton Ranch," by Elizabeth Welty Stevens. [Knopf, $2.]

This is a story of a real little girl in pioneer Wyoming, where learning to ride and rope horses was as much a part of everyday life as playing with dolls, and even a stagecoach robbery could and did happen. Illustrated by Susanne Suba.

"Thimble Summer," by Elizabeth Enright. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.]

"Thimble Summer" is a delightful story of a little girl's summer on a farm, with Timmy, her pet prize pig, playing one of the major rôles in the entertainment. Illustrated in black and white and in color by the author.

For Older Children

"Leader by Destiny," by Jeanette Eaton. [Harcourt Brace, $3.]

This fine, scholarly biography of George Washington gives young people a human being to take the place of a historic monument. Illustrated by Jack Manley Rosé.

"Deep Flowing Brook," by Madeleine B. Goss. [Holt, $2.50.]

This human and stimulating biography of Johann Sebastian Bach shows how his music was influenced by his religious nature and his love for his family. Illustrated by Elinore Blaisdell.

"Penn," by Elizabeth Janet Gray. [Viking, $2.50.]

"Penn" is an excellent biography of the founder of Pennsylvania, who "knew victory and defeat, failure and success, great happiness and great sorrow." Illustrated by George Gillett Whitney.

"At the Sign of the Golden Compass," by Eric P. Kelly. [Macmillan, $2.]

With fictional adventure the author illumines the facts of the early days of printing in 1576, in the famous printing house of Christopher Plantin at Antwerp. Illustrated by Rymond Lufkin, following material and pictures in the Plantin museum.

"Bound Girl of Cobble Hill," by Lois Lenski. [Stokes, $2.]

The life of New England in 1789, the year of George Washington's inauguration, is absorbingly and accurately recreated in the background of the tale of little Mindwell Gibbs, orphaned by the revolution, indentured to her uncle, a tavern keeper. Amusingly illustrated by the author.

"Klondike Gold," by Hubert Coryell. [Macmillan, $2.]

Against the adventurous background of Alaska in the gold rush of 1898 is told the story of a courageous boy's fight against terrific hardship and of the realization of his dream to study medicine. Illustrated by Armstrong Sperry.

"Honey of the Nile," by Erick Berry. [Oxford, $2.]

With its authenticity of detail carefully checked by scholars in Egyptology, this swiftly moving imaginative historical tale offers a fictionized solution to the mystery of what happened to the young queen Ankhes, wife of Tutankh Amun, after his spectacular death. Illustrated by the author.

"The Great Road," by Frederic Arnold Kummer. [Winston, $2.50.]

"The Great Road" chronicles fourteen dramatic episodes covering a period of 6,000 years in the history of the thousand mile road leading from Mesapotamia to Egypt. Illustrated by John R. Flanagan.

"House by the Sea," by Hildegarde Hoyt Swift. [Harcourt Brace, $2.]

With the background of a 300 year old house on Long Island sound, children will see and feel American history in the making in these pages. Illustrations by Lynd Ward. F. B.

Two Small Books Begin a Survey of English Literature

Two small volumes, the first in a series on the history of English literature, give a vital general survey of the literature of the period, devoting two-thirds of each book to a bibliography and short critical notes on each important writer. "The English Renaissance 1510-1688" is by Prof. V. de Sola Pinto, and "The Victorians and After 1830-1914," is by Bonamy Dobree and E. C. Batho [McBride, $2.50 each].

You CAN GET WHAT YOU WANT

—when you Know how to make people ACT THE WAY YOU WANT THEM TO

HOW TO SAY THE CONVINCING WORD IN EVERY SITUATION

when speaking in private — when speaking in public — when writing for a purpose

MIGHTY few things can anyone get out of life without going to others. The man or woman who wants to make money; wants to hold a fine position; wants to wield influence and power; and yes, wants to succeed in love and marriage—MUST learn to make others act the way they want them to. This book tells how.

It doesn't just put a lot of fine words and phrases into your mouth. It shows you what motivates people, shows why and how they react to this and that approach. It shows you how to analyze your listener, how to determine what mood he is in, what his interests are, tells you about the several selves he is composed of. Tells you, too, how to analyze yourself—explains what makes him tick and what makes you tick. After that it's easy sailing—you can get together on that sale of goods, that new position, that increase in salary, that new idea. You can get and hold the interest of one or of one thousand. You can say THE CONVINCING WORD in every situation.

hypocrisy—there now emerges something sound, something real, something practical. Professor Watkins does not insult your intelligence by telling you that the way upward is by fawning and flattery, that all you need do is make a yes-man of yourself and a door mat of your ambitions. He shows you how to gain your ends—uprightly, confidently, courageously—by using the plain, long-established truths of practical psychology. Now for the first time, he takes these truths out of the stodgy, stuffy atmosphere of scientific textbooks and musty classrooms, rewords them in everyman's language and makes them your own powerful allies. This book is called THE CONVINCING WORD—because after all is said and done, you WIN by the CONVICTION of every word you utter, every word you write. But the secret of this book is that it makes you use the convincing word in every situation because now at last you understand how to enter the avenues of the other man's thinking that will surely result in gaining your own ends.

For the executive, the sales manager and salesman; the preacher, lawyer, doctor, professor or school teacher; for writers, publicity and advertising men; for the merchant and the large store department head, and for the banker. For everyone who is none of these now but who aspires to a position of authority, respect, money and the things that money can buy—we say this is the soundest, most practical book of brass tack helpfulness that has been written in the last decade.

Practical Applied Psychology

Now Reduced to Simple ABC's

by DWIGHT EVERETT WATKINS, A.M.

Associate Professor Public Speaking, University of California

After all the hue and cry is over, after all the shouting and the tumult dies over books written down to the unthinking and the gullible, books that promise the key to success and deliver only a blather of shameful and fatal

Shows You How to:

- Know the basic laws that govern everyone's actions.
- Gain attention by using ALL the senses.
- Size up and classify your listener and select the best approach to his attention and good will.
- Make words your most useful tools.
- Play upon the emotions while still appealing to your listener's reason.
- Influence others through imagination and suggestion.
- Overcome fear by turning it to your own advantage.
- Say the right thing, first, second, last.
- Marshal your facts and use your past experience.
- Bring a winning personality to your aid.
- Talk in conference.
- Cultivate voice and expression.
- Make your words remain convincing tomorrow.

Beautifully printed in large, clear type on fine antique book paper, bound in expensive cloth with silk headbands and stamped in gold. Nearly 400 pages profusely illustrated.

Novelist Foster Fulfills Part of Literary Hopes

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"To Remember at Midnight," by Michael Foster. [Morrow, $2.50.] Published Wednesday.

"American Dream" was a first novel which immediately placed its author in the ranks of important American novelists. Michael Foster became with its publication a young writer to pin hopes upon as well as medals. Some of those hopes have been fulfilled in "To Remember at Midnight," but not all of them.

"American Dream" pointed to a career of novels celebrating the peculiar innateness of the American character, novels which said more than the mere printed word about what has made and will make us strong and powerful as a nation and as individuals. Individuals, alive and vital, but likewise American types, made its pages memorable.

In "To Remember at Midnight" Mr. Foster has chosen to concentrate on an individual and to delve into character, but that individuality and that character are not the inevitable products of an American way of life. The story is of the romantic career of a child cradled in the tray of a theatrical trunk, growing to adolescence in the spiritual and physical barrenness of a stepmother's indifference and a butte shadowed ranch in Montana, beglittered for a short time by a tawdry vaudeville tour, and thrust into its final pattern by an incurable romanticist's romantic gesture. Shining through the texture of that pattern is the devotion of Jake Banion, whose own life pattern is romantic with a dash of irony, crusted with realism.

With those two characters Mr. Foster has for the most part done something solid and fine. Mary McGonigle, ancient crone of the buttes, in her brief moments also lives. Often William Henry, Ann's grandiose father, breathes with life, but not always. The other characters are casually treated. "To Remember at Midnight" will achieve popularity; but it will not excite the critics of American literature as "American Dream" did.

FOR YOUNGER CHILDREN.

"The Cottage at Bantry Bay," by Hildavan Stockum. [Viking, $2.]

Mother and Father O'Sullivan and their four children live vividly in these pages in the Irish cottage where there is sometimes not enough of anything, but where every day is highlighted with happiness. Illustrated by the author.

"Sing for Your Supper," by Eleanor Farjeon. [Stokes, $1.50.]

This is a volume of merry and imaginative poems by the author of "Martin Pippin in the Apple Orchard." Illustrated by Isobel and John Morton Sale.

"The Far Distant Oxus," by Katherine Hull and Pamela Whitlock. [Macmillan, $2.]

Two English girls, fifteen and sixteen, wrote without any help or criticism from grownups this lively and real story of a summer holiday in England. Arthur Ransome, in an introduction, calls it an "astonishing book."

"Andy and the Lion," by James Daugherty. [Viking, $1.50.]

Andy, a twentieth century Androcles, plucks a thorn from a lion's paw and finds himself the hero in a circus. Humorous drawings by the author embellish the fun of the text.

"Pedro's Coconut Skates," by Esther Wood. [Longmans - Green, $1.50.]

Against the vividly pictured background of a village in the Philippines is told the story of a little native boy whose curiosity eventually led to the realization of his grandmother's dream of a house of their own. Illustrated by the author.

FOR OLDER CHILDREN.

"Red Sky Over Rome," by Anne D. Kyle. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.]

This is a vivid romantic tale of a young American girl living in Rome during the Italian revolution of 1849. Authentic historical background. Illustrated by Marguerite de Angeli.

"The Little American Girl," by Marjorie Hill Allee. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.]

A 17 year old sophomore in an American college has a wonderful year in Paris as a helper in the Quaker International center in this story. How she makes new friends, learns a new language, and "grows up" is here happily recorded against the living Paris scene. Illustrated by Paul Quinn.

"Sou'wester Goes North," by Arthur H. Baldwin. [Random, $2.]

This is a thrilling sea story of shipwreck, smugglers, and hardships endured and triumphed over by three boys who sail to Nova Scotia in search of summer work. Illustrated by Gordon Grant.

"Sylvia, Inc.," by Margaret Thomsen Raymond. [Dodd Mead, $2.]

The resourceful, exciting, but not easy success of two modern girls in a pottery manufacturing business is told in this story.

"Highway Past Her Door," by Mary Wolfe Thompson. [Longmans Green, $2.]

This tale engagingly pictures a girl's eventual success in managing a roadside stand to sell farm produce.

Finds Country and City Folk Read Same Books

Country and city dwellers in America are now reading the same books, according to "Rural America Reads," by Marion Humble [American Association for Adult Education, $1]. She attributes this to the interest spread by book reviews in newspapers and magazines and over the radio. She surveys the rural libraries in the United States.

NEW LEADERS.

A new generation has come to the front in Republican affairs. The future is with the Deweys, the Tafts, the Lodges, the Saltonstalls, the Stassens, and many others of the same type who participated in the revival of the party last Tuesday. Most of these men have the prestige of victory; others, like Dewey, fell just short of success but in doing so proved their capacity. Starting from scratch, they all but defeated the most ruthless political machine, possessed of unlimited funds, which this country has ever seen.

The outlook is bright. The young men have taken leadership of their party and in the country by reason of character and energy. Whatever may be said for and against the older generation, time has passed it by. The new leaders are firmly in command. They may turn to the older men for advice and aid from time to time but the decisions will be made by the younger men. Today in the Republican party the adage, "Old men for counsel, young men for war," is effective.

No doubt the success of Mr. Lodge two years ago encouraged Mr. Saltonstall to make his fight this year. The widespread Republican gains of 1938 have likewise proved to an entire generation that the country is eager to turn from the wreckers, corruptionists, and visionaries to follow men of proved honesty, energy, capacity, and common sense. If such men will come forward they can be elected despite all the jobbery and all the slush funds.

The opportunities are great. Wherever younger men of character have asserted themselves they have made their mark, but there are many states and communities in which the field is still wide open. In Illinois, for example, distinguished careers await dozens and even hundreds of energetic and patriotic men and women. At no time in the party's history has there been so favorable a moment for young Republicans ambitious to serve their country.

A generation ago a young man in politics had to fight his way to the front and he was lucky if he achieved a position of influence before his hair was white and his waistline had disappeared. Today, in the Republican party, the oldsters have voluntarily withdrawn. The Democratic party in many states is still dominated by its old men, steeped in corruption and trickery. The future belongs to the Republicans and particularly to the younger men among them who have the ambition and courage to volunteer for the fight.

ARMISTICE TWENTY YEARS LATER.

When the whistles blew yesterday for the period of memory and respect the people could take a long view of the twenty years which have followed the rejoicings of Nov. 11, 1918. Twenty years ago the purposes of the war were thought to have been accomplished. Americans had taken part in it in good faith and the sacrifices were made with an understanding that the world was to be a better place. Americans were not the only people who believed that the better side had won and that nations had been released from certain forms of government which were anachronistic and dangerous.

People thought that what they called democracy had won. They thought that the war to end war had been successful and that peace would be preserved in the future much more easily than it had been in the past. These hopes have all been disappointed. Many reasons for it could be advanced, diverse reasons which seek to place responsibility in many quarters. There is much truth in many of these explanations. The men who directed national policies after the war behaved unwisely. Many of them had motives which were not commendable. Some of the mistakes came from fear and some from ambition.

There was a great deal of greed in the treatment the victors gave the vanquished and the contradictions which put pretense in the front and left violence so strong in the rear are now clearly perceived, both for what they were and for what their consequences have been. It may be profitless to thrash out these old controversies again. They have dealt with men and men must make the best of them. The best that can be obtained from the mistakes now is a lesson. People are forced to think that the world in 1938 is not so good as it was in 1914.

The war didn't end war. It didn't destroy despotic governments where they were and it didn't make democracy safe. The lesson has been applied in the last few months. A great many people think the present peace is dishonorable, but it nevertheless is peace. It must be conceded that there are some broken promises in the making of it and that the dictatorial nations which are brutal in their philosophy of government and threatening in their approach to international questions have been not only recognized but have been given their way.

The statesmen who have made the decisions which avoided war or avoided what they thought certainly would be war are relying upon time to do in the present troubles what armies did not do twenty years ago. Things do change. Fevers subside, anger wears itself out, and men die in bed. Europe as it exists today may be within the life tenure of a few men. When they pass away conditions may change. Optimists rely somewhat upon the fact that it isn't normal human nature to be forever in a frenzy.

America went into the war in the best of faith and it pays its profound respects to the men who sacrificed themselves for what they thought to be good and what they thought would have lasting consequences. They could do no more than they did. Recent years have taught the people some truths which may be disagreeable to the finer ideals of mankind, but which are better to be known as truths than to be disregarded. At this time Americans are not justified in believing that they can make a permanent change in the habits of European peoples or governments by throwing themselves sacrificially into events which are beyond their control.

Much of the world is in convulsions which cannot be regarded as a status. It is not to be believed that misfortunes engulfing so many peoples represent permanent conditions. That is not the way human nature plots its course. The peaceable governments which have been so much criticized may have found a better way. Alarmists think they will pay bitterly for what they have done. There is too much despair in that. The world may indeed find that time is a better medicine than the cures found in bombs.

THE MOB IN NAZI REICH.

A fresh outbreak of violence against the Jews in the capital city of the Nazi reich is a very poor tribute to the alleged merits of dictatorial government. The outbreak was much wider than the first report indicated, extending to Vienna, but THE TRIBUNE correspondent, Sigrid Schultz, gives a specially vivid account of the outrages in Berlin within her own knowledge. Jewish business establishments all over the city were looted and three churches burned. The outrages were apparently perpetrated in reprisal for the shooting in Paris of the third secretary of the German embassy. But it also followed a press campaign against Jews in business.

What is especially significant is that the supposedly all powerful government has permitted an irresponsible mob to break loose and run riot contrary to law and order. If it is the policy of the German state to eliminate Jews from business, the government is presumed to have means to accomplish it in legal form and by its own agencies. To turn the task over to unrestrained private fury is the negation of civilized political responsibility. It is chaos rather than government.

These are truisms which every civilized mind must recognize. The outside world cannot take this as a sign of strength. When a community abandons the orderly processes and lets a mob run free in its own fury it is humiliated and abased even when the outrage is a surprise and its scope limited. But this outbreak had no element of surprise and took place in the very center of Nazi rule as well as elsewhere. Police officers and officers of the army watched the disorder in Berlin without protest or intervention. There were of course plenty of police, to say nothing of soldiers, in Berlin to put a prompt end to the rioting.

Has the Hitler régime, in fomenting anti-Semitism, bred a beast it dares not restrain? If it cannot put down a mob in its capital city how far does its control really extend? If a dictatorship cannot insure order by its autocratic rule, what compensations in the long run has it to offer for the sacrifices exacted from the citizen in the loss of all his liberties? A strong government supported allegedly by the will of the people ought to be able at least to keep the peace and if it aspires to an honorable place among civilized states ought to be able to insure the orderly processes of law. A passion drunk mob is a sorry symbol of "strong" government.

JOHN J. COUGHLIN.

Ald. John J. Coughlin, dying at 78, had been a 1st ward member of the city council forty-six years. People visiting Chicago in years gone by used to look puzzled when they heard that the great business district was represented by two gentlemen known as Bathhouse John and Hinky Dink. Michael Kenna, the little fellow, allowed John to make the front. John had once managed a Madison street Turkish bath. That gave him his name.

Both Kenna and Coughlin were aldermen in the city hall. What they were called outside was another matter. They were success stories in their own peculiar way. John had known poverty. That's probably why he liked to look the part of prosperity, running to expansiveness and fancy waistcoats. One of the newspaper boys wrote poetry for him and he became the council's poet laureate with "Dear Midnight of Love."

Carter Harrison II. when mayor asked the two to support him against the Yerkes traction franchise ordinance. They did when what were called the gray wolves in the council were all lined up for the street car man. They stood by their word and Harrison always remembered them for it. He overlooked a good many things in the 1st ward because Kenna and Coughlin had come through for him and, as was thought at the time, for the city. Neither one ever had many flowers thrown to him by the Municipal Voters' league, but they knew the people who voted in the ward. They knew how to carry it with a minimum of expense and most of the time with a minimum of queer work. The business men had no trouble with them and Coughlin attained the dignity of long years. Kenna survives him.

RETREAT FROM MOSCOW.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The French senatorial elections of Sunday indicate the passing of the Popular Front that came to power in 1936 and the cooling off of France's flirtation with communism and Moscow.

The Czech government has informed Moscow that it is no longer interested in its military alliance with the soviet union and France.

And Poland is leaning away from the Paris-Moscow axis toward the Rome-Berlin axis.

The "iron ring" with which France sought to encircle Germany after the war is breaking link by link.

As recently as 1931 France, with its new-found friendships intact and with gold enough in its banks to force Great Britain off the gold standard, was sitting on top of the world.

Seven years, and its refusal to make an effective effort toward disarmament in Europe were enough to bring it down to its present estate, where its internal economy is prostrate and externally it is threatened by a rearmed Germany.

A fundamental error France made was in allying itself with Moscow. This angered Germany and weakened sympathy for France in Great Britain. And it encouraged in France itself the radical elements that demanded a social reform program that the country could not afford.

LETTER TO AMOS ALONZO.

Dear Mr. Stagg: This is a sentimental occasion between men of the bulldog breed, in which a shake of the hand and a slap on the back are more eloquent than any string of graceful words that can be spun out of a typewriter. Today you return, after six years of absence, to the field upon which a large part of your long and noble life has been spent, to pit your College of the Pacific against your old Maroons; and whatever the score it will be your victory. For you have triumphed over time and defeat and neglect and the fickle spirit of the age, and your soul goes marching on.

You have been one of the great builders of this fine American game called football, and wherever it is played your influence is felt. There was a time when you nourished champions out there on the Midway; you saw that era pass and your teams become weak without a whimper. No matter how outmatched, they always followed your motto, "Do with thy might that which is given unto you," and knowing that they had learned this important lesson of life was your great reward.

When you were retired under an old age ruling, you went west like a young man to continue your mission; and these boys of the College of the Pacific, a small school but now your own, undoubtedly are spiritually akin to the Maroons of your halcyon days. The Chicago alumni in the stands today will be cheering for both sides.

When you watch Clark Shaughnessy's Maroons, you will miss the basket work line defense which was characteristic of your old disciples. But let your lads watch out, for this team, which has been battered from pillar to post in the Big Ten, can score touchdowns with surprising ease. Moreover, they are hungry for victory. They will not pull their punches, for they know that A. A. Stagg never cried for mercy and that whatever happens, he can take it.

'MORNING, GLORY!

Ah, gal upon the avenue
In tyrol lid of burgundy
(Or is it Dubonnet this year?)
At any rate, it's wine to me!
Ah, gal in skirt to match your hat,
And jacket gray of tweedy stuff,
Just passing you each morn at nine
No longer seems to be enough.
Whom do you know that I might know?
Does any one occur to you?
I need but vaguest, small excuse
To bid you grinning "How'd ja do!"

O'Brin.

Revenge on the Voice of Horror.

Orson Welles, whose radio exploit as the Voice of Horror hoaxed many simple folk, recently staged in New York a drama called "Danton's Death."

When the house was darkened for the rise of the curtain, a wag in the back row seats bellowed: "The Martians are landing in New Jersey!"

The ensuing roar of laughter deeply wounded the Voice of Horror's artistic soul.

TO BE NEAR YOU.

To hear again a voice too long unheard
And see again the smile I count so dear,
To know that all is well, by your own word,
And thereby reassure my foolish fear;
To share again with you my joys and cares
Entwined with all the dreams you understand,
To talk of books and all the small affairs
That form the substance of our wonderland;
To learn I have been missed, admission sweet,
That compensates for all my lonely days,
To be near you once more, and so complete
A happiness beyond my power to praise—
Small things, perhaps, o'er which to rhapsodize,
And yet they hold for me all paradise.

Problem in Child Psychology.

He was a likely looking little chap of about 5 years, and he clung to his mother's hand as they walked down State street. While she was probably mulling over in her mind whether the dress she liked could be altered successfully, he was watching with polite interest the trafic policeman, the red truck, the toy window, and all the other things a 5 year old boy sees when he goes shopping with his mother.

Suddenly he let go his mother's hand and ran to the curb where there was a flock of pigeons. He jumped up and down and screamed, "I hate those dang birds!" The pigeons flew away, and the little boy took his mother's hand again. The two continued down the street with no change of expression.

Joe Miller (U. S. Edition) Says—

An Italian shopkeeper received a Black Hand letter, reading:

"Leave $500 in cigar box at back door before Sunday night or we kill your wife.—Mano Nera."

He placed a cigar box at his back door containing a note which stated:

"No gotta $500, but I like-a your proposish."

VITAMINS NOT CURE-ALLS.

In some parts of the world whooping cough causes more deaths among young children than any other infection. We need not wonder, then, why so much attention has been directed toward perfecting a method which will safeguard the little one against the malady or insure a lighter attack. Thus we account for the interest in vaccines, which have been seized upon as offering the best possible defense.

It has been learned, however, that immunity will not develop until several months [at least four or five] have elapsed. Thereafter the successfully vaccinated child should escape the ailment if exposed, although in certain seasons of some years the causative organism is exceedingly active and vicious. But this procedure [the use of vaccine] serves to ward off the disorder rather than cure it. Should the disease appear in one who has been immunized—even partially—symptoms may be less pronounced.

Now comes an article by Gairdner, published in a recent issue of the British medical journal, in which vitamin C [ascorbic acid] is suggested as a means of relief for the coughing paroxysms.

These highly touted yet essential food elements are bound to be prescribed in large amounts for almost every affliction to which flesh is heir. Is there merit in such huge doses? Is it likely that resistance can be raised—even temporarily?

A Japanese writer made the recommendation originally because whooping cough bugs grown in a test tube seemed discouraged and disheartened when ascorbic acid was added. Their multiplication was slowed down and, at the same time, virulence was lessened.

After a trial of the plan it was reported that of the total number of patients treated, three-quarters showed substantial amelioration of symptoms, while one-fourth presumably were not helped. In other words, in 25 per cent the disease proceeded along its normal course with plenty of whoops and frequent vomiting spells. It was claimed further that in the instances cited distressing manifestations abated within from two to three weeks—a decidedly short period.

But could these results be duplicated? In Gairdner's series of forty-one children twenty-one received generous supplies of vitamin C while twenty were used as controls. Only those in the early stages were included; that is, in whom an early diagnosis had been made. Mothers were requested to record the number and severity of the paroxysms and these data, together with the weekly examination of the patients by the physician, were carefully evaluated. Each youngster was weighed and the information correlated with appetite, number of vomiting attacks, etc.

Doses of vitamin C were quite sizable. During the first week 200 milligrams were given daily; 150 milligrams for the second, and in the third and subsequent weeks, 100. No attention was paid to age except that victims under 1 year received but half the schedule 1 quantity. The twenty untreated cases were allowed only cod liver oil and some mild spasm relieving drugs.

While the figures vary slightly, the vitamin fed children showed no improvement over the controls. Apparently there is not the slightest hope that big doses of "C" will be helpful in whooping cough. Duration of discomfort lasted twenty-five days in the treated group, as contrasted with twenty-seven in the controls. The gain in weight was practically the same. It looks, therefore, as though there were no advantage in forcing vitamin feeding, as the number of paroxysms was unaltered.

We all realize that vitamins are powerful assistants to metabolism, but they are substances which need to be replaced only in the event that there is a substantial lack thereof. Furthermore, an infinitesimal portion is sufficient and there is no sense in loading the system with a surplus.

As far as whooping cough is concerned, we must still rely upon a carefully prepared vaccine, cautiously administered, for protection against this widespread difficulty. Statistics on this safety measure are far more favorable than from other modes.

CATARACTS.

C. J. writes:

1. What is the cause of cataracts?
2. Can anything be done to slow up their progress?
3. Does using the eyes affect the growth of cataracts?

REPLY.

1. Degenerative changes which come with old age are the most common cause.
2. At the very outset the general health should receive attention and errors of refraction be corrected. Periodical examinations by a competent specialist are advised.
3. Ordinary use of the eyes has no effect on hastening growth.

WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

B. M. Z. writes: What is the cause of a filled up feeling on arising in the morning? I am not a heavy eater, but at times have trouble with constipation, which I overcome by eating prunes or apple sauce before breakfast. I am 57 years old.

REPLY.

Constipation may be a cause, but some trouble with the circulation should be considered also. Drink two glasses of water on arising and eat a substantial breakfast. If improvement does not occur speedily, the wise thing to do is to consult your physician.

SEVENTH NERVE INFLAMED.

B. B. writes: What causes inflammation of the seventh nerve? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

A current of cold air striking the side of the face is the most common cause. It may be due also to injury or disease of the middle ear, involving the nerve, a tumor, or a blood clot. During the acute stage heat should be applied. An infra-red lamp may be used. Electrical stimulation is of value after the acute reaction has subsided.

BLOOD TESTS.

C. R. writes: Are a blood test and a blood count the same?

REPLY.

No. When the blood is tested it is analyzed for all of its constituents. The blood count concerns itself with the number of red and white cells and platelets.

HEADACHE RELIEF.

Miss E. K. writes: Why does a hot foot bath sometimes relieve a headache?

REPLY.

By balancing the circulation. Capillaries in the feet are dilated and filled with blood, thus relieving tension in other parts of the body.

FROM "L. Y'S" OLD NEIGHBOR.

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 9.—Your editorial on Ex-Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman had a very personal appeal.

I distinctly recall Mr. Sherman's father whose forty acre farm in Jasper county adjoined my father's farm. It was rather poor, and their mode of living very ordinary. His father, therefore, earned a little extra money by doctoring horses and cattle in his own unique way, and in trapping minks and skunks. Often my brother and I found his traps in the Island Grove creek which ran through both farms.

But my fondest recollections are of Mr. Sherman's sister, Miss Sylvia, a typical country school teacher, kind in her own way, a great disciplinarian and efficient teacher. My brother and I had the special privilege of riding to school with her if we were early enough after doing our morning chores. As "thanks for the buggy ride" we would unhitch and stable her pony, feed and water him at the noon hour, and after school hitch up for the return trip of 1¾ miles. We then walked the remaining quarter mile to our home. I also distinctly recall the funeral of Mr. Sherman's father in the little Shiloh chapel. My father was one of the pallbearers.

As my brother and I were Catholic lads of about 10 and 8, and had never before attended any other than Catholic services, the Protestant ritual seemed funny to us. The reproachful glances of our father failed to quiet us. But we became serious when a Methodist neighbor threatened to throw us Catholic lads out of the Protestant church. That's the closest I ever got to being thrown out of any church.

I always followed Lawrence Sherman's political career; have always been proud of having been his neighbor.

I am sending your editorial to my aged father, who is ten months older than Mr. Sherman and still lives on the old farm he started from the prairie grass stage fifty-five years ago when he married mother. And mother is also living and doing her own housework at the age of 76, after raising a family of ten children.

It is my conviction that it is good for all of us to go back to the "horse and buggy" days and learn again some of the sturdy lessons of the honest and rugged past. Thanks for recalling some of the pleasant memories of boyhood days in good old Jasper county, Ill.

THE REV. JOHN KOEBELE,
President, Quincy College.

WHY CROSSING WAS BLOCKED.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—About the letter today from W. G. Echols about empty cars blocking a crossing:

I was in that crew. We had to stop because a truck and trailer were parked across both main lines at Montgomery Ward plant. We went to look for the driver and when we found him he could not get the motor started. So we backed to Chicago avenue and cut for the crossing. Mr. Echols couldn't see what tied us up or he wouldn't have blamed the railroads. We don't block crossings if we can help it. The good will of the public counts and we know it.

STINGER.

COATTAILS AND BOOT TOES.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Many of the governors, senators, and congressmen who rode into office on the coattails of Fol De Rol are now riding out of office upon the boot toes of intelligent voters.

A WOMAN DISFRANCHISED.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—On going to the polls yesterday to cast my vote I was informed [to my complete surprise] that I was not registered. Knowing I had registered, and had even voted in the last primary election, I proceeded to election board offices at the city hall.

There I was told my name was on a suspect list, and that I had been sent a notice to appear at their office on Oct. 22 to prove my right to vote. However, said notice was never received by me. The only reason given me was that I did not reside at the address given on my registration card, which was still a greater surprise to me, as I have lived at that address for the last twenty years. I was told that I could not vote yesterday and would have to register again.

Consequently, I have come to the conclusion that an honest tax paying citizen does not have the right to vote. Evidently, one has to be on WPA, PWA, or relief to be extended that privilege.

ONE DISGUSTED VOTER.

A NEW "ISM" IN THE LAND.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Our U. S. A. is overrun with another "ism." It is pauperism, to which we are subjected before we get this thing called relief or WPA.

After the relief workers get through digging up your past as far back as twenty years and insulting you with all kinds of personal questions, it takes about ninety days in most cases to get results. You have no strength or ambition left in this land of abundance. When F. D. R. goes to his dream house for relaxation I am sure he will have some nightmares.

RITA CURTIS.

SOME VAGRANT THOUGHTS.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—After the deluge thoughts: C. I. O. infested states elect conservative replacements . . . Where is that budding boom of Lewis for President? . . . Or the one to draft F. D. R.? . . . Low income groups finally realize the New Deal pretense of helping them actually is a malicious program to destroy jobs, both large and small. . . . What will happen in January when an irresistible force [congress] collides with an immovable object [President]? . . . It's a nice, sunshiny day, isn't it?

BILL MAYOR.

AN ILLINOIS CENTRAL CROSSING.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—A thought for the person who signs as a south sider and says the 71st and Jeffery crossing of the Illinois Central is a death trap. Of course, every one was very sorry a man was killed there a few days ago.

But after all there is only one place for a train to run and that is the track built for the purpose. At the time of the accident the gates were down, the bells ringing, and two or three called to this man, who couldn't make it but thought otherwise.

I can't see where the I. C. is at fault. As for the 13 cent fare, I don't think that is out of line, considering the speed and comfort in which you reach the loop.

I rode the west side buses and Lake street "L" for a number of years, which is something on the order of a rodeo in the stopping and starting the critter and nowhere to sit half the time. No, I am not an employé.

L. L. K.

WANTS AN EMBARGO LIFTED.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Strangely enough our government, almost deliberately, it seems, has turned away from lifting of the embargo on arms to Spain. This step would not only aid a sister democracy, but would serve notice to the world that we do not intend to countenance Fascist depredations in this hemisphere. The Chamberlain and Daladier governments will not be likely to recognize Franco as a belligerent when we have set him down as a rebel without legal standing.

Spain must not be the victim of a second Munich. I urge all those who value peace, democracy and the rule of law to write at once to the President and to Secretary Hull and demand that the embargo be lifted.

A. OVRUM TAPPER.

MORE BEAUTY; LESS UGLINESS.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Americans may well take pride in the American exhibition of paintings and sculpture now offered at the Art institute. The range of subjects, the widely scattered scenes presented, are an inspiration. There is much of the poetry of earth shown; there is much of beauty in the work, less of ugliness and bestiality. Praise be!

ESTATE ADMINISTRATION.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the administratrix of my mother's estate. In order that debts may be paid I must sell some of the property. This property is vacant and is assessed very high. As there is no income from the property and the location undesirable I thought that the assessments were too high for poor property.

1. Can I expect to sell the property for the assessed value or at least three-fourths of the assessed value?
2. If not, why not? I have paid taxes on these valuations for several years and it would seem to me that the heirs are entitled to get a fair price for it.
3. Is one compelled to sell property for little or nothing in the settlement of an estate and how is it that assessors can place a value on property which far exceeds any price one could possibly get by selling?
4. Can one get the taxes reduced to normal if they are too high and how would I proceed?
5. If the property is sold at auction can one of the heirs buy it in order to hold it for a better price later? B. W.

1. Obviously, we are not in a position to answer such a question. You should take the matter up with a local real estate broker.
2. We do not understand your directing this question to us.
3. In order to convey a good title under statutory proceedings to sell real estate you must accurately comply with the statutory requirements. Unless you have had experience in such matters we doubt if you will be able to do this. We advise the employment of an attorney.
4. Take this up with the assessor's office.
5. Yes, but you yourself are not permitted to buy at your own sale.

Nature Lovers Will Delight in These Volumes

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

"Canoe Country," by Florence Page Jaques. [University of Minnesota Press, $2.50.]

"Life in an Air Castle," by Dr. Frank M. Chapman. [Appleton-Century, $3.]

"Wild Lone," by "BB." [Scribners, $3.]

"The Social Life of Animals," by W. C. Allee. [Norton, $3.]

"Animal Neighbors of the Countryside," by Joseph Wharton Lippincott. [Lippincott, $2.50.]

"Brown Hills," by Judy Van Der Veer. [Longmans, $2.]

Here is a group of recently published books which should appeal to the lovers of nature.

"Canoe Country" is a diary of a three weeks' canoe trip through northern Minnesota. It sings and laughs and breathes deeply of the dawn air. Mrs. Florence Page Jaques might have been housewifely about roughing it, but she is neither Amazonish nor cute about it. She reacts to beauty as any healthy human might and she records those reactions with nostalgic deftness.

There is even sturdier beauty in Francis Lee Jaques' illustrations, which J. N. [Ding] Darling describes as "the perfect illustrations." They make this one of the best nature books of the season.

Dr. Frank Chapman's air castle in his "Life in an Air Castle" is a cabin on a Fanama Canal zone island—Barro Colorado. There he goes at intervals to study nature. He not only has a profound scientific knowledge of the things about which he writes, but he is blessed by a more than nodding acquaintance with the same muse that makes Dr. William Beebe's writings so entertaining. Dr. Chapman instructs you in the ways of the kinkajou, among other things, and makes you love that kinkajou as you would a favorite puppy.

"BB" is an Englishman who hides his name but reveals his nature in his work. "Wild Lone" is the story of Rufus, a red fox. Objective in style, it tells the life story of the hero from birth to death. The author evades the snares that catch the average writer of animal biographies. Rufus is not a human being in fur. He is a fox, and acts as any good naturalist knows a fox acts. It is the author's ability to portray the drama of animal life that makes this a book you will remember. Again an illustrator adds a satisfying overtone, this time Denys Watkins-Pitchford.

Prof. W. C. Allee of the University of Chicago has been studying the social life of animals for more than thirty years. In "The Social Life of Animals" he tells what he has discovered. His discoveries are little short of amazing, at least to the zoological neophyte. The book is fun, too.

Joseph Wharton Lippincott's "Animal Neighbors of the Countryside" is a simple, carefree book about animals—the sort of animals you and I might run across on a day in the country. It describes the majestic blue heron, but it is charmingly aware of the lowly mole as well.

If you like to read about goats named Noel, you won't mind the one whimsical feature that marks "Brown Hills," by Judy Van Der Veer. Despite its dangerously sweet attempt to picture the animals as our brothers, the book has an undercurrent of feeling that gives it depth and sincerity. It records life on a California ranch—the multiple life that ranges from the affairs of horned toads to the tragedies of spring floods.

Collection of Opinions by Benjamin Cardozo Reveals His Brilliance

"Law Is Justice," edited by A. L. Eainer. [Ad Press, $3.]

This volume is a collection of the noted opinions of the late Justice Benjamin Cardozo of the Supreme court. A foreword by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York pays tribute to Cardozo as a judge who stood not above but apart from the bustle of life, yet was sensitive to its every little current. The opinions are classified in civil rights, contractual relations, family relations, crimes, property and personal injuries, international matters, labor relations, social interests, and workmen's compensations. In every one there is evident a mellowed interpretation of the law and a quiet yet brilliant literary style.

COUGHLIN TO GET KIND OF FUNERAL THAT HE'D WISH

Police, Firemen, Officials Will Take Part.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Ald. John J. [Bathhouse John] Coughlin, who died yesterday, will be buried on Monday with ceremonies befitting his forty-six years in the city council and his picturesque career.

It will be a funeral just like the alderman would wish. Escorting his body to St. John's church, 18th and Clark streets, will be Mayor Kelly, the entire council, 300 policemen and firemen, a band, and a throng of friends. Solemn requiem high mass will be sung at 11 a. m., followed by burial in Calvary cemetery.

Hinky Dink Takes Charge.

Most of these plans were made yesterday under Mayor Kelly's direction. Final supervision, however, was exercised by Coughlin's best friend, Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, now the saddened and sole boss of the first ward, which he and the alderman ruled for almost half a century.

An hour after Coughlin died in Mercy hospital of pneumonia, Kenna marched into undertaking rooms at 1820 South Michigan avenue with his customary stiff tread. He gave orders gruffly and tried in other ways to hide his deep emotion, but he was very firm.

He was running the last show for his old partner, he wanted it known, and that's the way it will be.

Ill for Many Months.

The alderman, who was 78 years old, had been ill for many months. Lately he had not attended council meetings, nor the race tracks, but occasionally he was well enough so that Kenna could take him on automobile rides.

Ald. Coughlin was taken to the hospital from his rooms in the New Michigan hotel, 2135 South Michigan avenue, on Thursday. He was placed under an oxygen tent. At his bedside when he died at 10 a. m. yesterday were Fletcher Robinson, his chauffeur, and Howard Le Compte, one of his secretaries.

The alderman leaves a brother, George, who lives in Glendale, Cal.; a sister, Mrs. Kate Coughlin, and a niece, Miss Ann Coughlin.

Link with Old Chicago.

Bathhouse John Coughlin was a link between the old Chicago and the new. His political career—forty-six consecutive years as 1st ward alderman—covered the era in which Chicago emerged from an overgrown village with a frontier tang into the second metropolis of America.

The Bath started as a rubber in the old Palmer house Turkish bathrooms, whence his sobriquet, of which he was proud. In his later years, with a silver pompadour, he blossomed out as a patron of horse racing with a stable of sixty horses. Occasionally he won a race. Once, as a lover of nature and the primitive life, he owned a zoo near Pike's Peak, Colo. His sartorial effulgence as Beau Brummell of the city council and his poetic flights in which he rode Pegasus as a bucking bronco, gained him wide reputation as a picturesque and flamboyant figure.

For 40 years and more reform waves, political cataclysms, factional earthquakes periodically swept over Chicago. But Bathhouse John proved impervious. Through all the upheavals of four decades the Bath and his teammate, Kenna, kept control of the 1st, richest ward in the world, and delivered its votes as they willed. They trimmed their sails with each administration. As almost the last survivor of a roaring, roistering bygone age in local politics, the Bath became a tradition at the city hall.

Born in Connelly's Patch.

In Connelly's Patch, an Irish settlement east of the Chicago river between Madison and Adams streets, Coughlin was born Aug. 15, 1860. As a young man he became a bath masseur. Later he opened his own Turkish baths in the old McCoy hotel, Clark and Van Buren streets, and in the old Brevoort hotel in Madison street. Gen. Phil Sheridan was one of many notables who patronized him.

It was in 1892 that the Bath went into politics and stepped from the bathhouse into the city council. He became politically associated with Kenna, whose Workingmen's Exchange, known for the "coolest and largest" schooner of beer in town and its free lunch, was a spot sought by sociological visitors to Chicago. When it closed in 1919, due to prohibition, after selling 175,000 barrels of beer, one of the "tubs," as the schooners were known, went as a relic to W. C. T. U. headquarters in Evanston.

To get an idea of this era, the year after the Bath became alderman, William T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews in London, came to visit the World's Fair in 1893 and wrote his book "If Christ Came to Chicago." He sometimes dropped in at the Workingmen's exchange. Out of Stead's visit grew a reform wave, the birth of the Civic federation, and later of the Municipal Voters' league.

Coughlin later opened the Silver Dollar saloon in Madison street, said to be named in honor of Bryan's 16 to 1 craze in 1896. About 1901 he sold his last bathhouse, after giving up the saloon, and went into the banking and insurance business. Kenna was elected to the council in 1897; each ward had two aldermen then.

It was at this juncture in 1897 that the 1st ward passed into the hands of one of the most extraordinary political machines any city has seen.

The Bath was a big man physically, Hinky Dink a small one. The Bath was the front, the Hink the brains. John dressed noisily with clothes that sounded like a brass band; Mike was meticulous and more conservative in attire. The Bath was fond of wide gestured speech; the Hink spoke little but his word was rated by politicians as good as a bond. In the front row of the council they always appeared dignified.

Rules Unique Bailiwick.

The bailiwick of Coughlin and his co-boss was unique. At the south end was the old red light district, wide open in those uproarious days. At the north end was Chicago's loop, the downtown business section, wealthiest area in the city. In between were flophouses, cheap lodgings, great hotels, and a fringe of residential districts and millionaire homes. To the south the underworld was concentrated, to the north the loop was crowded with people who voted in their own wards.

Privilege, protection, pickings, and perquisites were mainstays on which the machine rested. It was the same in many other wards. The 1st, however, was top example.

Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, in his autobiography, "Stormy Years," paints a vivid picture of the flotsam and jetsam out of which Bathhouse John and Hinky Dink, the inseparables, fashioned a political control never overturned.

Magnet for Human Derelicts.

"From all sides it washed," says Mr. Harrison, "from the ship decks of the Great Lakes, the harvested fields of the far west, the railroad construction works of a dozen states; with this great army came tramps, panhandlers, card sharps, tricksters, mountebanks, circus and sideshow hangers-on, human derelicts of all kinds and descriptions, the weirdest, most fantastic accumulation of beings.

"The barrelhouse saloons, the ten cent flop lodging houses of the ward served as the magnet to draw them together in one squirming mass. Fifty cents a vote became the established rate of exchange."

When Harrison first ran for mayor in 1897 Coughlin and Kenna supported him in the 1st ward. They had been brought into camp by the late Robert E. [Bobbie] Burke. The 1st ward bosses broke away in 1914 when Mayor Harrison fought for the renomination of John E. Owens for County judge [he was defeated by Thomas F. Scully], the fear of the 1st warders being they would not have control of the judges and clerks of election in the ward. Harrison gave them thumbs down. When dynasties changed at the hall the technique of the Bath-Hink machine was to go along with the administration—unless it affected their own interests.

The Bath Stands by a Veto.

In his memoirs Mr. Harrison narrates some diverting experiences with the Bathhouse and his flashes of humor. Recalling a night when an effort was made to pass an ordinance over the mayor's veto, a "petty larceny" ordinance, both Coughlin and Kenna voted to stand by the veto.

"As the roll call proceeded," says Mr. Harrison, "Billie O'Brien, then serving in the double capacity of alderman and state senator, leaned over the back of the 1st warders' chairs: 'John! Mike! What the hell's the matter with you? It's a good thing—there's $500 in it—get in the bandwagon.'

"John rose to his extreme stature, stuck his right hand in the opening of his heavy plush waistcoat, turning majestically about, with ponderous tones that carried to the farthest precincts, he exclaimed: 'Billie, we ain't takin' no toothpicks.'"

The Bath's Supreme Tribute.

Gem of the lot, however, is Mr. Harrison's story of the visit of congratulation John and Mike paid to him after he beat Graeme Stewart in 1903. Mayor Harrison said he could not understand his victory and asked: "Why was it I won?"

"There was a moment of silence," he writes, "then John broke in: 'Mr. Mayor, you won because of the public satisfaction with the well known honesty that has caricatured your every administration.'"

The Municipal Voters' league always denounced the 1st ward aldermen. Hoyt King in his biography of the late George E. Cole, first head of the M. V. L., recounts a protest the Bath once made against a M. V. L. report charging him with voting for questionable measures.

"Mr. Cole," said the Bath, "I have come to say you have done me a very great injustice in your report."

"Our records show you voted for these questionable ordinances," said Cole.

"That's not the point," answered Coughlin. "In this report you say I was born in Waukegan. I was born in Chicago and am proud of it."

Survive Reform Attacks.

The reformers made periodic onslaughts, but each time the Bath and Hink went serenely on their way. Before elections the faithful marched through the ward carrying banners, "Live and Let Live." And at his meetings Coughlin was wont to remark, "When I see a reformer I put my hand on my watch. If the M. V. L. indorsed me I would lose the 1st ward."

The 1st Ward club from the start gave aid to its members, helped them along when needy, got jobs for them, and the organization never slept. Before the turn of the century the reform wave had control of the city council and the old crowd had a diminished importance except in votes. But every election the Bath and Hink were courted by rival political groups and had a hand in the election of judges, state's attorneys, and others.

"Poet Lariet" of Council.

No sketch of "Bathhouse John" would be complete without mention of his poetic journeyings as "poet lariet" of the city council. About 1900 he wrote a ballad, "Dear Midnight of Love," which was sung by Miss May De Souza in her début at the Chicago Opera house. The chorus went:

"Dear Midnight of Love, why did we meet?
Dear Midnight of Love, your face is so sweet.
Pure as the angels above, surely again we will speak;
Loving only as doves, Dear Midnight of Love."

This epic, followed by "Ode to a Bowl of Soup" and other alleged poems, brought the Bath more publicity perhaps than his screaming waistcoats and plaid frock coats. He became one of the most widely publicized aldermen in the country. Whenever a group of visitors dropped in to view the council chamber one question always asked is: "Where does Bathouse John sit?"

The 1st Ward Balls.

In earlier years were the 1st ward balls, finally closed because of their notoriety. They were held at the Coliseum, the council would adjourn to attend. From the bagnios the madams with their bevies sat in the boxes in silks, diamonds, and plumes. Champagne corks bombarded the hall. The crowning feature was the grand march, led by the Bath, often clad in apple green swallow tails. This was a supreme moment.

Some years ago Ald. Coughlin went in for racing. He was often seen at the race tracks near the end of the grand stand where he could watch the horses round into the stretch. At his farm near St. Charles he had sixty horses, but somehow or other little luck with his ponies.

When the fifty ward single alderman plan was adopted in 1923 Kenna retired from the council, but the old alliance remained unshaken. Coughlin remained the 1st ward alderman; Kenna the Democratic committeeman.

Improve Splints for Broken Bones

(Story in adjoining column.)

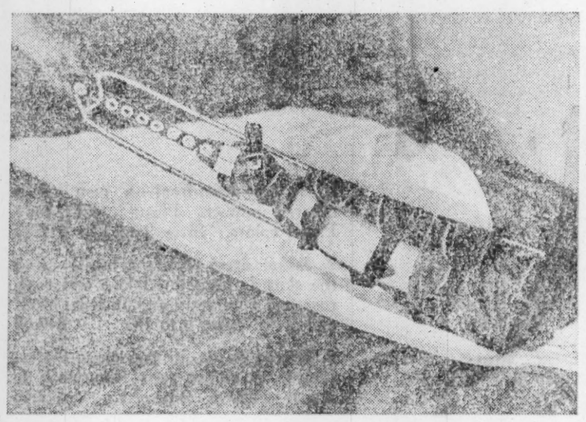
Using suggestions from men throughout the Chicago fire department, two officials of the force have devised improved splints for broken arms or legs. With the foot in a boot, the leg is stretched to prevent buckling of the broken bone.



Lether "saddles" and web straps take the place of bandages. There is a mitten for the hand of a patient with a broken arm.

FIREMEN DEVISE NEW SPLINTS FOR USE IN FIRST AID

Spare Time Efforts Save Victims Torture.

The Corrigan splints, for use of fire victims who suffer broken arms or legs, were displayed yesterday for the first time. Invented by members of the Chicago fire department and named for Michael J. Corrigan, fire commissioner, the splints are said to be the finest ever devised for emergency treatment.

Some time ago the Red Cross began instructing department officers in the use of splints. The Red Cross has some fine types of splints, but Anthony J. Mullaney, first deputy fire marshal, and James Gleason, the department's chief engineer, thought they could be improved.

They designed some splints, had them made in the department shops, and sent them around the department for comment. They kept this up for three months, incorporating comments and suggestions of firemen in the new designs.

Win Praise of Doctor.

"I have never seen their equal," said Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher, bone specialist and chief surgeon for the Carnegie Illinois Steel company. "The splints are so simple almost any one could pick one of them up and use it correctly. They are excellent because they will hold the limb absolutely rigid until the patient can receive proper treatment from a doctor."

The steel framework of the splints is an improvement of a type used by the Red Cross. A padded framework and heavy web strap lock the splint firmly in place at the socket of the arm or leg.

Three lether "saddles" support the limb within the framework. The saddles and the heavy web straps used to lock the injured arm or leg into them replace the many bandages used for the same purpose in most types of splints.

Boots Prevent Grinding.

The hand or foot is laced into a specially made boot or mitten. This is then attached to the end of the frame in such a way that the broken ends of bones are kept from grinding together.

"The new splints stop the buckling of the bones," Dr. Kreuscher said. "Bones that are not controlled after breaking may cut tissues, blood vessels or nerves."

Chief Mullaney said the new splints would be carried by each squad wagon and department ambulance in the city and each hook and ladder truck in outlying sections.

STOVE EXPLODES IN SICKROOM; TWO BURNED TO DEATH

Two persons, one an infant, were burned to death and two others seriously burned last night in a fire which resulted from an explosion in a third story flat at 1214 Blue Island avenue. All are colored. John Gibson Jr., 5½ months old, and Mack Givens, 35 years old, of 1415 South Sangamon street, were killed. The child's mother, Aretha, 17, and Givens' wife, Lillie, 30, were burned, and are in the County hospital. The explosion occurred when Givens poured gasoline by mistake for kerosene into a small wood burning stove.

High School Couple, 16, Believed Eloping, Sought

Berwyn police were searching last night for Edwina Laws, 16 years old, a freshman at J. Sterling Morton High school, and a junior classmate, Edward Collins, also 16. It was thought they may have eloped. Their parents had not seen them since they left for school Wednesday. Miss Laws lives at 2535 Cuyler avenue and Collins at 6440 West 27th place in Berwyn.

SHOT BY HUNTER, SKIDMORE'S DOG, PINTO, IS UP AGAIN

William Skidmore, Chicago's reputed gambling boss, felt bitter about hunters in general Thursday when he found his favorite Belgian coach dog, Pinto, lying in a roadside ditch near Skidmore's Pine Tree farm in McHenry county.

Scattered shot from a bird hunter's gun had struck Pinto in the side. Skidmore rushed Pinto to a veterinarian. Last night Pinto was up and around, almost as spry as usual. And the no trespassing signs still adorn Skidmore's farm and the six others he owns in the county.

A Correction

"In our advertisements in the 'Chicago Tribune' of Oct. 14, there was advertised a sale of Knit Suits at $7.70. The merchandise was sold to us by Federal Knitwear Company, who are manufacturers of 'Glengyle Sportswear'.

"Through an error it was inadvertently stated that the manufacturer was going out of business. This is incorrect, and in justice to the manufacturer we sincerely and publicly apologize. The actual fact is that this merchandise was a 'closeout', purchased for a special sale.

"We have been customers of Federal Knitwear Company and purchasers of 'Glengyle Sportswear' for some time, as have many other reputable stores. We sincerely regret our error."

Adolph Hitler's undisguised contempt for England, France, and the United States is revealed in startling fashion in the next instalment of the amazing disclosures being made by an ex-Nazi in the Color Graphic section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Quoting the exact words confided to him by Hitler in a secret conversation, Kurt G. W. Ludecke recalls Hitler's threat . . .

"If it's going to take bombs to show these gentlemen in London, Paris, and New York that I mean business, well, they can have them!"

In addition, tomorrow's instalment tells what happened when the author, as Hitler's emissary, first called upon Mussolini in a successful effort to form a cooperative alliance between the two men who eventually created the Rome-Berlin axis.

Happy Parties Precede Reid Nuptials Today

There have been parties every day for the last week for Miss Margot Reid and Alanson James Donald, who are to be married this afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church. And the gayest of them were planned for yesterday and today when all of the members of the large bridal party would be here. A 'planeful of ushers and eastern friends and relatives, including the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. George Donald, arrived yesterday afternoon from New York. The visitors were met by Mr. Donald and his fiancée with a chartered bus.

First on the program yesterday, after the guests deposited their bags, was a rehersal of the wedding. Then every one went to the debut tea of Miss Peggy Burrows at the Casino, for Mrs. William F. Burrows thoughtfully included the easterners in the invitations to the party.

After leaving the Casino the group changed into evening dress and went to the Racquet club to a bridal dinner given by Miss Reid's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid. Although the dinner guests were limited to members of the two families and the bridal party there were about seventy guests dining and dancing.

Today the bridal party will reassemble at the Saddle and Cycle club for a luncheon Miss Reid's sister, Mrs. Russell T. Foster, is giving. Another change of dress will put the bridesmaids and ushers into proper costumes for the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock and the reception following at the Casino.

Sisters of Bride in Wedding Party.

Mrs. Foster, the former Mary Elizabeth Reid Chatillon, will be her sister's matron of honor. Joan Reid, who is a student at Chatham Hall, will be the maid of honor, and a cousin, Sally Brittingham, daughter of Mrs. Harold Brittingham of San Antonio, Tex., who is here for the wedding, will be the flower girl.

Miss Anne Ayer of Hamilton, Mass., who was to have been a bridesmaid, has dropped out because of illness. The remaining six bridesmaids include the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Donald Hodges; Miss Margaret Driggs of Waterbury, Conn.; Mrs. Robert F. Carr Jr., Miss Ethel Husband, Miss Sylvia Peters, and Miss Judy Butler.

Only two of Mr. Donald's twenty-two ushers are Chicagoans, William R. Dickinson Jr. and Jerome Roscoe. The others are easterners. Remson Donald of New York is to be his brother's best man. Their other sister, Mrs. Brittain Payne, and Dr. Payne, who is to usher, have been here for several days to attend the other parties. Mr. Foster, who arrived yesterday from Cleveland, and Mrs. Reid's brother and sister-in-law, the Thomas Brittinghams of Wilmington, Del., also have come for the wedding. Other guests are Mr. and Mrs. Auguste J. Cordier of New York.

The Rev. Dudley Stark will read the service. Mrs. Charles W. Dempster has loaned her kneeling cushion for the couple to use while receiving a blessing. After a honeymoon in Cuba Mr. Donald and his bride will be at home in Lake Forest.

MacLean-Ericson Nuptials Tomorrow.

The wedding of Miss Sylvia Ericson, daughter of Mrs. Lily Ericson of Brainard, Minn., to Gordon Gale MacLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Haddon McLean of Evanston, will take place at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The ceremony will be read at the home of the bridgegroom's parents, with the Rev. Ernest F. Tittle officiating. Only members of the two families and a few intimate friends will be present at the ceremony and the wedding breakfast following.

The bride was graduated from the University of Minnesota. Mr. MacLean prepared at the Hill school and was graduated from the University of Chicago. He is a grandson of the late Norman W. Harris.

Charming Debut for Miss Burrows

Miss Margaret Anne [Peggy] Burrows, daughter of Mrs. William F. Burrows, was introduced to society yesterday at a tea given by her grandmother, Mrs. William French Burrows Sr., at the Casino. It was a charming party; the guests were of all ages and came from all parts of the city and suburbs. The debutante was lovely in a changeable taffeta in an apricot shade and she carried green orchids and Pernet roses. Her grandmother was gowned in black velvet.

Children's Aid to Benefit at Ballet Opening

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE opening night of the Russian ballet on Dec. 19 is to be a benefit for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. Mrs. John A. Carpenter, chairman of the woman's board of the society and a director of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, announced the benefit yesterday. The performance, to be given in the Auditorium, will be a notable one, without a doubt, for three ballets new to Chicago are to be presented.

"Don't miss La Gaite Parisienne" every one who has been in New York this fall has said enthusiastically. And no one who buys a ticket for the benefit will miss it, for it is to be given that night. It is the most delightful, amusing ballet imaginable, all who have seen it declare. The choreography is by Leonid Massine and scenery and costumes are the work of Count Etienne de Beaumont. The music is Offenbach's and it includes the old can-can.

Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and "Bogatyri" are the other two ballets on the program for that night. Massine is the choreographer of both, but he does not dance in the Beethoven number. He does dance in "Bogatyri" and "La Gaite Parisienne," however. Berard is responsible for the scenery and costumes of the Beethoven, and Goncharova designed the costumes and scenery for the other one, which is danced to a symphony of Borodin's.

Mrs. Carpenter's co-chairman of the large committee in charge of the benefit is Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, whose husband is president of the society. Tickets may be obtained after next Wednesday morning from the society's office at 227 North Michigan avenue, telephone State 3391.

Some of those working on the committee are Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. Max Epstein, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Paul Russell, Mrs. Henry Field, Mrs. Loyal Davis, and Mrs. Edward Harris Brewer.

Dinner to Follow Races in Virginia.

A gay party in Middleburg, Va., tonight will be a dinner Thomas Leiter will give at the North Wales club following the Middleburg fall races over the Greenwood Park course. Mrs. Howard Linn and the Edward H. Bennetts, who have gone south to enjoy the hunting, will be among Mr. Leiter's guests.

Miss Tita Johnson and Miss Sally Perry are in the east. They will attend the Yale-Princeton football game this afternoon. They both expect to stay over for the Yale-Havard game next week-end.

Miss Laura Moyer also is in the east for the Yale-Princeton game. She is staying with her father, Paul S. Moyer, and Mrs. Moyer, in New York. They will likewise stay over for the Yale-Harvard game. Mr. and Mrs. Moyer and Miss Laura hope to go to Honolulu after the Christmas holidays for five or six weeks.

Freshman Dance at Girls' Latin School.

The first dance of the season at the Girls' Latin school for freshmen in high school will be held tonight. Mrs. Robert M. Adams, Mrs. John L. Cochran, and Mrs. Sangston Hettler will give a dinner party at the Churchill hotel preceding the dance.

The first in a series of North Shore fortnightly dances will be given this evening at the Shawnee Country club.

A midwest field hocky tournament will start at 9 o'clock this morning at Boltwood field, in Evanston, with eleven teams from midwestern states taking part.

Miss Elizabeth Paine of Evanston is holding open house for all of the players tonight. The tournament will be concluded with a luncheon at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow at the North Shore hotel in Evanston. The players who will represent the middle west in the national tournament at Philadelphia Nov. 24-27 will be announced at the luncheon.

The Reserve Officers' association will give an Armistice dinner, reception, and ball for the new commanding general of the 6th corps area, Maj. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, tonight in the grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel. The special guests, in addition to Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Ford, will include Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hayne Ellis and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Karl Truesdell.

Tomorrow at the Tavern club's weekly breakfast party Claire Luce and Guy Robertson of the "Of Mice and Men" company will be the especial guests.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Gage of Evanston have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margarite, to Charles G. Franklin Jr., son of Mrs. Charles G. Franklin of Evanston and the late Judge Franklin. Miss Gage was graduated from Northwestern university. Mr. Franklin attended Northwestern university. The wedding will take place in April.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Goldwyn Boy.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 11.—No better raconteur in the industry than Sam Goldwyn over a luncheon table, if he enjoys the company. And this story telling faculty is not to be wondered at, because Goldwyn has grown up with the industry.

Since December of 1913 he has regarded the passing show of Hollywood at close range, he has been rarely privileged in his contacts, he has observed the foibles and temperaments of the players, and he has indexed all of them with a witty and literate appreciation.

Sam Goldwyn.

Witty and literate? You don't associate those adjectives with Goldwyn because no one in the business has been so rudely caricatured. They have poked fun at his grammatical lapses; they have invented mixed metaphors and inserted them in his mouth, and the general portrait of Goldwyn that hangs on the public easel is hardly flattering. Certainly it is libelous, because Goldwyn talks better than the average American, and no one resents the bad jokes that have been credited to him more keenly than he does.

Often he tells his publicity department that he intends to do something about these libels, but within the week he is engaged in something that swallows his resentment.

I said he was witty. At the luncheon table Goldwyn started: "I want to tell you how I got into the moving picture business." Bob Riskin broke in: "It was raining, you didn't have an umbrella and you had nothing else to do."

Goldwyn roared at this critical dismissal of his reasons for becoming a movie magnate, laughed until the tears were in his eyes.

"Go ahead, tell us," I urged when he had stopped chuckling. "No, I can't top Riskin," said Goldwyn, and went off into another roar of laughs.

He is very sentimental and very earthy, and his confidence in "Stella Dallas" refused to be shaken, although all of his officials were incredulous when he decided to make it. "I'd made it once before," he explains, "and I knew that people would respond just as they had responded before. The 'timing' of it was all in my favor. We had had a cycle of screwball comedies and I figured that the saturation point had been reached. The country was about ready for a good cry, or so I believed. "Everybody in the industry thought I'd lost my grip. I could hear them sympathize with 'poor Goldwyn' behind my back. The picture cleaned up. The country, as I thought, was ready for a good cry."

At the height of the opposition to his plan Goldwyn silenced his hecklers in a conference by stating with great dignity: "Gentlemen, you are forgetting that every one has a mother." By the time that line had been kicked around Hollywood by the colony's jesters it had been converted into a dialect gag.

Just why the writers pick on Goldwyn is in a measure illogical because he was the first to engage the top writing names. In a day when Hollywood was content with hack writers, and composed scripts on the sets, he was paying big money to Gouverneur Morris, Rupert Hughes, Gertrude Atherton, Mary Roberts Rinehart, and others of that standing. That was as long ago as 1919. He called them "the eminent authors" and Rex Beach aided in assembling them.

That, indeed, was the start of the gold rush which yanked starving authors out of attics and substituted Hollywood swimming pools, yachts, and strings of racing horses. Goldwyn started it, and his hiring of high priced authors was revolutionary in the extreme, because up to that time the emphasis was entirely on the star. He realized that the emphasis should be on the story, as one Will Shakespeare had maintained in an earlier generation.

As a direct result of his imagination, other studios rushed into the literary marts and shortly the movie colony had made room for Elinor Glyn, Gene Stratton-Porter, Kathleen Norris, Somerset Maugham, Arnold Bennett, and scores of other top-flighters.

Elinor Glyn, Goldwyn recollects, was easily the most spectacular of the invading horde and provided the most entertainment. She believed in the transmigration of souls and was forever "interpreting" guests at parties. Her analysis of Charlie Chaplin was a party stopper. Fastening her green eyes on Chaplin and reserting to her sepulchral voice, she said: "You—you were a princess. Thousands of years ago you reigned over hordes in some far eastern land. You sat in a tent and slaves played stringed music while dancing maidens spiraled before you. I smell the scent of flowers, I see the gleam of moonlight on the prow of war galleys——"

At that point Elinor's translation of Chaplin was interrupted by a wave of community laughter. . . . Indignantly she refused to continue with her revelations. . . . She left Chaplin stranded in Egypt and refused to get him out of there.

It is an Arabian Nights picture of Hollywood that Goldwyn fashions for you out of his recollections. His own career is an Arabian Nights pattern, too. In London, as a child, he had wandered through the streets of that city homeless and without a job. Later he was to be entertained by George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, and other famous London figures.

He arrived in this country when he was 14, and there was no one to meet him at the boat.

In 25 years the map of Hollywood has been rewritten, but Goldwyn is still a headliner.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The custom of presenting at least one opera prodigy per year can be traced back into the mists of 1936. Betty Jaynes, Beverley Lane, Josephine La Placa—so runs the tale of under age divas who have brightened Chicago City opera casts and have enjoyed the prestige of a debut on the widely respected stage of the Civic Opera house.

Now comes the turn of Constance Merrell, a youthful Evanstonian, who last evening sang Mimi in the first "La Bohême" of the season. A year younger than Miss Lane and Miss La Placa [at the time of their debuts], her seventeen years nevertheless make her a veritable granny beside 15 year old Betty Jaynes.

The immense house was packed with well wishers who greeted Miss Merrell warmly when she slipped into the dimly lit garret of "Bohême's" first act. There was more applause at the end of her "Mi chiamano Mimi," and a genuine torrent of enthusiasm at the fall of the first curtain.

Miss Merrell is a pretty and frail looking young woman who fits beautifully into the rôle of the little Parisian flower maker. Her appearance alone would have won the audience's affections.

The young artist possesses a soft, wistful voice, which she uses in an accurate and musicianly manner. Shadings are often extraordinarily expressive. Her turning of the phrase at the end of the third act "Addio" was an exquisite bit of business.

The voice cannot cope with a house of the dimensions of the Civic nor with a partner like Galliano Masini. Against his terrific fortissimo Miss Merrell could not be properly heard except where the music carried her toward the top of her scale.

The whole evening's proceedings cast grave doubt on the wisdom of taking a fine and sensitive young artist—one who would be quite capable of giving an extremely attractive program of lyric songs with piano accompaniment—and compelling her to overreach herself in a performance of a major rôle in a major opera house.

Annunciata Garrotto, making her first appearance with the company during the regular season, sang Musetta in a voice whose agility did not compensate for its coldness.

Good Morning!

"At the next tone signal the time WILL be—"

SHRIEK!

Pandemonium!

A murder has been committed, and a vital clew to the discovery of the the murderer is a telephone time signal. . . .

"Time Out for Murder" isn't one of the most baffling, original or entertaining of "button, button" dramas. But there are several clever people in the cast, and that always helps.

Gloria Stuart as the lovely employé of a collection agency, who comes to serve Reporter Barney and his house mate, Photographer "Snapper" with certain embarrassing papers and becomes involved in the killer hunt, performs with her customary charm and good sense. . . . Michael Whalen plays his often idiotic rôle with humor and an air. Other players with the exception of Chick Chandler, who acts like a male Joan Davis, make considerable hay out of not much grass. . . .

The director, I think, did the best that could be done with script, often most stupidly dialogued.

The astute movie fan will be way ahead of the story most of the time, but will need to be a pretty good guesser to spot the guilty before the picture reveals the sinner's identity. [A fact in the film's favor.]

"DARK RAPTURE."

Produced by Armand Denis.
Released by Universal.
Filmed and recorded on Armand Denis-Leila Roosevelt Belgian Congo expedition.
Presented at the Garrick theater.

|---|---|
| Watusi | Giant people from Ruanda and Urundi |
| Manbetu | Long-headed people |
| Mambuti | African forest pygmies |
| Bapere | Equatorial forest natives seen in strange and painful rites |

KIND: Camera chronicle of the Armand Denis-Leila Roosevelt expedition by truck into the Belgian Congo.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Excellent for the most part.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: The film has the stamp of verity and so will be of interest to those who like adventure and to visit strange people and countries even though it must be vicariously. It differs from many travelogs because of its slight attention to animal life and its emphasis on natives and customs.

I was intrigued by sequences showing the elephant station where wild elephants become domesticated and are taught to labor for man; by my eye visit to the pygmies and contemplation of the Land of the Giants and the strapping people who live there—till recently a "lost tribe" . . . Felt a little ill over some of the rites of the Baperes.

NARRATION: Definitly informative and pleasantly free from the awful puns and smart cracks that so often lard explanatory discourses accompanying movies such as "Dark Rapture."

See you tomorrow.

Fauna.

The teacher at a fashionable Chicago school at which the children, usually accompanied by nursemaids, arrive in chauffeur-driven limousines, was showing her young pupils pictures of various animals for their identification.

"And what is this?" she inquired, holding up the picture of a deer.

There was a moment's silence. "Why, children, I'm astonished. What is it your father sometimes calls your mother?" hinted the teacher.

A little fellow in the back of the room spoke up hesitatingly.

"Could it be a louse?" he asked.

Autumn Album.

November sunshine, pink and mauve sunsets reminiscent of Monet, flooding silver moonlight. People going places. . . . To the Grand to see Dudley Digges in On Borrowed Time give the best performance we can ever remember seeing, going back as far as Eva Le Gallienne in The Swan. . . . To the new Balinese room at the Blackstone with its copper dance floor, Gaugin green fringed curtains, and white pillars, where Betty Borden sings. . . . To the Colony to listen to Nan Blackstone sing "Ferdinand, the Bull." . . . To the Arts club to see the loan exhibition. . . . To crowd about Peter Blume's masterpiece at the Art institute. . . . To the Roullier galleries to see the Faggi drawings and the Walt Disney originals, and to the Kuh galleries for the Miros.

Celebrities are everywhere. Bennett Clark, just reëlected senator from Missouri, son of the late Champ Clark, entering the Congress barber shop. . . . And Bob Feller, big, ungainly boy wonder, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, having an ice cream soda, also at the Congress. . . . Montgomery Clift, who plays the rôle of the schoolboy father in Dame Nature, looking at the Gothic things at the Art institute. He looks like a schoolboy off stage, too. . . . After seeing Frank Conroy, who plays the rôle of Death under the name of "Mr. Brink" at the Grand, it was disconcerting to see him at the next table at the Pump room after the performance. . . . Movie Actor Pat O'Brien catching the Santa Fe Chief. . . . Harry Bridges, whose politics are said to be shading from red to pink, getting off a train from the west, John Strachey's latest book under his arm. . . . Miss Gypsy Rose Lee, in a black and red gown with a gold female torso clipped to her belt ["Advertising," says Miss Lee], wisecracking preparatory to going on at the Palace. "In Hollywood they gave me a new hairdo, new eyelashes, a new figure . . . everything new except a contract." . . . "When I played Grauman's Chinese they had to take in laundry to do any business."

Threat.

November sunshine, pink and mauve sunsets, yes. But snow plows are forebodingly lined up along the Illinois Central suburban right of way.

In the Morning Mail.

I believe I'm the gal with the tea ball mentioned in your column today. In my own defense I rush to say that the tea is a medicinal herb concoction, and also that the hot water costs five cents.

P. S. The tea costs $2 the pound.

Something went wrong with the wiring of the big electric sign atop the Hotel Hayes and it read HOT—— HAY—— for several days. A guest telephoned the management and asked irritably if they wouldn't fix the sign. The next evening he alighted from an I. C. train and saw his answer in the sky. The sign read: H——EL ——YES.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There's a perfect beauty of a nail polish for those of you who like the richness of a purplish tinge, but find obviously purple-red nail polish too much of a shock for your eyes. The basic shade of this polish is a rich rosy-red, a shade eternally flattering because it makes the skin look so white by contrast. But by some miracle of blending there is a faint grape tone mixed in with the rosy-red.

This grape tone harmonizes unobtrusively and beautifully when you wear wine costume shades or purple-red rouge and lipstick. And its presence in the polish makes this a good choice if you wear blue, green, or gray. It provides a stunning contrast. When you wear black you'll be less conscious of the grape; your nails will be lackered with what on casual glance is a warm, rich red. This, you see, is a polish with artistic tricks.

It is a deep shade; for those who prefer a paler polish it has a companion piece, much lighter in the basic tone but with a delicate, dusty grape tinge that gives it character. This is a perfect daytime shade for the conservative women who dislike deep polish tones.

Both of these polishes will wear well. But while we think of them we want to remind you that the maker of these has a clear "base" that not only protects against ridges and splitting but gives a smooth surface over which to apply polish. It's particularly valuable to the home manicure.

This same transparent base, which dries quickly, can be applied over as well as under the polish coat.

A Door Closed Softly

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright, 1938, By Alice Ormond Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

David Beddoes, young American, and his cousin, Alison Young, going to a party at Lady Wibbe's stumble by mistake into the house next door. While they are talking to the spinsterish woman who receives them they hear a woman scream and a body fall. The spinster explains it is a parrot. Young Penelope Wibbe says their strange neighbors have no parrot. But they acquire one next day. David learns his former love, Betsy Greentree, lives in the mysterious house. Betsy's father died after losing his money. While traveling in Europe with her aunt, Fanny Rush, Betsy met and married an Englishman, Geoffrey Scarpath. David sends a letter to Betsy, which is unanswered. He confronts Scarpath, who explains that Betsy is suffering from a chronic nervous condition and can have no visitors, that she is being cared for by his sister Evelyn. David gains a secret interview with Betsy and learns she is miserably unhappy. When the specialist, Dr. Broderick, insists on her taking the medicine, which always makes her feel worse, Betsy grows desperate. Alison's friend, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, leaving her flat one night, finds Betsy unconscious on the threshold. Revived she explains Penelope helped her escape. Colin plans to have his friend, Dr. MacConochie, examine Betsy, after he learns Dr. Broderick is a drug addict. Betsy refuses to return with Geoffrey to his London flat. Fanny Rush arrives and stays with Geoffrey, whom she greatly admires. She calls at Alison's and demands that Betsy return to Geoffrey, which Betsy refuses to do. When Geoffrey learns that Fanny intends to disinherit Betsy he kills her, and calls Broderick to help him cover up the crime. Terrified, Broderick arranges for cremation. Betsy receives a forged note, supposedly from her aunt. Geoffrey waits for a chance to see Betsy alone, then tells her that Fanny is dying and calling for her. Unsuspicious she goes with him. Drugged and unconscious she is taken home.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

ANGUISHED WAITING.

Inside the flat David stared about him, slightly dashed. Darkness, save for the fire, and an empty room. "Is this pie a surprise packet?" he whispered, checking his move to the kitchen.

"Light up," bade Alison. "I'll do the scouting."

She was back directly, eyes a bit puzzled.

"Only Mrs. Marshall, Betsy's gone out."

"Out? Why, damn it all, it's after seven!"

"It is funny—and the pie isn't made. She wasn't here at six when Mrs. Marshall came in."

David scowled, plumped down "War and Peace," and discovered the flowers in their moist paper wrapping. "Who brought those in?" he demanded, and next instant was holding up the torn page of the magazine. "Here—what's this? Seems to be a note."

It was a note—scrawled large, apparently at top speed.

"Fanny in nursing home," they read. "Going with Geoffrey to see her, may be my last chance. Quite all right, don't worry. E."

Their eyes met. A pause. Alison said, "So that's it! Well, it is all right—now. Of course. What would be the point——?"

"Why didn't she ring you?" he countered.

"Too great a rush, naturally! My line was probably engaged. Colin said this might happen," she added absently. "Stroke, I expect."

"Nursing home. Means hospital, doesn't it? She doesn't say where."

"Idiot, she didn't know where! Can't you see she'd hardly time to think at all? Look at these chrysanthemums just dumped down."

"He called for her," mused David, darkening. "Does that mean he was on to the nurse being gone?"

"I've no idea. No, David, there's nothing queer about this. She'll be turning up soon."

Alison was probably right. It would be a simple matter to confirm Fanny's illness, not difficult to locate the nursing home, when it came to that. Devil or not, Scarpath was no fool to go luring his wife away on false pretenses. At this stage far too much was known.

"Fanny's letter! Where's she put it?"

David wanted to satisfy himself of the exact wording, but the letter could not be found.

"Most likely in her bag," said Alison. "It did mention not feeling well, something about a bad turn, and the risk of getting excited. David, stop looking glum! I tell you she's all right. Now what are you up to?"

He was dialing Colin. The doctor was making a call. David left a message, and reluctantly peeled off his overcoat. Not so damned late, he comforted himself, considering these flowers were still fresh.

It was late, however, when the steak and kidney pudding—kept steaming long after Mrs. Marshall had gone—came in to be carried out again, hardly tasted. Alison filled two breakfast cups of coffee percolated extra strong and cleared the ash tray of cigarets half smoked. Late? It was 9:30—and still no Elizabeth.

"Do keep away from that window!" Alison ordered irritably. "Such a child you are! [She herself had been hanging out in the rain nearly as often.] What do you propose doing now?"—for David was hauling on his coat.

Arms half in the sleeves, he stopped. That was so; what did he intend doing? Standing, he dialed again, this time a Victoria number, but Mortimer Bream's telephone remained unanswered.

"What's Scarpath's address?"

"Somewhere in South street. Let me think." Alison dug her fingers over closed eyes, but could not remember anything beyond the street. "Wait! Doesn't that detective man know?"

David ground his teeth and strode back to the window. Of course Bream knew—but where was Bream?

Eleven-ten—and Colin's car drew up, mud splashed. In two minutes the whole story was hurled at him. Item by item he took it in, keeping an immobile face. A help, his composure, but while he pondered the advisable move Alison veered completely round from her rôle of comforter.

"It's not like her to leave us in doubt. If she is doing it, Colin, it can only mean she's unable to telephone!"

More than one reason for that, Colin pointed out sensibly. What if the nursing home was far out of London? Obstructions to the line, even a breakdown with the car? For that matter, she might have left word for them to be rung up and the order had not been carried out. They would give her till midnight, after which. . . .

"Yes, what?"

"I think," said he slowly, "we can't go far wrong by informing Scotland Yard."

Both noticed his hesitation, though David fired at once, "Why wait? We've been fools not to do that straight off."

"Leave it to me, then." The doctor dialed the once familiar number, wondering just how he was going to define his position in the affair. "I've an acquaintance at headquarters. If I can just get hold of him. . . . The Yard? . . . Inspector Headcorn, please. . . . O, out on a job, is . . . Then connect me with the Lost Persons department."

What followed was unsatisfactory. The official who answered seemed wooden and, when the facts did penetrate, considered the appeal premature. Thousands of these cases were handed in, and a high percentage of the individuals turned up safe and sound almost at once. Unusual circumstances? Such as—?

In five minutes Colin hung up, exasperated.

"No more than I expected," he announced with a shrug. "The fact of her being with her husband cancels us completely. I daresay you noticed the drop in temperature when I mentioned the name? The Admiral, let me tell you, was a public idol."

"I get it," grunted David. "And we're confounded mischief makers."

"Quite. He virtually said it. Shall we angle for Bream again?"

It was done, without success, but since the detective alone could direct them to the flat where Fanny had been lain ill attempts were continued till a much later hour. By then Colin no less than David was galled by this fruitless twiddling of the dial.

"You try," he advised Alison, scribbling down the number for her. "David and I are going to scour South street—bad gamble though it is. Can you recall the name of the friend who took over the flat?"

Neither American had the faintest recollection of it, nor did any name visible in South street suggest familiarity. The few flat buildings were closed up, not one porter being on deck, understandable, as it was now past three. An exhaustive prowl ended in a stampede back to Bloomsbury. In their absence Elizabeth might have arrived, but no, she had not. Colin went home, leaving David to camp by the telephone and walk the floor till morning.

Proper Makeup Is Important in Portrait Photography

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

With the holiday season approaching, many of us will be thinking of giving a beautifully framed photograph as a gift. Indeed, there's nothing quite like the permanent and flattering reminder of a portrait with which to surprise distant friends and relatives. Here are a few basic hints on correct makeup.

When in doubt about the amount of makeup to use, employ the least possible. The greatest fault of the average woman is her tendency to overapply cosmetics in front of a camera. The camera lenses of today are sensitive to the slightest nuances of color, and a shade too much of lipstick is sufficient to produce in the final analysis a black outline of mouth.

If you're in the habit of using a foundation, select one with a yellow base, rather than a pink tone, since yellow photographs light. Be sure to apply the base on the neck, too, and blend the edges carefully into the natural skin tone. Pat powder lightly on face and neck, and then remove with a facial brush. Only the powder that naturally adheres to the skin should be allowed to remain on.

Use an eyebrow pencil with light, delicate strokes and stick to the natural contour of the brow, rather than attempt a high, unnatural arch [which succeeds only in producing a perennially surprised expression!] A light gray or blue shadow then is applied very sparingly on the lids and blended in carefully. Follow with your favorite mascara, the average amount used for daytime wear.

Rouge, of course, is out. Cheek bone modeling is the thing, and that is something that clever lighting can bring out. Use a light pinkish lipstick of greasy consistency, for luster. Remember that red photographs black, and so spare that extra coat of color. If your lips are well shaped, keep the natural lines intact. On a thin or narrow upper lip, shape the lipstick delicately. With heavy lips, use a minimum of coloring.

A good hairdress takes half the uncertainty out of photographs, while a dash of brilliantine will add a lovely sheen to the hair. Wear a dress with a flattering neckline, or furs, by all means, if you have them. Perfume, while not visibly necessary, adds the proper psychological touch.

Lighting has been so marvelously adapted to studio use that a skilled photographer is able to foreshorten a long face, lengthen a round one, diminish protruding cheek bones, etc. The retouchers take care of details such as straggling wisps of hair and facial lines. All that remains is that the subject face the camera with her best features cleverly accented and imperfections subtly disguised.

Nolf Convinces in His Painting of Farm Folk

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three painters are represented in the Chicago Galleries' new show, 215 North Michigan avenue. The exhibition will run to Nov. 23. In the first gallery are effective character studies by John T. Nolf.

Mr. Nolf delights in painting farmers and farmer boys, the man in his shirt sleeves, a woman in apron and work blouse. He paints in a convincing fashion and often mixes humor with his philosophy. You will enjoy "Solitaire Player," "Gee-Haw," "Boy with Hoe," and "Water Bugs."

The large gallery is hung with a stunning group of landscapes by C. Curry Bohm and of decorative portraits by Sara Crosby Buck. The two kinds of pictures hang well together. Mr. Bohm is so well known as a painter of beautiful landscapes that it scarcely seems necessary now to emphasize the fact. These various canvases speak for themselves. Who else paints winter and spring with such a romantic brush, finding beauty endlessly in fallen snow and flowering bush?

Mr. Bohm paints with great fidelity to truth. The seasons have reason to show him a smiling face; he makes so much of each. His group of paintings are gorgeous.

The portraits by Sara Crosby Buck are delightful. They are friendly paintings, with no one too much on his best behavior. The backgrounds are rich and warm. Mrs. Buck seems to paint age and youth with the same knowing brush. Her portraits of little children are exquisite, but no less charming are the portraits of men and women. "Grace Mary," "Busy," "Jack Jr.," "Mrs. S. J. R.," and "Nancy and Fluff" will give you pleasure.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

If you don't like onions don't let that stop you from buying leeks, for although they look like mammoth young onions, and, in fact, do belong to the onion family, leeks are mild flavored and taste something like asparagus. Cut off only the tail tips and the whiskers, peel off the outer skin, and cook the leeks in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and add seasonings and plenty of butter, perhaps a little grated cheese, too, and you've a treat in store.

An anonymous reader who describes himself [sounds like a man] or herself as a Q. D. S. [quick dinner server] wants a few hints on "various phases of cooking that are old stuff to seasoned cooks." Chief perplexities seem to be: [a] "Does one tablespoon melted butter mean melted before or after measuring? [b] Do you beat eggs at room temperature or directly out of the refrigerator ? And [c] are there any hard and fast rules about cooking vegetables covered or uncovered?"

Replying to question [a] I'd say that it doesn't make a great deal of difference, although I'd measure butter after it's melted for muffins or other batters for the sake of convenience. In answer to question [b] my advice is to always beat eggs after they have been warmed to room temperature, as they'll give better volume. As for question [c], if Q. D. S. will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our mimeographed sheets on the purchasing and cooking of fresh vegetables I believe that he [or she] will be satisfied in this respect.

A reader writes in to ask, much to our surprise, how to bake an angel food with a very thick crust. For years we've been asked how to get very thin, tender crust on angel cake. Thick crust usually results from overbaking or from a higher than normal oven temperature during the first half of the baking period. A thick crust isn't likely to be a tender one, but if a thick crust is what is wanted it shouldn't be difficult to obtain.

Too much of a good food may be as bad as not enough. The other day I heard a physician tell a story about an anemic little patient. The youngster's father, aware that the child must have her quart of milk a day, decided for himself that if one quart was good three would be thrice as beneficial. So the poor child was filled up on milk and, naturally, didn't have room for the fruits and vegetables she needed. As a result she became more anemic than ever. Of course, there's a moral: Don't become overenthusiastic about any one food, for no single food is complete enough to furnish all or even the largest share of nutrition needs.

Know why chives are sold in pots? Because they lose flavor very quickly once they're cut. When you have a potful of chives you can cut them into the salad or cottage cheese shortly before you eat it.

Low Priced Furs Are Styled Like the Luxury Pelts

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Career girls don't need the income of a top executive to keep warm with fur coats in these days of inventive designers. Novelty furs look like luxury stuff and have price tags that fit the budget. No one can complain about the short jackets that feature both high fashion and low prices. Skunk, that wears practically for years on end, is dyed in all sorts of glamorous tones. Kolinsky is another, and long, exotic but extremely long wearing monkey skin outfits require only moderate sums.

Kidskins, gray, brown, and black, make tremendously effective capes, short coats, or swaggers. Boleros are other models priced for limited budgeteers. Fabulously beautiful chubby short jackets of that blue fox toned fur labeled quanaco are available. Sports fur, that is, swaggers and jackets of honey beige fur, are made of lynx, wolf, and trick dyed pelts. Caracul in iron gray, in silver gray, spicy brown, and black are other grand buys for two good reasons—one because of the prices, the other because of the high fashion plus the long wearing qualities. These go with tweeds, with simple daytime outfits of wool, with suits, dresses, sweaters. Most of them are equally good performers for party clothes. They're the pets of any career girl's wardrobe.

Other good finds are the tippets, the fur hoods that can also double for decorative coat collars; the many smart muffs, all of moderately priced furs, but made with all the flair for smartness that you covet in luxury furs.

If you fancy ascots, like them tucked in cozily at your neckline, fur ascots are star attractions. For, with an ascot of fur, fur trimmed gloves and a hat, you can transform a suit or one piece wool coat dress or an unfurred winter coat into a costume of superdistinction.

Special values will be offered next week, which is national fur week.

Roosevelts to Give White House Debut for Niece

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, who will make her debut at the White House on Tuesday, Dec. 27, at a small dance to be given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt, is the daughter of Mrs. John Cutter of Dedham, the former Margaret Richardson Roosevelt, and G. Hall Roosevelt of New York. Miss Roosevelt is a niece of the President's wife. Miss Roosevelt's paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Roosevelt of New York.

Femininity in Every Line

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DIRNDL APRON.

Femininity is the leading quality of this house apron, which will make you a charming picture no matter how busy you are at the time you answer the ring of the doorbell. It has all the grace and beauty of a dirndl frock, even to having wing sleeves that flutter flatteringly. The garment is wonderfully simple to make. The pattern shows you exactly how to cut it and sew it together. The simple and inexpensive expedient of rickrack braid settles the trimming problem.

If you wish, use the pattern a second time for an apron with a halter neckline. This is a novel sort of treatment, and one you will like. Should you prefer it, employ bias binding instead of rickrack for trimming. Both finishes come in a wide variety of colors to harmonize with whatever print you select for the apron. You may use a plain shade, of course.

Style No. 2146 is designed for sizes small, medium and large. The medium size for the apron with ruffled "sleeves" requires 3 yards of 39 inch material with 4¼ yards of braid or binding. The halter neck style requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Young Mothers DO Get Tired, and Need Rest

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

The tired young mother appears a lot in our correspondence. Some people who write on child training might not sympathize with her dilemma—or a man might not.

"One baby and an apartment! Why, how can that tire out a healthy young woman? Ridiculous!"

Only it isn't. It takes another woman who has kept her own home, done her own sewing, cared for her own baby and cared terribly about him to understand.

A baby and a house can tire you out. And when you add to this the fact that to some young mothers housekeeping is new and the care of a baby is still newer, it is easy for those who have been through it themselves to sympathize, instead of being coolly superior! The care of a house and baby requires hundreds of steps a day. When you add to that a tremendous concern for the baby's well being and a mother's close confinement to her duties you have all the makin's of a good hard case of over-tiredness.

The care of babies and young children is insistent and physically wearying, in spite of all its real delight.

Bahais Mark Anniversary of Their Prophet Tonight

The 121st anniversary of the birth of Baha'u'llah, prophet of the Bahaism peace creed, will be observed tonight in the Bahai temple in Wilmette. Baha'u'llah was born Mirza Husayn Ali at Teheran, the capital of Persia, on Nov. 12, 1817. He died in 1892, leaving many writings on social, political, and religious problems. The aims of the Bahais are a universal tribunal, a universal auxiliary language, the elimination of racial, political, and religious prejudices, and adjustment of the labor problem.

Officers' Training Camp Veterans Reunite Tonight

Veterans of the 21st company of the second officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan will hold a dinner and reunion at 6 o'clock this evening in the Medinah Athletic club. The company's original strength was 130 men, of whom eighty-five survive after twenty years. Sixteen were killed in action. William F. Waugh, former assistant district attorney, is company commander. Vice commanders are Charles Trear and John Boyle. Walter Schinz is adjutant.

Knee Warmers, Bed Socks, Scarf Are Easy to Knit

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Hand knitted bed socks and knee warmers are welcome additions to the wardrobe of young and old alike on a winter night when the temperature descends far too low for comfort. Men always love that sense of snugness that attends being wrapped in a soft, hand knitted woolen scarf even if the thermometer reads below the freezing point.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The American Lutheran conference in biennial convention here today elected Dr. E. E. Ryden of Rock Island, president of the conference for the next two years. The Rev. Dr. Ryden succeeds Dr. T. F. Gullixson of the Luther Theological seminary at St. Paul, Minn. Dr. Ryden has been a leader of the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana synod of North America.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

At rubber bridge particularly, when declarer must choose between two lines of play, he should not be greatly influenced by the fact that one line may produce a two trick defeat while the other can lose by only one trick. He should concentrate on only one thing: Picking out the plan with the greatest chance for success. But it goes without saying that when both plans have an equal chance, the safer one should be selected.

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | 1 diam. | Pass |
| 1 heart | 1 spade | 2 diam's | 2 spades |
| Pass | Pass | 3 diam's | Pass |
| 4 diamonds | Pass | 5 diam's | [final bid] |

West opened his fourth highest spade, his partner's bid suit. Declarer had nothing to lose by playing dummy's queen, but East covered with the king and drove out the ace. Declarer then laid down the diamond jack. East won, and since only one spade trick could not defeat the contract, shifted to the club jack. Declarer went up with the ace and then cashed the diamond king, discovering that West still had the ten spot. Obviously, it now was necessary to provide for at least two of South's black losers. To that end, declarer cashed the heart king and led his low heart to dummy's queen. Then, with the mistaken idea that he was taking some insurance against a 4-2 heart break, declarer led a low heart from dummy and ruffed. West promptly overruffed with the diamond ten, and cashed the king and queen of clubs and the spade jack.

As a matter of fact, declarer could not have fulfilled his contract without guessing that the diamond ace had been singleton, which would have permitted him to ruff a third round of hearts with a high diamond and to have finessed against the ten spot in West's hand up to dummy's Q 8. This, however, would smack of double dummy play. My point is that the "safety play" declarer thought he was using [ruffing North's third heart instead of trying to cash the ace] was in reality a danger play. Let us go back to the trick at which declarer, having discovered the position of the diamonds, led the king and a low heart. Now, if the heart suit were to break 3-3, it would be safe to cash the heart ace because both opponents would have to follow and, after that, the diamond queen could be cashed to draw West's last trump and two long hearts run off. If, however, as declarer logically feared, the heart suit did not break, cashing the heart ace at least would provide for the discard of a loser. True, West would ruff and cash two tricks, but declarer still would have saved a trick. If, by any chance, it was West, the defender with the long trump, who also held four hearts, the cashing of the heart queen would be just as safe as declarer's actual play. In short, there was no lay of cards that could give an advantage to declarer's plan over the direct plan of cashing the three top hearts.

The Housewife

November is the ideal time to gather all those small and intriguing Christmas gifts for which you'll find ample use next month. We came across a table, the other day, arranged with fascinating little pieces of faience and pottery from France. There were tiny dishes to be used as ash trays or trinket trays, each one with a different motto in French. The colors were soft blues, greens, and rose. And the prices no more than for a package of cigarets!

For the mantel shelf or the whatnot there were amusing pottery cows, also French, covered with little flowered patterns. And there were small, decorative heads and large, earth-brown vases with yellow tops. All these items have the charm of the unusual. And all are inexpensive.

10,000 PREVIEW 39TH AUTO SHOW OPENING TODAY

1939 Models Presented in Glittering Array.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's 39th annual automobile show, devoted to the progress of the auto world, will open at 2 p. m. today in the International amphitheater, Halsted and 43d streets. It will continue daily, through next Saturday, including Sunday, from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

A preview of the show was held last night for members of the trade and their families. About 10,000 attended to see the 1939 models assembled in a decorative environment. The cars were the main, but not the sole attraction.

There was a pageant depicting the evolution of highway transportation since the civil war. The predecessors of today's powerful streamlined automobiles were led by horse drawn phaetons followed by one cylinder horseless buggies. The oldest automobile was a Tally-ho, manufactured in Chicago in 1896. Pretty girls in appropriate costumes rode the vehicles.

Foreign Queens in Court.

More girls appeared during an intermission. Eleven "nationality queens," winners of contests in Chicago's foreign language newspapers, promenaded in the colorful national costumes of the countries they represented.

In the central arena of this stock yards exhibition building, the larger motor companies displayed some of the interesting scientific devices used in testing and developing today's automobiles.

The crowd tarried among the new models. This is the only opportunity to see all of them under one roof, convenient for comparisons. Women as well as men paused at mechanical exhibits — stripped chasses, split motors, and the like—all labeled for a ready understanding by the type of automobile owner who never looks under a hood except at an automobile show.

Prices Generally Lower.

A scrutiny of price tags showed that as a whole the 1939 models will cost less than their 1938 forerunners. Just a glance at the isles of polished vehicles showed that advancements have been made in style. Attendants pointed out and explained mechanical advancements promising better performance.

Streamlining is more advanced than ever this year and every model boasts multiple mechanical improvements. Virtually all the new cars have the gear shift lever on the steering wheel and the conventional handbrake mounted up under the dash. New heating and ventilating systems likewise predominate, some cars offering air conditioned rides. Motors generally are peppier and more economical and possess superior riding qualities.

Admission to the show has been reduced this year to 40 cents before 4 p. m. and 55 cents thereafter. For children 12 years old or younger the price is 25 cents.

120 Freshmen Have a Pull; Out-Tug Chicago U. Sophs

Outnumbered by more than two to one, sophomores at the University of Chicago yesterday lost their annual tug-of-war with the freshmen. The freshmen, with 120, easily pulled fifty sophomores all over the university circle. Then they tossed each other into the botany pond. Emmett Deadman, editor of the Maroon, the campus newspaper, also was given a ducking.

Turns on Gas to End Life; Blast Lands Him in Jail

Police from the Town Hall station went to a room on the second floor at 4432 Clifton avenue yesterday after an explosion had been reported there. They found windows blown out and Adolph Johnson, 59 years old, sitting on the floor. Johnson, a retired mail carrier, said he had attempted suicide after his wife left him. He had turned on a gas stove and the pilot light exploded the gas. Johnson was taken into custody.

HUNTER STRUCK BY SHOT LOSES HIS RIGHT EYE

Theodore Orlowski, 17 years old, and Casimir Gregorowski, 23, were in high spirits at dusk yesterday as they tramped home from a day's hunting. Each had bagged two pheasants.

As they neared Green Bay road, a mile west of North Chicago, Orlowski stopped suddenly, put his hand to his face, and said, "My eye hurts." Gregorowski took him to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan. There it was found a stray pellet of birdshot had lodged in his right eye, causing such damage doctors were forced to remove the eye.

The shot had been fired by another hunter whose identity was not learned. Orlowski lives at 1113 North 14th street and Gregorowski at 1224 North 14th street, both in North Chicago.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Maybe they won't break down any gates at Stagg field this afternoon in eager frenzy to see the football match between the College of the Pacific Tigers and the University of Chicago Maroons. They don't fight to get seats in Stagg field as they used to when Amos Alonzo Stagg and his Maroons were at the height of their glory.

A. A. Stagg.

The several thousand Maroon homecomers, most of whom have developed a startling apathy toward football on the Midway, perhaps won't keep very close tabs on first downs and goal line stands, this afternoon. But for many it will be an afternoon of highly emotional episodes and memories.

Stagg Comes Back.

Amos Alonzo Stagg will be back in the arena where he was the main figure in some of football's greatest triumphs. It will be "The Old Man's" first trip back since he ended his forty-one years as the University of Chicago coach six years ago.

He will be welcomed with joyous enthusiasm. It'll be great to have the fine 76 year old warrior back home again. The rest of the sentimental side of the return of Stagg isn't so cheerful. While it is "The Old Man's" first trip back, it also may be his last. The game with the College of the Pacific is not one of a series. The Tigers, it is said, probably never will appear again on a Maroon schedule.

Whether the Tigers or the Maroons win this afternoon those in attendance will see, in the flesh, a stirring example of a sincere man's love for his lifelong work, teaching boys to play football courageously and honorably.

With all respect to the background and purposes of the College of the Pacific, Amos Alonzo Stagg's job is not a glamorous one. The institution was not very much heard of east of the Sierra Nevadas before they told Stagg at the Midway that he was through as faculty member, athletic director, and coach.

Turns Down Offer.

Mr. Stagg didn't have to go to that comparatively obscure college to make a living. When he came to the point where he had to be relieved under the retirement laws of the University of Chicago, enforced among all faculty members at the university, Mr. Stagg was not pushed out into the cold. He was told he could remain at an annual salary of $10,000 as a representative of the university in Big Ten councils. It wasn't to be a pensioner's job. There was plenty to be done to keep an active man of 70 busy.

Mr. Stagg's salary at Pacific is not a public matter. There is evidence, however, that it isn't $10,000 a year. But this year Stagg is thoroughly enjoying his 49th year of coaching football. That apparently is all that counts.

We guessed that the athletic department is not richly endowed. We may be wrong. But the fact remains that Stagg and his boys came here packed in one tourist sleeper. Tourist sleepers are not, as you may know, the last word in rolling stock. They have no streamlining whatsoever and sometimes the cushions are a little dusty and the air conditioning a little stuffy.

No Frills Here.

Rich teams usually carry more new footballs than there are football watch charms at an alumni rally of a big football school. Stagg brought five footballs, one almost new.

Mr. Stagg is not athletic director at Pacific. Robert Breeden is athletic director and he doubles in arnica. He also is the trainer of the squad.

These things are set down not in a spirit of scoffing. Perhaps such things should not be noticed. But to

U. C. L. A. ADMITS THAT BADGERS HAVE A CHANCE

Weiss Is One Cause of Bruins' Concern.

Referee—Nibs Price [California]. Umpire—Dr. R. W. Huegell [Marquette]. Head linesman—James Tunney [Loyola of Los Angeles]. Field judge—John Getchell [St. Thomas].

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The team that beat the team that beat Minnesota rolled into town this morning and found itself established as a slight favorite in tomorrow's intersectional game at the Coliseum.

Harry Stuhldreher's Wisconsin Badgers have been made a 4-3 choice over Bill Spaulding's U. C. L. A. Bruins, but against the visitors' victory over Northwestern last week after the Wildcats had defeated the Gophers U. C. L. A. fans point to the Bruins' record for 1938, which establishes this year's squad as second only to the team of 1935 which tied for the Pacific Coast conference championship.

A New Offense.

Principal reason for the Bruin victory record this year is the newly installed wide open system of offense, which has produced at least one touchdown in every game. U. C. L. A. has been defeated only twice—by Oregon, 14 to 12, and by California, 20 to 7. This aggressive brand of football has produced a total of 119 points for Spaulding's team this season.

The Badger defense will have to concern itself most with Kenny Washington, the towering 200 pound colored half back, who has scored seven of U. C. L. A.'s touchdowns this year, four of them on runs ranging from twenty-four to fifty-one yards. Other outstanding Bruin backs are Hal Hirshon, Merle Harris, and Chuck Fennenbock. They are excellent passers and the U. C. L. A. aerial attack has been an effective threat all season.

Badger Backs Good, Too.

Against the Bruins' array of back field talent Wisconsin offers a potent combination which includes probably the Big Ten's best full back in Howie Weiss. Spaulding, who had occasion to observe Weiss against Purdue, said of him: "If I hadn't seen Bronko Nagurski play I'd rate Weiss the greatest full back of them all."

Defensively the Bruins have the best record in the coast conference, a total of thirty-five points having been registered against them as compared with the sixty-five points scored by Wisconsin's rivals.

Second Big Ten Foe.

This is the second Big Ten foe the Bruins have faced this season and the third in their football history. They defeated Iowa, 27 to 3, in the opening game of the year here. In 1931 Spaulding's squad lost to Northwestern, 19 to 0, in Evanston.

The Wisconsin team arrived in excellent condition this morning. A light workout was held on the Loyola university field this afternoon.

St. Ambrose Finishes Third Season Unbeaten

Indianola, Ia., Nov. 11.—(AP)—St. Ambrose college of Davenport, Ia., finished its third straight football season without a defeat today by romping over Simpson, 20 to 0, before 1,500 homecoming fans. Only two ties, one with St. Benedict's college of Atchinson, Kas., this fall, mar St. Ambrose's record in the last thirty-one games. The Bees lost their last game in 1935 to De Paul university.

THREE TEAMS IN TIE FOR SIX DAY BIKE RACE LEAD

Italians Deadlocked in Late Jam.

| De Bacco and Wissel | 2,184 | 4 | 247 |

Leader—W. Peden.

Three teams were tied for first place in the six day bicycle race in the Chicago Stadium following a ten minute jam early this morning. Alvaro Georgetti and Cesar Moretti had been leading the race, but in the jam Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel gained two laps and Torchy and Doug Peden one to deadlock the Italians. The race ends at midnight tonight.

Technically the Germans held the lead, having a substantial margin in points over the Pedens, who are second in this respect.

Two Tied for Second.

Two teams—Walthour-Crossley and Rodman-Thomas—were in a mileage tie for second place, one lap back of the leaders. Two laps back came three more teams, Audy-Yates, O'Brien-Testa, and Debaets-Guimbritiere. Chasing the field was De Bacco-Wissel, five laps behind the pace setters.

At 10 o'clock last night seven teams were tied for first place, but Gerard Debaets and Marcel Guimbretiere soon broke this deadlock. Then the Italian riders went to work. They gained one lap, which put them on even terms with Debaets and Guimbretiere, and then at 10:30 o'clock they gained another, which gave them first place.

Birthday Celebration.

In the final hour tonight, from 11 to 12 o'clock, there will be a sprint every mile for points. First place will count 72 points, second 4, third 2, and fourth 1. In event of a spill or an accident in the final hour, time will be taken out and added on after 12 o'clock.

It was Reggie McNamara's 54th birthday yesterday, and friends at the race presented him with a cake and flowers. McNamara responded by riding around the oval and the crowd enjoyed this.

Wolverines and Wildcats Clash Today Before 70,000

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 11.—Pay your money—as many as 70,000 may do that—and take your pick. That's all that is known of what may happen tomorrow when Northwestern's Wildcats and Michigan's Wolverines wage sixty minutes of football warfare that either will help to clear up or add confusion to the present Big Ten title race.

Instead of making definite predictions, the experts as well as the respective partisans are cutting corners. They are "if-ing" themselves and each other with talks of which line will prove the better and which passing attack might click.

All that is definite is that the actors will be two formidable squads for which there is only one basis of comparison. The Wolverines lost to Minnesota by a missed point after touchdown. The Wildcats skinned the Gophers without much extra effort.

They're Talking Statistics.

With fear of a wrong guess putting a halter on the usually bold predictors, the atmosphere hereabouts was filled today with statistics on past performances. The figures on what has been done are interesting, but don't mean much because they weren't compiled against the same opponents.

On rushing Michigan's previous foes picked up 403 yards, Northwestern's opponents accumulated 609. The Wolverine adherents consider these pleasing.

Michigan's earlier foes gained 675 yards and scored five touchdowns on passes. The Cats have backed up only 279 yards under air pressure, which netted their opponents two touchdowns.

Will Wildcats Pass?

The threat of Lynn Waldorf, the Purple coach, to forget his previous combination and open with a lineup fairly dripping with good passers and receivers, hasn't been entirely gobbled up by the Michigan strategists headed by Coach Fritz Crisler. They suspect that Waldorf, after his charges had been outpassed by Wisconsin last week, might be using this as an opportunity to disturb the Wolverines' preparatory plans. But the latter have been drilling diligently on a pass defense.

The Wolverines, having any number of backs who can throw the oval, don't have to be ashamed of their own passing ability. It has proved a profitable item many times this season. In the Yale game they set up a touchdown and scored another on passes. They threw only one against Minnesota but it figured in the eighty-nine yard touchdown drive on which Danny Smick missed the kick for extra point that would have meant a tie. Against Illinois, Michigan completed six out of thirteen aerials and against Penn ten out of eighteen.

The Cats were quartered this afternoon over at nearby Dearborn and Waldorf continued to stick to his previous declaration that he would Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Indiana's football team observed Armistice day by making final preparations for the fourteenth battle in the Hoosiers' warfare with Iowa here tomorrow afternoon.

Fifteen thousand are expected to see the Hoosiers' last home game. The crowd will include newspaper men attending the Indiana journalism conference, as special guests of the university, and several hundred high school students who will be admitted at a special rate in observance of High School day.

Coach Bo McMillin sent the Hoosiers through a forty minute rehersal of offensive and defensive assignments today. He made three changes in the probable opening lineup. John Janzaruk will start in place of John Widaman at left end; Steve Nagy replaced Bill Smith at left guard, and Harold Hursh was at left half in place of Vincent Oliver.

Iowa, with one Big Ten victory to none for the Hoosiers, rates as a slight favorite in tomorrow's game.

The Hawkeyes this season have lost to Wisconsin and Minnesota, won from Chicago, and tied Purdue. In conference competition, Indiana has lost to Ohio State, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Indiana has not won a football game since it defeated Iowa, 3 to 0, last year in Iowa City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 11.—Illinois and Ohio State, long among the Hatfields and McCoys of Western conference football, will resume their feud in Memorial stadium tomorrow afternoon with interests varying but vital to each.

For the Buckeyes the game will provide an opportunity to redeem themselves for their defeat by Purdue last week and thus sustain their chances for a chunk of the Big Ten championship. This premise, of course, is based on whether they can lick not only the Illini tomorrow, but Michigan, as well, next Saturday. If they would share in the title, the Ohioans must accomplish the two victories, for their scoreless tie with Northwestern now assumes a derogatory complexion.

A Number of Incentives.

For Illinois there are a number of incentives. There will be the presence of a Dad's day crowd of from 15,000 to 18,000, bringing back paters to the school which lays claim to having founded the idea of setting aside a game for male parents. There is also the matter of retrieving the Illibuck, the wooden turtle which symbolizes the morrow's rivalry much as does the little brown jug of the Michigan-Minnesota vendetta and the old oaken bucket of the Purdue-Indiana series. Ohio State has held the prize since 1935.

More important to the Illini, however, is the need for fattening their conference record on the win side, for they have only a decision over Indiana to their credit, the while losing to Northwestern and Michigan. Victory against the Buckeyes, topped off by a last game conquest of Chicago next week, would give the Illini a highly respectable season percentage of .600.

The two schools have met twenty-six times in football, with the series deadlocked at twelve victories apiece and two ties.

Chance for Upset.

Ohio State's propensity for fumbling, combined with what seems to be an ingrained yen for lateral passing after completion of sizeable forward tosses, was quite obvious against Purdue last week. If the Illini will stay on top of the ball, they might easily come through with the upset which a decision for them would be.

Chief hopes of the Illini rest on the return to active duty of Mel Brewer, the reformed guard from Carbondale whom Coach Bob Zuppke hoped to be a mainstay, both on offense and defense at the season's outset. Brewer will start at quarter back, a position from which injury took him on Oct. 8.

Buckeyes in Danville.

The Ohio State party is in Danville, 35 miles away, where the Buckeyes will spend the night. Coach Francis Schmidt said that Co-Capt. Alex Schoenbaum and Sophomore Jimmy Strausbaugh, the latter the Buckeyes' No. 1 offensive threat, will not start. Both were injured in the Purdue game. Strausbaugh's place will be taken by Don Scott, another sophomore, while Joe Aleskus, the tackle who hops into the back field for long distance passing, will understudy Schoenbaum at the kickoff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 11.—Fifty-six thousand, if all remember that the game starts at 1:30 o'clock, a half hour advance over the usual time, will watch the kickoff that opens hostilities between Notre Dame and Minnesota tomorrow afternoon. For the following two hours these partisans of the Irish and Gophers expect to see the battle of the season, a contest which will extend Notre Dame's victory march to seven, or in checking that drive restore Minnesota glory dimmed by recent defeat by Northwestern's Wildcats.

Harry Stevenson.

Minnesota never has beaten Notre Dame although on old Cartier field back in 1927 when Bronko Nagurski first joined the Gophers, Minnesota managed a 7 to 7 tie. Minnesota tomorrow has forfeited the favorite's position it held last year when the Irish whipped the Gophers, 7 to 6. Some may believe, despite Northwestern's triumph over Minnesota, that Notre Dame, now the public choice, may fail to come through.

Interest Runs High.

This is true: The result can not be forecast with any certainty, and, because of the rivalry for sectional supremacy and the Irish bid for national honors, twice 56,000 would see this battle if it were possible. Millions will listen to it. Three national radio chains will be represented by their ace reporters. Three other stations will carry individual accounts. Every seat in Notre Dame's press box, one of the largest ever built, has been assigned.

Tonight the Notre Dame student body and alumni groups joined in pre-game celebrations comparable only to those in other victorious seasons and worthy of this final home game for the Irish. Hotels are filled to capacity. Tomorrow railroads will handle a record number of passengers.

Power vs. Speed.

Always vociferously loyal, the unbroken success of Notre Dame this season has sent Irish enthusiasms to a pitch matched only in the championship years of 1929 and 1930.

Minnesota's veterans, encamped tonight in a Chicago loop hotel, will arrive in the morning. The test in this game is defined in the often repeated slogan, "power against speed." There is no question of Minnesota's power.

Nor will any one question the speed of the Irish ball carriers and the success of their slashing off tackle drives, their sweeping runs, Stevenson, Sheridan, Saggau — the "S" men in this attack—supported by the powerful thrusts of the Irish full backs, the finest crew since 1930, have translated Notre Dame's blocking into scores.

Up to the Linemen.

Minnesota's linemen hold the answer to tomorrow's result, will they check the Irish runners as did Carnegie Tech for fifty-one minutes before yielding one touchdown? Or will they falter before these hard driving backs as they did before Tom Harmon, Norm Purucker, and Paul Kromer of Michigan? It is true, of course, that Minnesota's last despairing assault by air in that Michigan game brought victory although the Gophers were previously outplayed. And this likewise is one more cause for worry by the Irish who respect the passing ability of Harold Van Every.

Larry Buhler and Marty Christiansen, Minnesota's husky full backs, will test the Irish line more effectively than has any preceding opponent. But power may not win. Even should the Gophers march to a touchdown, Notre Dame's superior speed, a constant threat, and advantage in replacements, with the probability of better kicking and certainly equal passing, threaten more than one touchdown.

BEARS PROTEST 2 OF REDSKINS' PASSING PLAYS

Coach Halas Acts to Have Maneuvers Barred.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The intense rivalry between the Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears growing out of the National Football league playoff game a year ago was heightened yesterday by a protest of two Redskin plays by Coach George Halas of the Bears.

Halas will seek to have the plays, both pass maneuvers, barred when the Redskins and Bears meet in Wrigley field tomorrow in a game vitally important to the pennant chances of each club. Both plays are illegal, he contends.

One is a short forward pass from punt formation and the other a short pass off a spread. Washington defends the legality of both. The punt formation play resulted in a forty-three yard gain on Washington's first play of last year's championship game when Sammy Baugh, standing in the end zone, passed to Cliff Battles, the full back. Only a miraculous tackle by Safetyman Ray Nolting prevented Battles from continuing forty-nine yards to a touchdown.

What Rule Says.

In both plays, Halas points out, the Redskins block ahead of the receiver before the pass is thrown or completed, violating rule 7, section 5, article 4. The rule reads:

"During a forward pass play [whether or not the pass crosses the line of scrimmage] there shall be no interference whatsoever beyond the line of scrimmage with any player of either team who is eligible to catch the pass, except such interference as may occur when two or more eligible players make a simultaneous and bona fide effort to catch or bat the ball."

The penalty for violation of this rule is fifteen yards from the point of the preceding down and the loss of a down.

Spread Formation Maneuver.

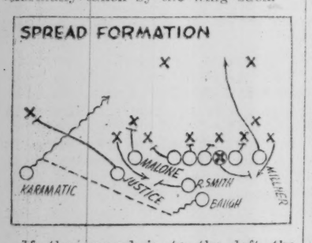
The spread play places the Redskins' fastest back out wide on a flanker. The remaining backs line up in a tandem with a blocker in the position normally taken by the wing back.



If the spread is to the left the left end blocks the center, or backer up, and the wing back races out to cut down the man covering the flanker. The pass goes to the flanker, who takes it behind the line of scrimmage and cuts inside the man blocked out. Motion pictures of last year's game and scout reports this year indicate that Washington uses these two plays with considerable success.

Flaherty Defends Plays.

"Halas' protest is unwaranted," said Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins. "Both plays are within the rules. In the spread the blocking isn't done until the pass is completed and on the punt formation play the screening is perfectly legal as long as no ineligible crosses the line of scrimmage before the full back catches the ball.

"Furthermore, we have some pretty sharp officials in our league whose duty it is to call all irregularities. We've been using those plays for three seasons and haven't been called yet. We'll use them again Sunday, too, and if there is any rule violation it's up to the officials to call it. Not Halas."

Close Entries for Western Dog Show Tonight

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Dog Owner, this is the last day you can enter your dogs in the Western Specialty show to be held at the Coliseum next Saturday and Sunday. After 11 o'clock tonight no more entries will be accepted by show officials.

If you wish to enter your dog, and already have an entry blank, send it or take it to A. Wilson Bow, Atlantic hotel, making sure that it arrives before 11 p. m.

The judging schedule for next Saturday is as follows: 10 a. m.—Boxers, Pomeranians, Toy Manchester terriers, and male Dobermann Pinschers; 2 p. m.—male Dobermann Pinschers [continued], bull terriers, Pekingese, Great Danes, and chow chows; 5 p. m.—Ladies' handling classes; 7 p. m.—English springer spaniels, Irish setters, German shepherd obedience test classes, Airedale terriers, and Scottish terriers.

Judging of bulldogs, Chihuahuas, Boston terriers, cocker spaniels, and dachshunde will start at 10 a. m. Sunday. At 1 o'clock English setters, collies, fox terriers, Sealyham terriers, and Dobermann Pinscher bitches are scheduled. The children's handling classes, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, will be started at 5 o'clock Sunday. At 7 p. m. German shepherds, Irish terriers, and standard schnauzers will be judged.

N. Y. U. STRIKES QUICKLY; UPSETS COLGATE, 13 TO 7

Violets Score Twice in First Period.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Violets of New York university bloomed today as they hadn't bloomed all season, upsetting Colgate, 13 to 7, before a crowd of 25,000 in Yankee stadium for their first major victory of the year.

They shoved over two quick touchdowns in the opening quarter—one of them accounting for the first score against Colgate on a pass this season—and then fought back gallantly as Colgate started to click in the last half. Twice in the closing quarter they held inside their 5 yard line.

Ed Boell, the Violets' only "triple threat," was the hero. His quick kick in the first five minutes gave the Violets the opportunity of scoring their opening tally, and his two long passes, not many moments later, produced the second.

HOLY CROSS, 14; BROWN, 12.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Surging from behind in the last 45 seconds, Holy Cross barely won from Brown, 14 to 12, today before a holiday crowd of 25,000.

Bill Osmanski scored both the Crusaders' touchdowns and Jim Turner added two extra points by placement in a last period rally which made up for two earlier scores Holy Cross had canceled by offside penalties.

Brown covered sixty-eight yards in eight plays to set up "Bones" Stepczyk's two yard plunge for a touchdown, three minutes after the opening whistle sounded. The Brown's counted again in just about that many minutes after the third period kickoff. Taking the ball on Holy Cross' 30, John McLaughry twisted his way to the goal line, fumbled, and George Mawhinney, Brown's right guard, recovered for the touchdown. But, the invaders missed both their chances for points after touchdown.

Led by Osmanski, the Crusaders punched and passed their way to the Bear's 5 early in the final period and the big full back scored after three tries through the line. Holy Cross intercepted a pass on the Holy Cross 28 three minutes before the end of the game and launched an offensive which finally saw Osmanski go over from the 2 yard line for the deciding touchdown.

BOSTON COLLEGE WINS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—[Special]—Boston college remained on the nation's list of unbeaten football teams today when it won from its city rival, Boston university, 21 to 14. Twelve thousand watched the game. Boston university scored its two touchdowns in the final period.

Northwestern or Michigan? It's Your Guess

To increase the possibilities of success by passing, Waldorf has promised to start Ted Grefe and Bob Daly, both good catchers, at the ends in place of Capt. Cleo Diehl and Tom Eby. He also has indicated that his starting left half, in place of Jack Ryan, will be Sophomore Paul Soper, who will be battling in his home state.

Meanwhile Michigan has another worry in the physical condition of Capt. Fred Janke, who injured his left ankle in Tuesday's practice. He may start but if he isn't in there his left tackle job will be given to Don Siegel, moved from the right side of the line. Siegel isn't a new number for the Wildcats. He raised hell with their offense last year, although Northwestern was the victor.

Maybe the String's Run Out.

If there is anything to the old saying that all good things happen in threes, Northwestern has exhausted its string. The Cats have trimmed the Wolverines in their last three gridiron arguments. The first of these three was in 1934, when the Purple triumphed by 13 to 6. There was no meeting the next fall, but in '36 Northwestern won by 9 to 0 and repeated last year by 7 to 0.

The string of three triumphs represents half of the Purple's victories over Michigan in thirteen battles. The first was in 1892, Northwestern winning, 10 to 8.

CONSOLIDATION OF U. S. HARNESS GROUPS PLANNED

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Approximately 100 horsemen from nineteen states and one foreign country, meeting here in a three day conference, called tonight for the consolidation of the five principal harness horse racing organizations of the country into a single governing body by Jan. 1.

Officers of the National Trotting association, the United Trotting association, the United Trotting association, the Trotting Club of America, and the American Trotting Register association all agreed the resolution was the most far reaching move ever made by the American harness turf.

A committee of eighteen representatives of the five groups signed a resolution which asked for the dissolution of the old organizations and the substitution of the new one. Other committees began deliberations immediately on rules, starting of horses, classification of trotters, and forms of organization for the new central body, yet to be given a name. The committee recommendations will be presented to the full convention tomorrow afternoon.

TRADITION DRAWS 50,000 TO YALE, PRINCETON GAME

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Fifty thousand persons will be drawn here tomorrow for the Yale-Princeton game, although the contest is between two teams whose records hardly compare with those of many other elevens throughout the land.

When the teams line up for the kickoff there will be members of the old guard on hand who have witnessed fifty of these contests. The first game of the series was in New Haven in 1873 and the Tigers won, 3 to 0. The next meeting was in 1876 and the rivals have met every fall since then, except for the war years of 1917-'18.

In the first game a forty-five minute delay occurred when the ball burst. Another had to be rushed from town by horse and buggy. That was the first of a chain of incidents being recalled around the clubhouses tonight, and that will be handed down through generations.

DARTMOUTH, CORNELL MEET.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Undefeated and untied Dartmouth, with high hopes of capturing eastern Ivy league football honors, meets the last and possibly the stiffest obstacle in that quest tomorrow, when the Indians face Cornell before a capacity crowd of close to 30,000 on Schoellkopf field.

Cornell's regulars are in fine shape for this battle. The Big Red, beaten only by Syracuse, has been idle since beating Columbia two weeks ago.

FORDHAM VS. NORTH CAROLINA.

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Fordham university's once beaten and once tied football team comes up against another detachment from the army of southern elevens invading New York this season when it meets the University of North Carolina in the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY DIES FOLLOWING FOOTBALL INJURY

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Eugene Tartaglia, 16 years old, a junior at Kearny, N. J., High school, died last night in West Hudson hospital a few hours after he was injured while carrying the ball in a neighborhood pickup football game with six on a side.

Doctors reported the boy suffered internal injuries when he was tackled. After he was hurt he sat on the sidelines for a time, but his friends soon took him home.

The family doctor was called and ordered him removed to the hospital, where an operation was performed.

CARBONDALE IS BEATEN, 15 TO 0, BY CHARLESTON

Charleston, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The Charleston Teachers' football team clicked in the first half of an Armistice day football game today to score a Little Nineteen victory over Carbondale. The score was 15 to 0. The defeat plunged Carbondale into the conference cellar.

Franklin McMillan, Carbondale half back, fumbled late in the first quarter and recovered in the end zone to give Charleston two points.

CARTHAGE WINS, 13-7.

Macomb, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Carthage college scored a 13 to 7 victory over Macomb Teachers today before 5,000. Macomb led, 7 to 6, at the half.

Carthage's first touchdown came soon after the opening of the game. Stewart of Macomb punted to his own 45 yard line, from where Carthage drove to a touchdown, Geiger plunging over from the 1 yard line. Geiger missed the extra point and Macomb went ahead when Kraushaar went over from the 1 foot line after Edlin had blocked a Carthage punt and Macomb recovered on the 25 yard line. Kraushaar added the point.

Early in the second half Carthage recovered a fumble by Edlin on the Carthage 20 yard line and in five plays scored. Hobson went over from the 3 and Geiger kicked the point.

WHITE PERFORMS FOR HOME FOLKS; PIRATES LOSE, 17-6

Colorado Springs, Colo., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Los Angeles Bulldogs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 17 to 6, in a professional football game today.

Whizzer White, Colorado university's All-American back last year, had an in-and-out day in his first appearance before a mountain crowd as a $15,000 performer for the Pirates. His only fumble was quickly converted into a Los Angeles touchdown by Homer Beatty, former Southern California end, who scooped up the ball and ran thirty-five yards for the score in the third period.

Los Angeles worked a fifty-six yard pass play for its first touchdown in the opening period. Ray Clemons, guard from Centenary who lined up at end for the play, scored. Gordon Gore ran the Los Angeles count to seventeen in the third period by kicking a forty-four yard field goal.

Marquette and Michigan State to Meet Today

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The Marquette university and Michigan State college football teams will clash in Marquette's homecoming game here tomorrow. This will be Marquette's final appearance at home this season. The Hilltoppers will leave next week for games on the road with Arizona and Texas Tech. Michigan State will wind up its campaign against Temple at East Lansing Nov. 19.

Marquette has yet to win a game at home this fall. The squad has had two weeks in which to prepare for the game and will be at full strength.

Michigan State has dropped decisions to Michigan, Santa Clara, and Missouri. The Spartans were in poor physical shape for last week's game with Missouri but, it is understood, will be back in form for the battle here. Main reliance of the invading team is Johnny Pingel, triple threat left half back who was rated among the best college punters last fall.

Probable lineup:

| MARQUETTE. | | MICHIGAN STATE. |
|---|---|---|
| Vosberg | L. E. | Dieat |
| Siefert | L. T. | Garrett |
| Kemnitz | L. G. | Griffeth |

ILLNESS WON'T STOP FAN, 72, IF HE CAN HELP IT

Louis [Doc] Cook, former basketball coach and assistant athletic director at the University of Minnesota, was taken to Presbyterian hospital last night after becoming ill on a train en route from Minneapolis to Chicago, where the Gophers stopped last night before going on to Notre Dame for the game today with the Irish.

Cook, who is 72 years old and has been connected with the Minnesota athletic department from 1897 until his retirement two years ago, was taken to the hospital when it was feared a cold might have developed into pneumonia. After an examination he rejoined the Gopher party in a loop hotel and if he feels all right today will accompany the squad to Notre Dame.

Rodie, Alden Win Matches at Madison A.C. Ring Show

Harold Rodie and James Alden won the feature five round bouts in the weekly amateur boxing show in the Madison Athletic club last night. Rodie defeated John Crane and Alden was awarded the decision over James Davenport. Other results:

Stanley Stockings beat Tom Gibson [3].
Tom McDonough beat Mike Sopko [3].
Ed Sala beat John Duncan [3].
Ted Thomas beat John Marzullo [3].
Kermit Eaton beat Joe Loscueto [3].

Maroons and Stagg's Team Meet Today

those who know how the teams travel about the league which Amos Alonzo Stagg long dominated there is a striking note of contrast. Just the same, you don't have to feel sorry for Mr. Stagg or his Tigers. They are happy, confident, and willing to take their football without the streamlining and the air conditioning.

The Old Man apparently is getting a big kick out of his return. But with all the sentimental business going on yesterday, he ran out on a lot of tea pouring and homage paying planned in his honor. Without any announcement he went out and hired a big bus. He loaded it with his protégés and led a sightseeing tour.

Shows Boys the Town.

He wanted them to see that there isn't any difference between the Pacific ocean and Lake Michigan unless you have to go some place in a big boat. And a lot of other things he still thinks are all right in the old town. The sightseeing went on all afternoon and the boys said they enjoyed it. And Mr. Stagg probably thought it was a pretty swell way to spend an afternoon, too.

Of course Mr. Stagg and the Tigers won't be bus riding this afternoon. They are decidedly out to win themselves a football game. And the Old Man won't be able to duck the sentimental touches, not the least of which will be the presentation of a scroll by the Order of the "C," founded by Stagg to establish a bond among all men who won their letter on the Midway. The scroll, presented "with love and affection," is addressed to the "All Time, All America Coach."

Stagg brought the spirit of sportsmanship he tried to instill in every team he coached to 1,500 students and alumni who gathered last night around a huge bonfire in the university circle.

Stagg Addresses Students.

"I have sorrowed in your defeats," said Stagg, "and I have rejoiced in your victories. If you win tomorrow, it will be all right. And if the College of the Pacific wins, it will, of course, be all right.

"My responsibility as a coach makes it my duty to do all I can to bring victory to my team. But my feelings will not be hurt, regardless of who wins the game. Yours are friendly faces—mine is the same to you."

North Shore Country Day Beats Chicago Latin, 19-13

North Shore Country Day school defeated Chicago Latin, 19 to 13, yesterday in Winnetka. North Shore led, 12 to 0, in the first half, but Latin rallied to take a 13 to 12 advantage. A pass, Bob Gordon to Henry Gordon, in the fourth quarter scored the winning points for Country Day.

THREATENED RIOT ENDS ST. LOUIS PRO GAME EARLY

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 11.—(AP)—An American league professional football game between the Louisville Tanks and the St. Louis Gunners was called seven minutes before time ended tonight when members of the Louisville team menaced Referee Ernie Lyons and the fans poured onto the field threatening a free-for-all. The game was scored as a 16 to 7 Gunner victory.

Threatened trouble broke out as Mike Sebastian scored the second touchdown for the Gunners. Members of the Louisville squad rushed at Lyons, and the Gunners closed in to protect the official. Players from the benches ran onto the field and the spectators came out of the stands. Order was quickly restored, but the game was called.

Cubs, Brewers Sign Working Pact for Year

The Cubs yesterday signed a one year working agreement contract with the Milwaukee club of the American association, the first plan of its kind in the history of baseball. The National league champions will be able to obtain any players optioned to the Brewers, but a clause in the agreement prohibits them from purchasing outright any Milwaukee player.

P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, and Henry Bendinger of Milwaukee announced the deal following a conference in the Cubs' office. Bendinger also announced that Mickey Heath, former major league first baseman, has been appointed manager of the Brewers for the 1939 season, succeeding Al Sothoron.

Brewers to Develop Players.

The Cubs' deal with the Brewers is to develop young players, said Charles Drake, assistant to Wrigley. The Cubs will send players to Milwaukee on option and they may be recalled, but stars developed by the Brewers must be sold to the fifteen other major league clubs.

"It is the first agreement of its kind in baseball," said Drake. "It is absolutely coöperative in that we get the benefits of players developed by Milwaukee and Milwaukee gets the benefit of using them during that period. We agreed not to purchase outright any Milwaukee player."

Won't Retard Players.

Under this plan, Wrigley explained, no young player's rise to the major league will be retarded as it often has occurred under the present farm system used by several major league clubs. Heath is expected to report the progress of youngsters to the Cubs.

GLEN ELLYN PLAYS FOX LAKE.

The Glen Ellyn Bears will meet the Fox Lake eleven on Memorial field in Glen Ellyn tomorrow seeking their fifth victory.

DE PAUL FACES ST. LOUIS U. IN LAST HOME GAME

Blue Demons Out to End Losing Streak.

De Paul university's football team will attempt to end its five game losing streak against St. Louis university in Loyola stadium, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, this afternoon. The game will finish De Paul's home season.

Six members of the De Paul team will be making their final home appearances. They include Capt. Tom Roberts, tackle; Clem Naughton, end; Frank Jenks and Jim Patek, guards; Wally Malinowicz, full back, and Bill Corrigan, quarter back.

St. Louis Strong Foe.

In St. Louis De Paul will be playing one of the most powerful opponents on its schedule. The Billikens whipped Catholic university, 13 to 0, the week before the Washington, D. C., eleven defeated De Paul, 14 to 13. Last Saturday Mississippi, one of the south's strongest teams, was held to a 14 to 12 decision by the Billikens.

Coach Cecil Muellerleile has two exceptional back field men in Capt. Denny Cochran and Mel McGonnigle, both of whom run, pass, and kick. De Paul will depend on the punting of Corrigan and the running and passing of Ed Norris.

Five Sophomores Start.

Five sophomores will be in the Demons' starting lineup. They are Nee, full back; Henehan, tackle; Svienty, guard; Hynan, center, and Weinberg, end. Coach Ben Connor is looking toward next year and his use of sophomores in the last few games has reflected this.

In three games played with St. Louis the record stands at one victory apiece and last year's 7 to 7 tie. Probable lineups:

| DE PAUL | | ST. LOUIS. |
|---|---|---|
| Johnson | L. E. | Sexton |
| Roberts [Capt.] | L. T. | Brooks |
| Patek | L. G. | Schmisseur |
| Hynan | C. | Drabelle |

NORMAL WINS CROSS-COUNTRY MEET; LOYOLA 2D

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Capturing individual honors as well as four of the following six places, Illinois State Normal runners easily won a cross-country meet from five other colleges today. The team totals were Normal, 21; Loyola of Chicago, 60; Charleston Teachers, 62; Wheaton, 95; Monmouth, 125, and Macomb Teachers, 130.

Marion Cole, Normal freshman, won the race, running the 3.65 miles in 18:46. His Normal teammates placed second, fifth, sixth, and seventh.

35,000 WATCH AS BAYLOR CRUSHES LOYOLA, 35 TO 2

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Baylor overwhelmed Loyola today, 35 to 2. Thirty-five thousand football fans turned out to watch the passes of Billy Patterson, who threw four touchdown passes. He also presented Loyola with its two points. Standing in his end zone, he flipped a short pass that fell incomplete back of the goal.

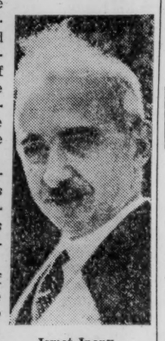
INONU, TURKEY'S NEW PRESIDENT, PLEDGES PEACE

Was Ataturk's Right Hand Man for 13 Years.

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Grim Gen. Ismet Inonu today assumed the presidency of Turkey and pledged himself to continue the work of his friend, the late Kemal Ataturk, for the country's "peace and progress."



Ismet Inonu. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

[The new president's name is pronounced Iss-Met (as in miss and get) Ee-No-New (long o.).]

The cares of government came as no novelty to doughty Inonu, 58 years old and hard of hearing, who was premier for thirteen of the fifteen years Ataturk ruled until his death yesterday. He, too, was 58.

He succeeded to the presidency by vote of the national assembly at a time when the future of Turkey is clouded by the Balkan aims of Germany.

Pledges Peace, Progress.

Inonu was silent on foreign policy in his inaugural speech, but as chief spokesman for Ataturk in the signing of an accord with Russia, traditional enemy of the former Ottoman empire, he was considered certain to preserve Turkey's friendships with the soviet union and Great Britain.

"The Turkish nation and its glorious army will be unsparing in their efforts to further peace and progress," the new president declared to the wild acclaim of the assembly after a 101 gun salute.

Observers expressed belief that Turkey, strategically situated athwart the golden horn commanding the narrow straits between the Mediterranean and the Black sea, had no alternative except friendship for Britian and Russia in view of Germany's eastward drive.

New Cabinet Formed.

The unsmiling president's first act was to charge Premier Djelal Bayar with the formation of a new cabinet. This he has done quickly. He dropped the veteran foreign minister, Tevfik Rustu Aras, who had been in Ataturk's cabinet for thirteen years. Minister of Justice Sukru Sarocoglu succeeded him. Foreign Minister of Public Health Refik Saydam will be the new home minister, succeeding Sukru Kaya.

As Inonu assumed office, Ataturk's body lay in state in the marble throne room of Dolma Bagtche palace in Istanbul where courtiers and envoys once bent knee to Sultan Abdul Hamid.

U. S. JUDGE ASKED TO FREE FORMER SALES TAX AGENT

Federal Judge John P. Barnes was asked yesterday to release Edmond F. La Voie, former sales tax inspector for the state finance department, from the county jail. The release would be contingent on La Voie's promise to repay $4,124 which he received from an auto sales company now in bankruptcy. He has been in jail since July 14, when he was held in contempt by Judge Barnes.

Attorney H. J. Rosenberg told the judge that friends of the prisoner had raised $400 for a down payment on the sum due. La Voie, he said, has been assured of a job and will turn over all earnings except living expenses to the trustee in bankruptcy. Judge Barnes said a hearing on the request would be held Monday.

La Voie was acquitted in Criminal court last March on a charge that he accepted the money from the McFadden Motor Sales company as a bribe. He contended it was the repayment of a loan. The federal judge ruled that he had received it without proper authorization.

PHYSICIANS SEEK SOLUTION OF BROTHERS' DEATH

Physicians at the Illinois Research hospital yesterday began examination of the vital organs of two bachelor brothers in an effort to solve their unexplained deaths Thursday. An autopsy failed to disclose the cause of death.

The brothers, Oscar, 59, and Victor Peterson, 57 years old, were found dead on their farm near Braceville in Grundy county. Each occupied a separate house on the farm. Each was fully clad, lying in bed.

Another brother, Anton, 3540 West 64th place, said his brothers had unusual ideas of diet, ate no meat, and believed they would live to be 100 years old. Neither had been attended by a physician.

EXPECT CAPITAL WILL BE KING'S ONLY U. S. STOP

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to the United States next spring likely is to be confined to a stay in Washington. That was said in usually reliable quarters today.

It was said they are not likely to go to New York and its world's fair, because the invitation they accepted, that of President Roosevelt, was a personal one to visit him in Washington.

[Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada said in Ottawa the British king and queen would be in Canada about the middle of May, landing at Quebec. On their departure, after a tour of Canada and an overland trip to Washington, they will sail from Halifax.]

The king and queen are expected to travel without attendance by any British ministers, since Canadian ministers will have the right to accompany the ruler as king of Canada.

TYPHOID MARY, HELD PRISONER 23 YEARS, DIES

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Death today ended the strange life of Mary [Typhoid Mary] Mallon, 70 years old, who had been a prisoner for the last twenty-three years in an isolation hospital on lonely North Brother Island because of germs. She was the most notorious typhoid carrier New York City has ever known. Although healthy herself, she spread the disease through whole families until she was caught and imprisoned by force. The first case traced to her was in Mamaroneck in 1900. In 1907 she was found working as a cook on Park avenue and was kept in the island hospital until 1910. In 1915 she was returned to the hospital because she was found again spreading the disease through food prepared in a kitchen where she worked.

Banker Bruce's Wife Hurt Seriously in Hunting Fall

Kennett Square, Pa., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Howard Bruce, wife of the Baltimore banker who represents Maryland on the Democratic national committee, was seriously injured today when her horse fell dead during a fox hunt near here on the estate of W. Plunket Stewart. Mrs. Bruce regained consciousness at the hospital, but remained paralyzed in her right side.

Examine Cat for Rabies After It Bites Owners

Charles Chilewski and his wife, Stella, were scratched and bitten yesterday by their cat in the yard of their home at 6347 Hyacinth avenue. The cat was taken to the Jefferson Park police station and will be tested for rabies. The Chilewskis were given first aid.

LOUIS BROMFIELD TO QUIT EUROPE, BUY FARM IN OHIO

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer prize novelist who has lived in Europe most of the time since he served there in the world war, said today he is returning to his native Ohio to buy a farm because his children demand it.

Louis Bromfield.

The author sent his three daughters—ages 14, 11, and 6—back to Ohio last summer when war threats were spreading over Europe.

"It was the first time they had been back here since they were babies," Bromfield said prior to his departure tomorrow night for his home town of Mansfield, O. "After they had been here for a time they were delighted with the freedom and with their chances to play with other children without being swamped with propaganda of one sort or another. They said they would not live in Europe again after their delight in living in Ohio. So I've come home to buy a farm."

HUNTER'S DEATH CALLED ACCIDENT.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest over Angelo Cubelotti, 19 years old, 1318 North 24th avenue, Melrose Park. Cubelotti was killed by a friend's shotgun Thursday while returning from a rabbit hunt.

QUINTS "FINE"; THEIR LIGHT DIET INCREASED

CALLENDER, Ont., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets, whose tonsils and adenoids were taken out two days ago, advanced from a diet of only orange juice and water to semi-solid foods and custard today.

Their physician, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, said the quints were "just fine" but added that they will be kept in bed for five more days to forestall any chance of complications.

The five little girls objected to this ruling and clamored to get up. But the doctor said "no."

Mrs. Jennie R. Mitchell, 81, West Side Resident, Dead

Mrs. Jennie R. Mitchell, 81 years old, whose father took part in the California gold rush of 1849, died last night in her home at 1845 Washington boulevard. According to her son, Ralph, her father was Baron von Reddish, who came to America from Germany and was one of the first men to come out of California with news of the gold discoveries. Mrs. Mitchell and her husband, Aaron, who died nearly two years ago, operated a grocery on the west side for many years. She was a past president of the Patriots of America. Surviving Mrs. Mitchell in addition to her son is a daughter, Mrs. Marian Snyder.

HUNT DROWNING VICTIM IN LAKE AND FIND A HERO

Lake county deputy sheriffs were summoned yesterday by excited Fox Lake residents who saw a rowboat floating, bottom up, in the middle of the lake. The deputies, Frank Kazlausky and Edward Tornquist, started making the round of lake shore homes. They came to the cottage of Louis Fiala, 65 years old, who is the grandfather of Mrs. Kazlausky.

Fiala cleared up the mystery. In a matter of fact way he explained that he had rowed to the rescue of Edward Drey, whose boat had overturned while he was shooting ducks. Hampered by heavy clothing, Drey was struggling in the water, which is 25 feet deep at that point.

Drey's shotgun was lost overboard, but wedged under the seat of the boat, when it was brought to shore, was found a mudhen Drey had shot before the near tragedy occurred.

It's something to shout about, all right—whether you understand that newsboy or not.

He's saying "Extra! hit of the show." And he's referring, of course, to the new 1939 Body by Fisher—on display today in all of its new beauty and luxury—on all of the new General Motors cars at the Auto Show.

WOMAN TENDS COWS 50 YEARS; RECEIVES MEDAL

(Picture on Back Page.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Unperturbed by the honor recently conferred on her at the Alton stock show, Miss Tilly Phillips continues to do the job she has been performing for fifty years.

It's a man's job, too. Miss Phillips is cattleman on the Bonham farm at Alton. In recognition of her long service in this task usually reserved for men, she was given a medal at the stock show.

At the age of 13 she began tending cows and bulls. And now at 63 she goes about the daily familiar task, clad in a shapeless felt hat, old gray sweater, denim dress, and rubber boots. Miss Phillips says she plans to keep on with the same work for many years.

FLORODORA GIRL LEAVES $500,000; 14 SEEK A SHARE

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Fourteen relatives are seeking the $500,000 left by Mrs. Matilda A. Bryan of Atlantic City, the former Tillie Foreman of Florodora Sextette fame. They told Vice Chancellor William F. Sooy in their court action yesterday that the little black bag she always carried contained a final will which would have given each of them a share in the estate.

This claim was contradicted by Mrs. Helen Boyle of Baltimore, a niece, who got most of the estate.

The will benefitting Mrs. Boyle was drafted in 1934. The other relatives argued that a later will, drafted in 1937 by Vernon Cook, a Baltimore lawyer, left only $100 a month to Mrs. Boyle.

GIRL BRIDE, 12, KEEPS HOUSE IN FORMER STORE

Logan, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A mountain girl, 12 years old, and her husband, 28 years old, set up housekeeping today in their "honeymoon cottage"—an abandoned store building—while Logan county authorities studied possible action against the newlyweds and the bride's mother.

The couple, Helen Glidas and Clifford Adkins, were married yesterday in Chapmanville, W. Va., across the mountain from Curry, where the bride and bridegroom went to live with her mother and a brother, 10 years old.

Margaret Sutter, assistant county clerk, said Mrs. Clidas told her Helen was "past 15." The legal age for marriage in West Virginia, with consent of the parents, is 16.

MIDDLE WEST'S PROFITS HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

Third Quarter, Nine Months Better.

The Middle West corporation had higher earnings for the third quarter and the first nine months of this year than in the corresponding 1937 periods, Purcell L. Smith, president, reported yesterday.

Purcell L. Smith.

Consolidated net income of Middle West and subsidiaries in the three months ended Sept. 30 increased to $1,194,655, compared with $902,227 in the corresponding 1937 quarter. In the June quarter, this year, net income was $351,764. These results were after deduction of full dividend requirements for the period on preferred stocks of subsidiaries held by the public.

Nine Month's Figures Compared.

On the same basis, the company had consolidated net income for the first nine months of $1,897,271 equal to 56 cents per share of capital stock. This compared with net income of $1,321,847, or 39 cents a share, in the first nine months of last year.

Total operating revenues of the system for the nine months increased to $45,591,453 from $44,572,773 in the same 1937 period. Electric revenues this year accounted for 82.5 per cent of the total, amounting to $37,617,187, which was an increase of 4.46 per cent over the 1937 period.

The report of consolidated operations excluded those of the Central Illinois Public Service company and the Lake Superior District Power company, in which Middle West has substantial interests, but does not control, because the preferred stocks carry voting privileges.

Separate Subsidiary Reports.

Separate reports were issued for the two subsidiaries, both of which also had higher profits for this year. Operating revenues of Central Illinois Public Service increased for the nine months to $10,104,613 from $9,682,166 last year. Net income rose to $1,210,859, against $1,059,629. For the September quarter, net income of $575,846 compared with $494,582 in the third quarter of last year.

Lake Superior District Power's net income for the first nine months totaled $324,003, against $268,649 in the same period last year. Gross operating revenues increased to $1,529,124 from $1,470,938.

The Walworth company, New York, manufacturer of valves and pipes, reported for the first nine months a net loss of $1,092,036 in contrast to a net profit of $1,254,024 in the first nine months of last year. Indicated loss in the third quarter amounted to $224,601, against profit of $231,529 in the third quarter of 1937.

Oil—3.

When George H. Bissell, the lawyer, went back to Dartmouth college to see his friend, Prof. Crosby, they sat down at Crosby's desk to talk over old times. And as they reminisced, Bissell noted a small bottle on the professor's desk. It was filled with dark fluid.

Bissell asked what it was and Prof. Crosby said, in effect: "That is a kind of mineral oil that comes from salt wells. I believe it might be refined and used for illumination."

After Bissell left the old professor, an idea so filled the lawyer's mind that he set about to put it into action. He would find a way to distill the crude oil.

In those days wealthy people burned whale oil for illumination, or used an oil obtained from coal [hence coal oil, a name that still is used in some places for kerosene]. But whale oil and oil from coal were too costly for the common people, who used candles, or tossed pine knots into the roaring fireplace to light the room.

All this was to be changed by Bissell's idea. He formed America's first oil company and erected stills to make kerosene from oil that came out of the salt wells and from the tops of creeks.

Yanks in China Demand Door Be Kept Open

TIENTSIN, China, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The American Chamber of Commerce of Tientsin today adopted a resolution indorsing the United States note of Oct. 6 which demanded that Japan preserve the "open door" in China.

The chamber urged a firm stand immediately to preserve the "open door."

Charge Trade Rights Broken.

The resolution also cited what it termed infringements on the trade rights of third powers. It pointed to a recent resolution along the same line by the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai.

The Tientsin resolution referred to what it called Japanese pressure to compel the transfer of American trade agencies to Japanese firms. It urged the United States to prevent such a move.

Assert Japs Block Purchases.

The chamber charged that the Japanese were obstructing purchases of Chinese wool and fur products for American firms. It said Japanese authorities were earmarking for themselves all Chinese products required by Japan.

Moreover, the resolution asserted there was censorship of United States magazines and mails, discriminatory travel regulations, and currency and trade control at Kalgan, trade gateway for Inner Mongolia.

NATIONAL REAL ESTATE BOARDS SLATE OFFICERS

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Edgar L. Ostendorf, Cleveland, O., was nominated for president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at the annual convention today. He is a former president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers. The election will be held tomorrow.

Charles S. Wanless, Springfield, Ill., was proposed for treasurer, and Newton C. Farr, Chicago, was named for regional vice president for the Great Lakes region. Henry G. Zander Jr., Chicago, was among new members recommended for the board of directors.

Division and affiliated groups elected officers. James D. Downs, Chicago, was reëlected president of the institute of real estate management, the professional branch of the national association.

George Nixon, Chicago, was chosen a member of the executive committee of the land developers' division.

Greater Chicago Safety Council Makes 33 Awards

The Greater Chicago Safety council last night awarded thirty-three plaques to winners of safety contests. The awards were made at a dinner in the Hotel Sherman. The contests were conducted during the last six months among industrial and transportation companies.

New Financing Declines During Week of Election

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—New financing for the short election week amounted to only $22,128,850, compared with $41,342,348 the previous week, Poor's Publishing company reported today. A year ago the total was $1,352,000.

BUSINESS BITS

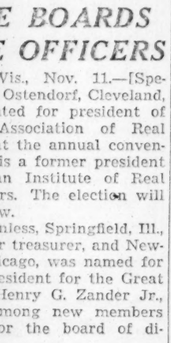
S. D. Welsh has been appointed superintendent of operations for the entire system of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. He formerly was superintendent of the western division.



S. D. Welsh.

More than 300 delegates en route to the annual convention of the American Bankers' association were entertained by Chicago bankers last night at a dinner in the Stevens hotel. Arch W. Anderson, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, acted as master of ceremonies. Later the delegates boarded a train for Houston, Tex., where the convention will be held.

AUTO OUTPUT EXCEEDS YEAR AGO WEEK FOR FIRST TIME THIS YEAR

Automobile production this week exceeded output in the corresponding 1937 week for the first time this year, Ward's Automotive Reports announced yesterday.

Production of cars and trucks in American and Canadian factories amounted to 86,300 units, compared with 83,325 in the same 1937 week and with 80,030 in the preceding week of this year. Ward's pointed out that the movement ahead of 1937 figures climaxed eight weeks of steady advance in automobile output. The low point for the year was 18,700 units in the last week of August.

This week was the third consecutive one in which a new high for 1938 was set. Ward's said the automobile business appeared to be in the healthiest state of any time in the last fifteen months.

PREDICTS NEW TRADE PACT FOR CANADA AND U. S.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11. — [Canadian Press.] — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today that "an early announcement may be expected that an agreement, on broader and more comprehensive lines than that announced on this day three years ago, has been reached in our further trade negotiations with the United States."

A three year agreement signed in Washington expires on Jan. 1. Since last April a Canadian mission has been in Washington negotiating a revised agreement.

The prime minister was unable to forecast today whether the new treaty would be signed by Nov. 15, but he indicated it would not long be delayed.

New York Central Reports $917,974 Loss in September

The New York Central Railroad company reported yesterday a net loss for September of $917,974, compared with net income of $224,495 in September, last year. September operations brought the loss for the first nine months to $21,433,123, against $7,235,793 in the first nine months of 1937. Total operating revenues in September were $25,801,585, against $30,703,439 last year. The results included all leased lines.

U. S. STEEL UNIT TO CUT PRICES ON TIN PLATES

First Move Benefits Canning Industry.

A price reduction in coke tin plate was announced yesterday by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation.

Coke tin plate was lowered to $5 per base box of 100 pounds, at the Pittsburgh or Gary mills, a cut of 35 cents from the old quotation. The new price will hold for shipments for the remainder of this year and the first three months of 1939.

Canning Industry Affected.

Coke tin plate is used principally in the canning industry. The reduction had been expected in steel circles, and can makers had been delaying orders pending the announcement. The new quotation brings prices for coke tin plate in line with those of hot rolled sheets, which were reduced last June.

The company also announced a cut of 35 cents to $4.30 a base box on special coated manufacturing ternes. Ternes are a product of tin mills, but are coated with lead, and are used in miscellaneous manufacturing activities. This reduction is likewise effective for the rest of 1938 and the first quarter of 1939.

The Inland Steel company also announced a reduction in coke tin plate prices from $5.35 per base box of 100 pounds to $5. New prices will apply on shipments for the remainder of 1938 and the first three months of 1939.

Weirton Expands Operations.

The Weirton Steel company yesterday resumed operations at its No. 12 open harth furnace, stepping up open harth operation to full capacity in the Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., plants for the first time since August, 1937.

Company spokesmen said 30 additional men would be employed at the furnace, but declined to estimate the number of additional employes in the finishing departments. Approximately 12,000 men are employed in the company's Steubenville and Weirton mills.

DOLLAR'S VALUE RISES IN LONDON; STOCKS QUIET

LONDON, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The foreign exchange market was active today despite the holiday which closed marts in Paris and New York. The United States dollar continued to advance.

Stocks moved sluggishly in a narrow range as traders waited for the New York Stock exchange to reopen. U. S. Steel was an exception, gaining more than a point. The fact that the Paris bourse was closed diminished trading in speculative issues, such as the oils and gold minings.

Closing stock prices follow:

Sen. O'Mahoney, Democrat, Calls Pump Priming Failure

Governmental "pump priming" and concentrated government power were attacked yesterday by United States Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.]. He spoke before the fifth annual convention of the American Finance conference at the Drake hotel. Senator O'Mahoney is chairman of the National Economic committee.

Senator O'Mahoney.

"The total expenditure of the federal government last year was 11 billion dollars in its efforts to restore prosperity," he said. "It is plainly demonstrated that 11 billion dollars will not restore prosperity when a national income of 80 billion dollars is what is needed. Only private initiative can bring prosperity of that kind."

Want to Keep Liberty.

People want to work out their own economic salvation in their own way, Senator O'Mahoney added, and there is no question that the fundamental desire of all Americans is to preserve their liberty. He asserted that "the trouble is that the people have been prevented from doing this by concentrated private economic power and concentrated government power."

Two dominant fears confront Americans, according to the speaker. One is the fear of monopolistic control of the economic system. The other is fear of control of the people's activities by the government. The National Economic committee was created, Senator O'Mahoney said, to collect facts as a basis for a solution of these fears.

Seeks Expanded Business.

"Our problem," he explained, "is to discover a way in which greatly expanded business can operate so as to create a maximum of benefits, and at the same time prevent all but a minimum of abuse."

Earlier in the day State Senator G. Erle Ingram urged the setting up of state automobile dealer licensing laws at the request of the dealers themselves. Ingram is counsel of the Wisconsin banking commission.

Distinguishing between voluntary and involuntary regulations, he said, "On the one hand you will have an act which creates a department with no sympathetic understanding of the business possessing arbitrary control. On the other hand, you may have a department which is set up for the benefit of the industry itself, and whose policies are formed and directed by the membership in an advisory capacity."

President Owen L. Coon of Chicago and all other officers of the conference were reëlected at the closing meeting.

Department Stores' Sales 8% Under '37

The federal reserve board reported yesterday that department store sales in the United States during the week ended Nov. 5 were 8 per cent under those of the similar 1937 period. This was a poorer showing than in the preceding week, when sales were only 5 per cent off from a year ago.

Sales in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district dropped 13.5 per cent under those of the corresponding week last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said. In the preceding week the decline from 1937 was 5 per cent.

Of all federal reserve districts the first [Boston] district made the best showing. Sales there were 7 per cent larger than in the like 1937 week. The third [Philadelphia] district, with sales off 15 per cent, made the poorest showing.

In the city of Chicago department store sales were 13.7 per cent under those of the similar week last year. In the preceding week they were only 4.6 per cent under a year ago.

CITRUS SHIPMENT CONTROL FACES FIGHT IN TEXAS

Weslaco, Tex., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Another battle over control of the shipments of citrus fruits from Texas became certain today with announcement by a group of shippers and growers that they would file protests with the state and federal departments of agriculture.

The growers' control committee voted earlier this week to impose volume proration. They took this action despite objection from the shippers' control committee, which had favored controling the movement by keeping the poorer grades and smaller sizes of fruit off the market.

A number of growers have joined the shippers' committee in plans to protest volume control, under which each shipper is given a weekly quota. Last year the growers' committee was successful in enforcing volume control.

27 STATES MAKE UNIFORM BANK CONTROL RULES

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The program of uniform standards of banking supervision announced by federal banking authorities last June has been adopted so far by twenty-seven states. The executive committee of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks reported this today at its convention here.

The report said of thirty-six states from which reports had been received fourteen had put the uniform program into effect without modification, eleven with only minor variations, and two with only one significant variation—namely: the use of market quotations instead of eighteen month averages for valuation of securities.

Banks and Markets to Reopen Today

Banks and leading security and commodity markets in this country will reopen today after yesterday's closing for observance of Armistice day. French and Canadian markets also will reopen.

MONEY, GOLD AND SILVER

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Banks and financial exchanges throughout France were closed today in celebration of Armistice day.

VIEW ELECTION AS MANDATE TO NEXT CONGRESS

Must Aid Recovery, Say Business Men.

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today interpreted last Tuesday's election, in which the Republicans made wide gains. The chamber said the result was the country's mandate to congress to concern itself more with promoting recovery and re-employment, and less with initiating experiments and reforms.

The chamber said the voters signified a desire for more "realistic and deliberate approach to national problems," and have given a "go slow" signal that will be reassuring to business.

"This implies," said the chamber, "that ill-advised and hastily-drawn legislation adversely affecting business will encounter closer scrutiny and face stiffer resistance in a congress in which the balance of power is more evenly divided."

Regards Policies Rejected.

As viewed by business this expression of public sentiment indicates a loss of faith in "planned economy and vast spending as a means of restoring prosperity," the review states. It also indicates an increasing resentment toward "coercive and compulsory" legislation, and signifies the country's desire to remove some of the "legislative handicaps which are preventing a broader expansion of business and employment.

"Moreover, business is encouraged to note that the public generally, as shown at the polls, appears to have a better understanding of the services and functions of business and the difficulties that it has encountered in trying to operate under imposed hindrances," the review continues. "The more cheerful congressional outlook, together with the lifting of the usual preëlection uncertainty and hesitation, should have a beneficial effect in strengthening business confidence."

Expects Uphill Fight.

Business has no illusions about the fact that there will be stout opposition to proposals for making needed readjustments in regulatory legislation and for reducing federal expenditures to a level the nation can afford, the review added.

The new congress will be confronted with a number of problems if it "adopts a more prudent fiscal policy," the chamber said, listing the following specific questions which will arise:

Whether it shall vote large blank-check appropriations or revert to the traditional practice of exercising full control over public spending.

Whether it shall continue the present extravagant relief policy, which invites political manipulation, or inaugurate a more efficient system in which states and municipalities will bear a larger measure of responsibility, as well as cost.

Other Problems for Congress.

Whether the policy of "pump priming" with borrowed money shall be continued, or normal and permanent recovery shall be promoted by relaxing excessive controls and restrictions now impeding business progress.

Whether loans and grants to subsidize new enterprises competing with private business concerns shall be continued, or give way to a policy of fair play for private business enterprise.

Whether larger armament appropriations shall increase the size of the budget or be offset by reduction of expenditures elsewhere.

Whether new or expanded services shall be undertaken at this time, or put off until the national treasury is in better financial position to support such additional services.

Investors' Guide

Accumulated Dividends.

Investors' Guide: I hold some preferred stock of a company on which there are several years' dividends in arrears. If I sell this stock now will I get these dividends when they are paid or will I lose my right to them by selling my stock?—D. E. S.

Answer: You will have no claim on accumulated and unpaid dividends if you sell your stock. Dividends on stock, whether in arrears or not, are paid to the registered holder of the shares on the record date fixed by directors when the dividends are declared.

A company is not obliged to pay dividends on its stock. If the stock is cumulative preferred the full amount of dividends must be paid on the preferred stock before any payment can be made on common stock. Beyond this prior claim on earnings, however, holders of the preferred shares have no more claim to dividends than holders of common stock.

Grigsby-Grunow.

Investors' Guide: Is Grigsby-Grunow stock worth anything now?—A. H.

Answer: The Grigsby-Grunow company became bankrupt in 1934. The sale of assets did not provide enough to pay claims against the company. The stock has no value.

Milford Canning Bonds.

Investors' Guide: I wish to have what information you can give me on the new bonds of the Milford Canning company of Milford, Ill.—F. J. P.

Answer: The Milford Canning company on Sept. 30 filed a statement with the Illinois securities department covering an issue of $200,000 of first mortgage 5½ per cent bonds to be offered for sale in Illinois. Proceeds would be used, it was stated, to retire the remaining $104,000 of 6½ per cent bonds now outstanding of an original issue of $235,000, and to reimburse the treasury for expenditures on improvements and increase working capital.

The company is engaged in canning corn. It began business in 1912, and has been under the continuous management of its present president, L. H. Risser. Capitalization, other than the funded debt mentioned above, consists of 1,000 shares of $100 par common stock.

The company reported total assets of $711,490 on July 2, 1938. Current assets were $338,638 and current liabilities were $246,123. A net loss of $3,500 was reported for the first half of this year. Net income was $39,032 for all of 1937, compared with profits of $30,144 in 1936 and $51,687 in 1935.

Business Books

"Credit Manual of Commercial Laws," by National Association of Credit Men, New York City. Price, $6.50.

Several timely subjects, designed to aid business men and particularly credit men in the solution of problems arising out of newly established laws, are included in the thirty-first edition of this manual. Among the new subjects covered are the Chandler act, the wages and hours law, fair trade laws enacted in many states during the last two years, trust receipts, a calendar of corporation reports and taxes, and a list of uniform laws adopted in certain states.

Besides the new topics, the manual contains revised summaries of laws by states, legal forms used in business transactions, and a table showing the limitations by states for civil actions. This edition, containing 768 pages, is the largest ever published, and is completely indexed for handy reference.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Mallards Fly South.

Nov. 11, 1938.

STORMS in the middle west early this week brought a few more wild mallard ducks to the farm ponds. These birds stayed in the north to enjoy the autumn weather until snow and high wind forced them to leave Wisconsin lakes for warmer climates.

In October each year early mallards arrive on the farm ponds. Some are raised locally and others come down when the first autumn storm arrives in the north. Severe autumn weather sends more birds southward, some of which always come to the farm ponds and stay until freezing weather. Then they fly farther south.

Visitors Are Banded.

Four more mallards—two hens and two drakes—were banded and released this week. These birds were given band numbers 711914-15-16 and 17. They were tossed into the air so they could return to the farm ponds and enjoy the food and open water provided for them.

Another mallard duck that came into the wire trap at the edge of the big pond was a repeater. This was a black female duck which was banded a month ago. Records kept on all banded birds show that this duck first entered the trap Oct. 14. It was given band number 711909. After the number on this bird's band was checked it was again released.

The land traps where songbirds are trapped and banded have had few visitors recently because there are few small birds on the farm since the autumn migration. This week, however, business picked up at the trapping station, which is located in the center of the farm. Three juncos were caught in the small wire traps. They were banded and released.

Find Way Into Traps.

It's not surprising that some of these welcome winter visitors should find their way into the small traps, for the junco is a seed eater that is quite abundant during fall and winter. These birds spend their summers in the north. When autumn comes they make a short migration south of their breeding range to spend the winter in an area that is mild compared with the north country. Every winter scores of these cheerful and trim looking birds are in the fields, along fence rows and in the woods.

The traps are in a thicket that includes a number of tall weeds. It is the type of place that a junco might visit while on a hunt for seeds.

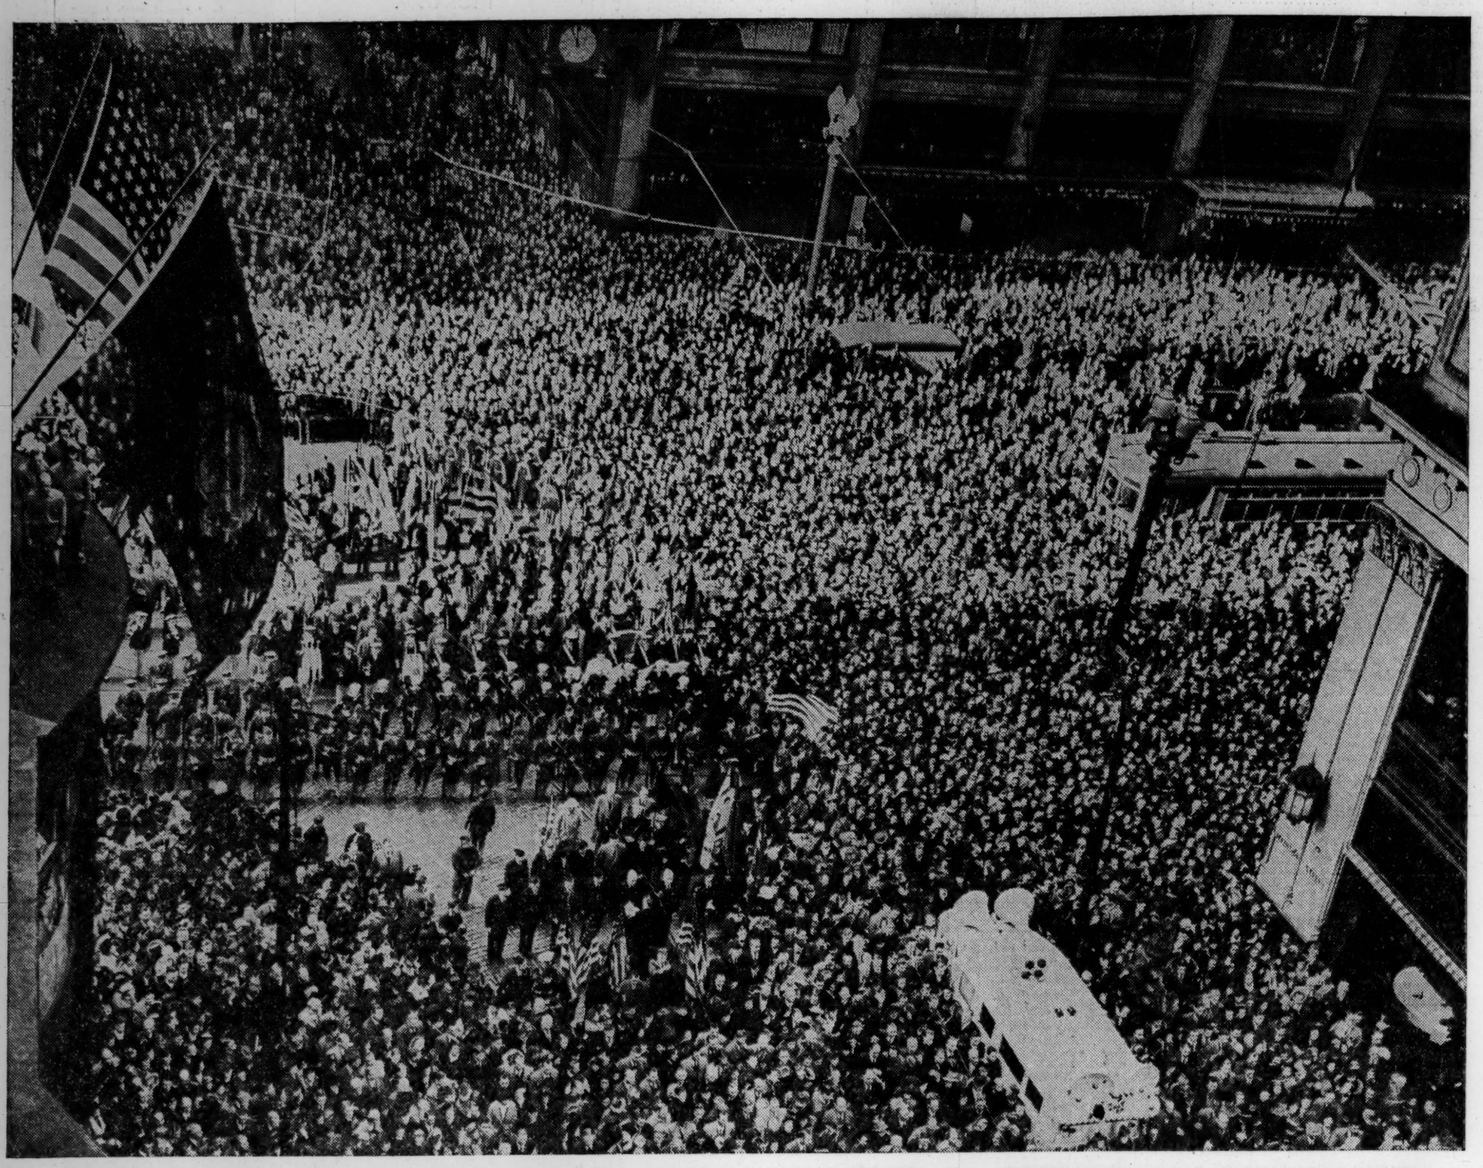
Plan Elaborate Funeral for Ald. John J. Coughlin—Windsors and Gloucesters Meet in Paris



CROWD AT STATE AND MADISON STREETS AS CHICAGO PAUSED IN ARMISTICE DAY REMEMBRANCE

Ald. John J. Coughlin of the 1st ward, who died yesterday at age of 78, in a recent picture as he opened straw hat season and as he appeared in his young bathhouse days.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mud battle at Botany pond on University of Chicago campus as freshmen and sophomores ducked each other after freshman victory in annual tug of war. (Story on page 16.)

[Acme Photo.]

Miss Tilly Phillips, age 63, "cattleman" on farm at Alton, England, for 50 years. Recently she was presented with medal in recognition of long service. (Story on page 20.)

Eleanor Roosevelt, niece of President's wife, who will make her debut at party in White House on Dec. 27.
